

Diabetes Camps

There are a number of camps available for children and teenagers with diabetes. The camps below are all located in Indiana or a neighboring state.

Camp John Warvel

Camp John Warvel is sponsored by the American Diabetes Association (ADA), Indiana Affiliate. The camp is located near North Webster, Indiana. Camp sessions typically take place in June and are for children ages 7 to 15 years old. A full-time medical staff of doctors, nurses and dietitians from the Pediatric Diabetes Program at Riley IU Health provides 24-hour care for campers. Visit diabetes.org to learn more about the camp or to register for camp.

Camp Until a Cure

Camp Until a Cure is sponsored by the Diabetes Youth Foundation of Indiana. The camp is located in Noblesville, Indiana. Camp sessions are held in the summer and are for children ages 7 to 15 years old. Day camp is available for children ages 5 to 8 years old. A full medical, nursing, dietary and counseling staff provides diabetic care. Visit www.dyfofindiana.org/ for more information.

No Limits Camp

No Limits Camp is sponsored by No Limits Diabetes. The camp takes place at SpringHill Camps in Seymour, Indiana. The camp session typically takes place in July and is for teens ages 13 to 18 years old. The camp is intended for active teens who enjoy new challenges. Visit www.nolimitsdiabetes.net/learn_more/summer for more information.

YMCA Camp Carson – //dependence Diabetes Camp

The *IN*dependence Diabetes Camp is sponsored by the Jay Cutler Foundation. The camp is located in Princeton, Indiana. Camp sessions are held in July for kids ages 9 to 15 years old. It is combined with traditional YMCA summer camp. A full medical staff is provided for campers through St. Mary's Medical Center of Evansville, Indiana. Visit www.campcarson.org for more information or send an email to campinfo@ymcacampcarson.org.

Camp for Courageous Kids

The Center for Courageous Kids is a nonprofit medical camping facility founded by the late Ms. Betty Turner Campbell and funded entirely by donation. A weeklong camp for children ages 7 to 15 with diabetes is held in the summer. The camp also hosts family retreats on weekends. Camp for Courageous Kids is located in Scottsville, Kentucky. The on-site medical center is integral to the camp and made up of volunteer doctors and nurses and other medical personnel. You can access the online application by visiting <https://www.courageouskids.org/apply-to-ckk/apply-now>, or to request an application by mail, call the camper recruiter's office at 270.618.2912.