Gradient Logo

As you can see, I know the basics of gradient, bevel, and shadow.

This was my very first brick background design.

I call this the crying slave. It is suggestive, but creative as well.

I call this creation
Mother Nature.

I also like to play around with my editing skills.

I also like to create magazine ads. These are my very first creations to that end.

Here are two Magazine and Banner Ads I created for a college class fake client. On the left is the grayscale and on the right is the correct color palette edition. The fake client was Amethyst Bay Resort & Spa. I received high praise in these courses. I used Illustrator and Photoshop for them all.

I like this creation, but I have received feedback that others find it to be creepy.

Me, animated.

In one of my college classes, we were to create a Logo Design. It was in this project my new name for my business was born: Para Cosmos Graphics. As you can see, the logo on the far right was the first. The middle was the 5th. The far left was the final creation. It was more of a branding logo rather than a simple text logo. It was fun to make.

This was my final creation

This was my 5th.

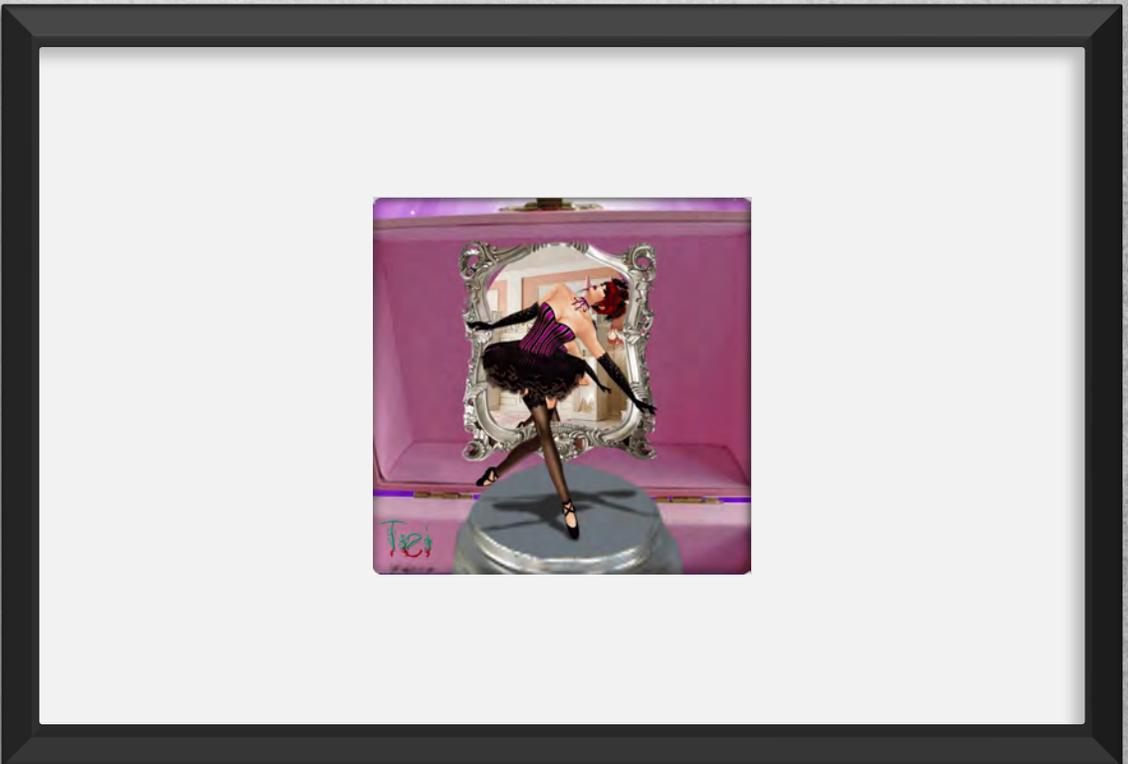

This was my first creation

Appearances can be deceiving.
