There is a call put forth by Paul in Ephesians 4 that we should strive to support one another in our spiritual lives. This is seemingly a struggle in many churches today because too few of the members know each other beyond skin level. The call from the Paul passage is that we should know the people who are our brothers and sisters in Christ and be willing to be their support system.

It has been said, "Your expectations of the church should match your commitment as a member." While I absolutely agree with this premise, I do not believe it to be a statement that is intended to shame members into doing something otherworldly. Rather, it is a statement that calls the church herself into deeper examination (i.e. What are we doing to grow closer to Jesus and to one another? What lessons are necessary to be studied for our people here? How can we be the hands and feet of Jesus to the community around us?). If more churches would be honest and introspective, I believe we would see the revival so many are begging for because it would unlock within us the inarguable desire to help others come to know Christ and His church.

Take the challenge outlined below... and hold the elders, deacons, ministers, Bible class teachers, etc. accountable in this challenge:

- 1) Where is my personal faith?
- 2) How am I supporting my church family?
- 3) What am I bringing to the assembly? (If the answer is lacking, let us help you!)

May God bless our study today...
