The nation in which we live has paused this weekend to show appreciation for those who have served in our military all over the world. There is a tremendous amount of courage contained within those who choose to serve in the various branches of our military. There are also numerous lessons that can be learned from these brave men and women.

(List adapted from Jerry Haffey, Jr and Marco Derhy)

1. As a leader, it's your job to help others see their own potential.

- Who am I striving to lead to Christ? How can I assist those that are learning about the Christian life in reaching their potential?

2. Accept help when you need it.

- It is far too prevalent in churches all over the globe that Christians seem to believe they must do things 'on their own' or they are weak somehow. We would all be much better off to reach out and ask for help when it is needed.

3. Positivity goes a long way.

- While it is appropriate to have a realist point of view on things, it is inappropriate to turn those realistic-style thoughts into constant pessimism. There is a strong need in our world today for positive people who will make a positive impact.

4. Be competent.

- Striving to do what is difficult and succeeding can oftentimes be broken down by those who simply want it more than the others. Secondly, it isn't enough just to do something, but we must desire to do it well.

- To the Christian I would say that being competent is vital because in doing so you are showing what is able to be accomplished through the strength of the Lord. Additionally, it sets the proper example for those around us.

WELCOME

May all who enter as guests, leave as friends

Friends and Family Day

Thank you for being with us today! Please plan to stay with us for a fellowship meal immediately following service (last name A-M serve, N-Z clean up). Our afternoon service is at 12:30.

Thank You

I want to thank my brothers and sisters in Christ once again for all the help you have given us during the illness and death of Frenchie Thomas.

My heart overflows with humble joy as I look back over the many times all of you have been there for my family. I love all of you for the strength you give me to keep going.

May God look down on all of us with his mercy as we trust in him.

-Jewelene Thigpen

Dear Rogersville church of Christ,

We are deeply moved by the show of support from you during the sickness and sadly the passing of our mother. Your cards, prayers, and visits were a source of comfort to her and us. We would especially like to thank Lendale Long for his support and officiating her service. Also, thank you for the meal prepared for us on the day of her service.

We are forever blessed by your kindness, Family of Frenchie Thomas

Freedom House Ladies' Night

Sunday, November 19 at 6:15 we will have a Thanksgiving meal in the annex for the ladies from Freedom House followed by co-ed football. Please sign up to bring food <https://mealtrain.com/re072l>.
