Grief: A Unique Experience

Special thanks to Brandon Edwards for these thoughts.

"No one ever told me that grief felt so much like fear."

"I thought I could describe a state; make a map of sorrow. Sorrow, however, turns out to not be a state but a process." - C.S. Lewis

In moments of great despair, a deep breath, a good cup of tea, and a wandering novel often help pass the time that causes so much pain. But it is the moments in between - while making the tea, sitting down in the armchair, choosing a book, that often transport a man back to his painful reality.

And the breathing, oh the breathing!

That is often the hardest part of the whole process. Losing a loved one, a grandparent, a friend, a companion, or a fellow student, is not just a loss; it is often felt like an amputation. Allow yourself the time to mourn, to sit in sacred idleness, and weep for this loss. Breathe in, and breathe out. Sit in this space - for tomorrow will seem like it will never come, but it will, as tomorrow always seems to come, and with it shall come both the pain and the opportunity to mold this pain into something else.

And there it is - the new day. The day has arrived, as it always seems to do when the pain is so real, and my God has granted me a new day filled with the power to love even in the depths of my pain. So, I shall breathe again and thank God for the ability. I shall sip my tea, dive into the depths of His word, and learn to wait for tomorrow. For tomorrow also has the ability, a beautiful ability, to provide new adventures and to change my sorrow into fond memories - and it is within these memories that our loved ones live yet again.

Never forgotten, remembered, and cherished through the pain and the sorrow. Mourn with those who mourn, weep with those who weep.

God is good and joy comes in the morning.

Thank You

Special thanks to Mandy and Becca Webster for decorating the bulletin boards and the education wing! Be sure to go by the bulletin board in the administration hallway and check out the "Guess Who" section.

Gas Cards for Clearview Cancer Institute Deadline Tonight

Donnie and Kim Lane are purchasing gas cards to donate to the Clearview Cancer Institute in Florence. These are given to patients that need financial assistance to travel back and forth to the center for treatment. Please give cash or checks (payable to Rogersville church of Christ – memo "Clearview") to Donnie or Kim by tonight.

Healing Hands International MAGI Project

Please go by the main foyer and pick up a MAGI box to fill. If you would like to have a box filled for you, please give a check (payable to Rogersville church of Christ) or cash to Donnie or Kim Lane and they will fill one for you. Cost to fill a box is approximately $30 and $8 for shipping. Last year we sent thirty boxes and would love to send at least forty this year! Return filled boxes by October 12.

Free Bible-Software Class

A Bible study e-Sword class will be offered in the annex Saturday, October 11 and 18 from 10:00 AM – 11:00 AM. Windell Gann will be there to guide you through the free Bible study app and to answer any questions you might have. You may go to the "Lightpost" app to sign up for this class, but pre-registration is not required.
