Board of Directors: Directing Our Vision

“Diplomacy is not simply a deal struck between a small group of leaders in a private room. Rather, it is deeply influenced by the millions of people who are affected by the deal. Today, we face a historic turning point in Israeli-Palestinian negotiations. It is in this moment that our leaders need to know that they have strong support from the American Jewish community for the hard compromises that a two-state solution will require.

We built J Street for just this moment. Now is the time to deepen our investment. Now is the time to strengthen our commitment to a vision of two states for two peoples. Our leaders must know when they face the hard choices, that we are strong, that we are organized and that we are ready in full force to back their leadership for peace.”

— Ambassador Louis B. Susman, Member, J Street Board of Directors
(Former Ambassador to the United Kingdom)

Tikva Society: Investing in Our Future

“J Street and J Street U exemplify the synergistic power of an intergenerational partnership. With great pride and admiration we, a father-daughter team, support this dynamic enterprise. J Street U mobilizes an inspirational cadre of young leaders. These knowledgeable, talented, energetic men and women understand how their activism is essential to Israel’s future as a strong, democratic and Jewish state. Dor v’dor, we are each a vital link in the chain of events that determines Israel’s destiny.”

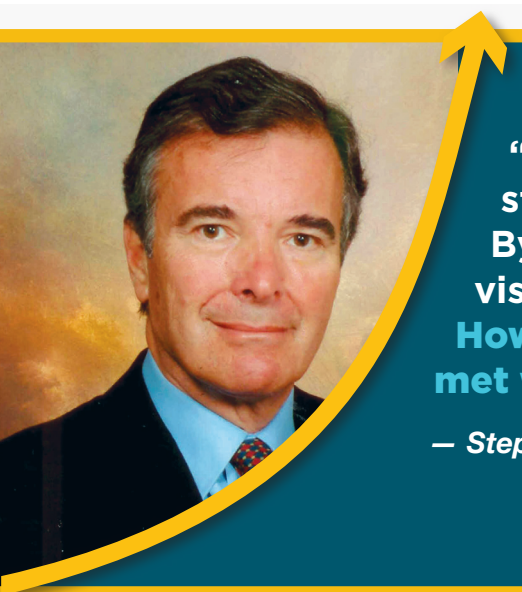

— Joanna Goodwin Friedman, Member, J Street Tikva Society and President’s Council
(President, Middle East Peace Dialogue Network)

President's Council: Advancing Our Strategy

“I envision a future when Israel and a Palestinian state thrive as neighbors and live together in peace. By funding J Street’s growth I am advancing this vision. The path towards two states will not be easy. However, momentous strategic opportunities must be met with bold action.”

— Stephen Robert, Member, J Street Tikva Society, President’s Council and National Finance Committee (Chancellor Emeritus, Brown University)

Foundation Partners: Securing Our Foundation

“The J Street Education Fund is a powerful partner in the Arca Foundation’s work to promote greater social equity and justice at home and abroad. They are transforming the conversation on Israel within the American Jewish community by organizing in almost 50 communities and over 50 campuses nationwide. And they are gathering the ‘great constituency for peace’ at their annual conference, with over 2,800 attendees, including 900 students, in 2013. The Arca Foundation is proud to support the J Street Education Fund in their vital work to achieve lasting peace for Israel through a two-state solution.”

Finance Committee: Building Our Political Power

“Thanks to the political heft and generosity of J Street’s 110+ Finance Committee members, the US Congress, Administration and Secretary of State now know that there is a powerful pro-Israel group ready to stand up and support a President that leads toward peace and two states. Never has J Street’s voice been more urgent than today. In the fight for two states, Israel’s security as well as its Jewish and democratic character are at stake. At this historic moment for Israel’s future, I am grateful to participate in the calm, resolute, informed discussion among our members that advances our objectives.”

— Diana Shaw Clark, Co-Chair, J Street National Finance Committee

“I am proud to have worked with J Street this year in the ongoing effort to bring about a just, comprehensive resolution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. J Street’s increased presence on Capitol Hill has made it a critical voice to ensuring an open and honest conversation on how to achieve a lasting agreement. I look forward to continuing to work with J Street in the future.”

Congressional Caucus and Ambassador's Club: Supporting Our Growth

“At the 2013 conference, the room buzzed with over 900 students from over 125 campuses around the country. I knew I was part of a movement on the front lines, fighting for peace.

After being involved for two and a half years, I have built a community in J Street U. At the 2013 Midwest Regional Workshop, there were 55 students in attendance, many of whom I didn’t recognize. J Street U is growing every year and is truly the future of the pro-Israel, pro-peace movement.”

— Mil Dranoff, Midwest Regional Representative, J Street U National Board (Washington University, Class of 2014)

National Leadership Circle: Leading Our Movement

“I went to law school in Austin. I’ve practiced law here since 1982. For too long, the multiplicity of viewpoints in the Jewish community has been drowned out by the voices coming from the right of the political spectrum. J Street Austin was founded in 2010 and has, ever since, played a critical role in opening up the conversation.

Today, we face a critical choice in Austin and in cities nationwide: Do we sit on the sidelines and watch our Jewish and democratic values erode in Israel and in our community? Or do we stand up for the difficult and necessary conversations in our community that reflect our long-held values? The latter leads us to a homeland that lives up to those values and survives for generations to come.”

— Jan Soifer, Member, J Street Austin Steering Committee and Member, J Street National Leadership Circle (Partner, O’Connell & Soifer LLP)

“I feel so proud to have supported J Street since its inception. The cynics, the naysayers, they said it couldn’t be done. They called us naïve. One thing I know is that the world only changes if you ignore the people who say it can’t be done. Five years later J Street is succeeding and we are transforming the politics on Israel in America. Yet, the challenges ahead are enormous. To me, Israel was created not simply to be a safe homeland for the Jewish people but to be a moral democracy and light all nations can appreciate.”

“Throughout my over half a century of engaging in policy debates, I have had the great satisfaction of helping to launch a number of organizations in Washington. None has given me more satisfaction than my role with J Street which, under Jeremy’s leadership, has greatly exceeded even my highest of hopes.
Both J Street and I are well aware of how hard this issue is and that the odds may be stacked against success. We also know that the consequences of failure will be catastrophic for Israel. It is our imperative to seize this moment.”

And it has allowed for caring and honest discussion about how we will navigate the difficult path ahead toward peace.”

Los Angeles: Fifth Anniversary Party

“Rabbi Israel Salanter once said, ‘A rabbi whose community does not disagree with him is no rabbi. A rabbi who fears his community is no mensch.’ I have taken this admonition to heart. I seek to explain my position clearly and patiently, drawing my community close to me personally, listening intently to and respecting those who disagree with me.
My work with J Street is to ally with other rabbis with whom I share values to support a two-state solution and the peaceful and just resolution of this conflict. The road ahead is long but to get through the challenges that are inevitably ahead I remember this saying, ‘B’Yisrael, ye-ush hu lo optsia!’ (In Israel, despair is not an option!)”
