

Put Nevada's Workers FIRST.

Nevada workers' health and safety must come first instead of giving immunity to employers. When workers are protected, our entire community and our economy are secure.

Immunity is Unnecessary

Businesses already have protections from careless lawsuits. They do not need protections that stop them from wrongdoing.

- If a business follows guidelines, it cannot be liable.
- Businesses are only required to do what is reasonable under the circumstances and they will not be held liable.

Immunity Hurts Everyone

Without being held accountable in a meaningful way, businesses have no reason to stop bad behavior. This is dangerous to the health and safety of Nevada.

Insurance Premiums

There is an argument that insurance premiums for businesses will go up if blanket immunity is not passed. For businesses that do not follow the rules and have to make victims whole, there will likely be an increase due to their irresponsibility.

People Over Profits

There is no value that can be placed on human life. If reasonable accommodations can be met through the guidelines provided by the government and CDC, there is no excuse for shortcuts from businesses. These shortcuts aren't mere inconveniences; they can devastate individuals and families. If a business does not follow the rules in order to make a buck, the consequences can be lethal.
