proves successful; workshops in two forms of visitation; a series of revival meetings; follow-up visitation of the films and special meetings; follow-up visitation of those who attend worship services; a variation of census taking which the com­munica­communica­communications committee hopes to enlarge through mailings. This will require a great deal of effort on the part of a great many, but the committee feels that we are not only ready for such outreach, but that it is past due. Other thoughts expressed by committee members include greater use of news media to familiarize the community with our program and the installation of a public address system for the neighborhood.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES
ALFRED, N. Y.—The annual business meeting of the church was held Sunday night, October 11, in the Parish House. A family supper preceded this meeting and the occasion was made a special one to make room for all. Each student attending was a guest of some family and was introduced by his host at the end of the meal. The dining room was filled and extra tables were set up in the par­lors to make room for all.

An historical skit in two scenes was presented by members of the Junior High Youth Fellowship following the supper while people were still seated at the tables.

After the tables were cleared the meet­ing was called to order in the parlors by the president, Edward Crandall. An­nual reports were given by officers and committees, including adopting of the budget presented by the trustees. Mention was made of repairs in process or com­pleted, including the church office and pastor’s study at the south end of the sanctuary, extra room in the parsonage attic, and proposed renovation of the sanctuary itself.

Both the pastor’s and associate pastor’s reports were received with appreciation and a hearty call for the coming year extended to each. The following slate of officers was elected for the coming year: president, Frank Snyder; vice-president, Edward Crandall; clerk, Paul Saunders; assistant clerk, Leah Crofoot; treasurer, Edith Place; new trustees for three years: Robert Campbell, Mary Jane Reid, Clifford Potter; for two years, Daniel Rose (to fill term of trustees resigned); chairman of Con­ference Committee, Harold O. Burdick.

News Stories Wanted
Church bulletins coming to the Sabbath Recorder have announced special weekend services, Associations, semiannual meetings, etc. that make one wish he could attend all of them from East to West, from North to South. The programs as planned look interesting; as carried out they may have been far more interesting. It is hoped that specially ap­pointed reporters or the correspondent in the place where the meetings were held will remember to write up the high points of such gatherings in a way that will bring blessing to readers everywhere.

It is nice to know that those in attendance enjoyed themselves; it is important to know what results were seen, what plans were made for the progress of the work in the geographical area served by the co-operating churches.

Seventh Day Baptist Missionary Board Meeting
Westerly, Rhode Island, October 25

The first quarterly meeting of the newly elected Board of Managers, together with a few visitors, met in the Vestry of the Pawcatuck Church Sunday afternoon, October 25, taking a few minutes at the beginning of the meeting for a picture snapped by the editor. The group then went on to consider reports and to ponder how to meet the needs of the work with less than the needed funds. Those in the picture are: seated, Everett T. Harris, secretary; Elston H. Van Horn, recording secretary; Harold R. Crandall, president; Karl G. Stillman, treasurer; George V. Crandall, past president; standing, Lester G. Osborn, visitor; Earl Cruzan; Robert Wheeler and Kathleen Kenyon, new members; Denison D. Barber; Nicholas Fata­tto; Loren G. Osborn; Edgar F. Wheeler; Leon R. Lawton, director of evangelism; Paul S. Burdick; Harley D. Bond, visitor; Mrs. Paul S. Burdick, visitor; Mrs. E. T. Harris; Mrs. Neal D. Mills; Neal D. Mills; Mrs. Alexander Ferguson.
A Clear Conscience

Have we drifted into definitions of conscience that are less than scriptural? Do we have a tendency to forget that there is considerable confusion not only in the present day, but in the history of the church between conscience in general and a Christian conscience? If so, we have best do a little more thinking and studying about it.

Although the whole Bible is useful in educating the conscience, and the laws of the Old Testament set many of the standards by which conscience functions, the word does not occur in the Old Testament. Neither is it used by Christ in the record of the four Gospels. Almost all of the references (and they are very meaningful) come to us by way of the Apostle Paul (21). There are also five verses in Hebrews, three in 1 Peter, and one in John. One of the most significant is in Paul's defense before Felix: "And herein do I exercise myself, to have always a conscience void of offense toward God, and toward men" (Acts 24:16). We gather from this that Paul did not find it easy to have himself to have a clear conscience because he held a high view of his moral responsibility. His conscience was closely related to the Scriptures. It condemned him if he did not stand firm on the commandments of God, if he did not testify of Christ and if he did not teach young pastors. He writes to Timothy, "Let the end of the commandment be charity out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned ..." (1 Tim. 1:5). The value of an enlightened, clear conscience is set forth in the charge to this young pastor in the same chapter, "Holding fast the faithful word which hath been taught you, that by loving Paul, you make bold to do so."

The Drawing Power of Christ

The drawing power of Christ has been far greater since the Resurrection than it was during His earthly ministry. Jesus said that would be so: "If I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me" (John 12:32). How could His drawing power be greater than when He was there? How could an earthly man be more effective than the Son of God. God sets the standard. In doing His revealed will there is far more liberty than in serving self and Satan.

UNLESS I am convinced by Scripture and plain reason, I do not accept the authority of popes and councils, for they have contradicted each other—my conscience is captive to the Word of God." For the Christian, according to Martin Luther, Scripture is the final authority, and a clear conscience is one which is captive to the Word of God. The foundation and the distinctive of Protestantism is not the ability to judge the Scriptures (stand in judgment of this statement, that command, or that miracle) but the willingness to put our conscience in captivity to the Word of God. This is true freedom; anything else is anarchy. God sets the standards. In doing His revealed will there is far more liberty than in serving self and Satan.

The response at Boston was so great those promoting the meetings persuaded Mr. Graham to change his plans and continue an extra week. The result was attendance and response beyond expectation. It is reported that the majority of those attending during the extended time were young people. From the mimeographed sheet we are convinced again that the drawing power of Christ is great.

Not all of the young people who came face to face with Billy Graham in Boston were students. Among those who signed decision cards were at least three known "call girls" from the demi-monde of Boston.

A policeman on duty at the Garden recognized one of them and asked bluntly: "What in the world are you doing here?"

Like the sinful woman of the Bible who was looking for a way to claim the love of Jesus and save her life, the young woman replied as frankly and simply: "I have been coming to all of those Crusade meetings. This other night I was converted and gave my heart to Jesus Christ. I have moved to the YWCA." A member of the Billy Graham Team, preaches at an evening service in a Boston area church, recounted the story of the "call girl's" conversion. At the close of the service, the pastor said to him: "That young woman was in my church this morning."
The Right to Editorialize

Not many church organs take sides on the support of political candidates. The American Baptist News is one such publication which has done so in the present national campaign. The United Church Herald, organ of the two-million-member United Church of Christ, edited by the Rev. J. Martin Bailey, has stated, "The Herald believes that its political responsibility in 1964 requires forthright opposition to Mr. Goldwater."

About 100 people wrote to the editor and twelve cancelled their subscriptions. About six to one they were against the editor's stand, some of them questioning the right of the paper to express a position which had not been endorsed by the church. The executive vice-president of the board which publishes The Herald backed Mr. Bailey's right to editorialize, pointing out that the editor spoke only for himself. He elicits the relationship between the publication and the denomination as one in which the church endorses the publishing of this journal, provides a staff, selects an editor, and assigns responsibility for the publication to the United Church Board for Homeland Ministries. This arrangement is similar to that of the Sabbath Recorder. In our case, however, the editor is not elected by the denomination.

The fact that only one paper has been observed to observe this customary position in this national election indicates that most denominational editors do not feel justified in exercising their right to editorialize in this way. Such is the position of your editor.

Special Issue Next Week

It is expected that the November special issue will be printed on schedule in the second week of November. The cover will be in color, as is customary with these special issues that are published the second week of November, February, and May. The editor of this special edition is Albert Batson of Parkersburg, W. Va., who is past president of Business and Professional Women's Clubs of West Virginia. The contributed articles are from well-chosen writers with the hope that the complete issue will appeal to people from various backgrounds of Christian experience.

The more extensive Republican majority in the Senate enables the publication of larger quantities on the basis of advance orders, are designed to be used the same as tracts. Quantity prices are 100 for $2.50, 10 for $1.

Decision and Opportunity

The 1964 Civil Rights Bill, now the law of the land, presents a crucial decision to white citizens, an incomparable opportunity to colored.

The white citizen has before him an epochal choice. He can accept the verdict of the nation's representatives in Congress in a spirit of loyalty, patience, and good will. Or he can live in sullen defiance, harassed by unwarranted fear, tormented by bitterness, and racked by rebellious emotions.

Needless to say, Christian teaching joins responsible citizens, Ashin dictates the form reaction; only chaos and anarchy can result from the latter. The truth of the matter is that the Southern white citizen's religious conviction and moral sensitivity has long hoped for equal justice and adequate opportunity. The Negro feels that Negro Christians have not been without some sense of guilt because colored citizens among us have not always been fairly treated.

On the other hand, the Negro is faced with a historic new opportunity to meet the high challenge of his new freedom: the challenge to be the "first class citizen" he claims he wants to be.

Actually, this is an hour of decision and opportunity for all Americans: decision to accept the new legal order of loyalty and good will or to defy it; opportunity to work together in an atmosphere of good will to solve the problems which arise by calm deliberation, personal confrontation, and legal adjudication, or to foster chaos by rebellion of law and remembrance. A nation under God dedicated to liberty and justice for all knows the choice it must make as opportunity is now presented for a new birth of freedom.

From Our Files

The Duty of Christian to Vote

(Ala.-Fla., May 25, 1846)

The supineness of men in regard to this duty is very surprising. A Christian who will not vote is, so far forth, a traitor to his country. If men will not carry Christianity into their politics, how can they expect political affairs to go right? And if political affairs are to be left to the vote of citizens, the interests of our country can come up, but what would be settled right, if all the Christians and Christian ministers in our country would invariably vote. We fear the consciences of many need enlightening and quickening on this subject. But if a man's conscience will not be enlightened on the subject of chastisement, it will be a loose conscience in other things besides that. There is no safety for our country but in the prevalence of religion. There is no safety for us but in the prevalence of religious principle in politics. Without this, our affairs will be carried on by party zeal and passion, by ambition, selfishness and wickedness, instead of patriotism and wisdom. Unless God causes the power of religion to prevail, our government will become corrupt, an instrument in the corruption of the people. Unless the power of religion prevails, we shall have wars, both civil and external. It is becoming more and more evident that a republic like ours cannot stand but by the power of God. If we are free and at peace, it is becoming more and more evident that we are dependent for our life upon God's mercy in revivals of religion. Nothing can quench the light of His Spirit, nothing can destroy the peace and the blessedness of a widespread religious education. We are thrown upon His mercy.

Men of God must pray more for their country. But if we are a people to pray, it is also a duty to vote. What consistency is there between asking of God the gift of good men for our rulers, and then leaving us to the whole work of electing them? Or what consistency between praying that we may have good rulers, and then voting for a bad man, merely because one's own party may have put him up? Our what consistency between praying for good men and voting for none? We fear that Christian ministers, in such a case, as they ought, the example of Christian faithfulness in this duty of voting. Thousands vote in our country who ought not, and thousands do not vote who ought. Between them both our dearest interests may be sacrificed. — Evan.

The Price They Paid

Have you ever wondered what happened to those men who signed the Declaration of Independence?

Five signers were captured by the British as traitors, and tortured before they died. Twelve had their homes ransacked and burned. Two lost their sons in the Revolutionary War. Two other sons died in Revolutionary Army, another had two sons captured. Nine of the 56 fought and died from wounds or the hardships of the Revolutionary War.

What kind of men were they? Twenty-four were lawyers and jurists. Eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and large plantation owners, nine were educated. Two were newspapers, two were schoolmasters, two were lawyers, two were clergymen, two were leading doctors, and one was a prima donna. But they signed the Declaration of Independence, knowing full well that the penalty would be death if they were captured.

They signed and they pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor. Carter Braxton of Virginia, a wealthy planter and trader, saw his ships swept from the seas by the British navy. He sold his home and properties to pay his debts and duty, in neckcloth.

Such were the sacrifices of the American Revolution. These were not wild-eyed, rabble-rousing ruffians. They were soft-spoken men of means and education. They had security, but they valued liberty more. Standing tall, straight, and unwavering, they pledged: "For the support of this Declaration with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor." — John Adams.

Another Booth at the Fair

Little Rock Church Spreads the Gospel at Arkansas Exposition

Once again it has been demonstrated that when a real effort has wisely been put into a tract distribution program it is well received by the general public. From October 6 to 11 the Little Rock church maintained a small booth, 8 x 8, in the merchant’s tent of the Arkansas State Livestock Show and exhibition.

“arly this was not hastily arranged for, but planned carefully far in advance. First the space was contracted at $50. The church appealed to the Tract Board for assistance on this and for 10,000 copies of the little Gospel and Sabbath tract, “It Is Your Decision.” The Board published these with a special imprint telling of the location and time of service of the Little Rock Seventh Day Baptist Church. This tract with a picture of a man kneeling at the foot of the cross was used as a cover for another tract, “What and Why Are Seventh Day Baptists?” and for a business reply card. Other tracts were enclosed in some of the covers.

As a major attraction in the booth a question-and-answer board was built by capable carpenters and electronics men of the church. This board challenged visitors five at a time, changed every day. The question-and-answer board was built by the church. This board challenged visitors. It was used as a cover for another tract, the church. This board was used as a cover for another tract, “What and Why Are Seventh Day Baptists?”

The first five of the twenty statements used were reproduced here; the answers and Scriptures being omitted: “Everyone has broken God’s law — and needs Christ’s salvation. The way to get to heaven.” “The 7th-day Sabbath is only for the Jews.” “Christ expects us to keep the Commandments.” “Christ was 3 days and 3 nights in the heart of the earth.”

Church leaders desiring more detailed information as to how the booth was constructed or what the response was to this method of spreading Gospel and Sabbath truth may communicate with the Little Rock Seventh Day Baptist Church. It is possible that some of the material could be used in other places. The Tract Board also has equipment and suggestions for use in similar projects. The correspondence from Little Rock indicates that those who participated in the work felt richly rewarded. Any such effort requires a great deal of work and, to be successful, a genuine love for the people who pass by.

Rev. Paul Osborn, city pastor-evangelist at Little Rock, reports that the tract distribution was much more effective than last year as not more than one per cent of the tracts picked up from the booths were discarded on the fairgrounds. He also reports that many more seemed to have heard of Seventh Day Baptists this year. Many still had never heard or seemed to confuse ours with another denomination. The choice of tracts seemed to be wise, judged by the reaction of the people as they looked at the cover. Most of them got a message from the picture itself; some laughed; some thoughtfully turned immediately to start reading what was inside.

There were 10,556 tracts distributed besides about 2,200 from the Good News Publishers. They also used 100 church bulletins and 250 primary picture cards. Special issue Sabbath Recorders, one of a kind, were kept on the table with 390 being taken. Also distributed in this way were 20 booklets, 5 booklets, 100 Moody Teen Focus and 85 prayer booklets from the Women’s Board. The total pieces of literature distributed was 1,571. The message of Calvary where the Lord Jesus Christ gave Himself for our sins, that He might deliver us from this present evil age according to the will of God; love that beareth, believeth, hopeth, endureth all things, which never faileth, is the answer.

Many make the issue skin; the real issue is sin, and it’s the cause of broken lives, homes, and (history in making) a broken nation. Only Jesus Christ, God’s Beloved Son who came into the world to save sinners, and His love prevailing in the hearts of people of every race and color, will end the hatred so prevalent. It’s not so much what party, but rather what Person, for apart from Him there is no hope.

— Prayerfully submitted.

Eastern Association
By Ruth Huntington Parker

Because of the Baptist Jubilee Celebration in Atlantic City last May, when Shiloh and Marlboro entertained the Yearly Meeting of the Eastern Association met at Plainfield, N.J., October 9-11 instead of in the spring. The weather-co-operated, for we had three lovely autumn days for the meeting. "Contend for the Faith" from Jude 3 was the theme.

President Lloyd Coon welcomed those present at the Sabbath eve service. The Plainfield choir, directed by Dr. Howard Savage, sang two anthems. About 175 enjoyed the noon meal.

Pastor Harmon Dickinson conducted the Sabbath morning service, at which over 220 were present. The choir again sang. Pastor Leslie Welch of Berea, W. Va., the Southeastern Association delegate, read the letter of Jude and offered the pastoral prayer. An offering of $163.75 was taken for Our World Mission. Pastor Edgar Wheeler of Ashaway, R.I., gave an excellent children's message, "It Pays to Take Sides," starting with the story of a bat who claimed to be neither bird nor animal. "Contend for the Faith in Our Daily Walk" was the topic of the inspiring sermon by the Rev. Leon Lawton, director of evangelism.

Delicious noon and evening meals were served in the Sabbath School room by the women of the Mt. Olive Baptist Church (Negaunee, Mich.), which used our church for eight weeks last spring after their fire. About 175 enjoyed the noon meal.

The worship service Sabbath afternoon was conducted by New England and Berlin, N.H. Loren Osborn of Westerly, R.I., led an informative panel discussion "Contend for the Faith Through World Understanding," which centered on the results of the first World Consultation and the plan for a Seventh Day Baptist World Federation. The speakers were: Secretary Everett Harris, Secretary Leon Maltby, Lay Leader Laurie L. North, Pastor Leslie Welch, and Pastor John Schmid of Irvington, N.J.

At the Women's Fellowship meeting, Mrs. L. H. North and Mrs. Harmon Dickinson gave interesting reports of the Conference, before the roof was on. He told me he would mention it, and people would turn away the head.

A Summer's Work In The Mountains
By Clifford A. Beebe

When Mrs. Beebe and I left Crites Mountain last fall, after six weeks' work, holding meetings in private homes, one of the men suggested that the community could build a log church building by their own efforts, if they would. But by the time we came back in June (after a winter with the Edinburg, Tex., church) he had been unable to arouse any interest. He told me he would mention it, and people would turn away the head.

The little log church with only floor and walls was now at completion. It had been hoped that we might have the use of the school house during vacation time, as was done three years ago, for Vacation Bible School and Sabbath meetings; but when the school board in accord with a recently adopted policy, refused it to us, interest in a log church built up at once. A piece of land was secured by agreement with the owners, logs were cut, and the walls raised, the first Sabbath service being held just before Conference, before the roof was on. In the meantime, Sabbath eve services had been held in our 10x14 living room, with as many as 40 sometimes attending; and Sabbath School had alternated between two other homes. Vacation Bible School was held at our home, with Miss Leona Welch of Berea in charge, and 22 children enrolled.
Worship Service on Board Ship
(Excerpts from letter from Rev. J. Bahlike, CoWoCo delegate from Hamburg, Germany)

"It seems time to let you know that I have come home again after thirty weeks have already passed and there have been a lot of little things to be settled in personal matters. I now feel responsible to present and foster this plan and idea of CoWoCo Federation and necessary contributions to it."

I was and am still very happy that I could be with all of you, getting to know something more of your whole church-life in America. And I deeply regret that I did not make a better disposal of my time during my stay over there. For I really would have liked to join the studies as they were arranged by Dean Victor W. Skaggs, at the Missionary Education Center in Plainfield.

"Brother J. McGeechey and I made a combined disposition for our traveling (returning together as far as London, England on the S.S. Rotterdam). As you see by the enclosed Divine Service Program for October 26th and 27th, on the S.S. Rotterdam, we were somewhat active on the boat, taking part in the Protestant service aboard ship. I guess there were near to 250 passengers taking past, almost a quarter of the whole number of passengers."

We note from the program bulletin that Pastor McGeechey and I have the privilege to lead the service of dedication, as our contribution to the 'Faith,' a sermon published in the Sabbath Recorder, issue of September 21, 1964. Brother Bahlike read the Scripture in English and German and offered the pastoral prayer.

Impressions of CoWoCo
(As written by the delegate from German Seventh Day Baptist Conference, Brother Alfred Vi.Mellmann, Braunschweig, Germany)

Believe me, it was a good experience which I had in Clarksburg and Salem, W. Va., then in Plainfield, N. J., and at the convention again in Cleveland. As I remember these times in America I am very thankful for the invitation to attend.

For all the things I learned, I am thankful and especially for the love of the American brethren which I could feel during all my stay. I am also happy about the pictures I took in many places. It will always be a great joy to show them. My hope is that all the themes we discussed at CoWoCo may become a reality. If we pray for this I think that God will bless us by his Holy Spirit.

Please remember me to all the American brethren.

New British Guiana Slide Set Available for Loan

A new set of slides (number five in a series of such sets) has come from the head of our mission work in British Guiana, Rev. Leland E. Davis. The slide set contains one of our missionary's home, family and work and co-workers and of the countryside in British Guiana, all in beautiful color transparencies. There are thirty-four slides in the set with accompanying descriptive script. The viewing time would be approximately one-half hour.

This slide set is available for loan to churches on a first-come, first-served basis through the secretary of the Missionary Board if you would like to receive and show these slides in your church.

Two Million Tithers

The stewardship commission of the Southern Baptist Convention has set a goal of 2,000,000 tithers in 1965. The number is the combined goal set by each of the states. If attained it will represent an increase of 600,000 tithers. The will to tithes has not yet gripped a high percentage of Southern Baptists since there are ten million of them. The Convention has prospered by setting numerical goals for new missions and churches and working for those goals. The same will probably be true in the realm of stewardship.

If it works for them it will work for others — if people are in earnest about spreading their faith. Any church which does not make tithing a condition of membership must constantly use persuasion to increase the number of tithers and thus the amount of work that can be done in the Lord's vineyard.
approval of the Religious Education Committee. The slogan for the church's rally season through November 15 is "Each one bring one." As further evangelistic programs take place, the slogan will be changed to "Each one win one."

Youth Work Activity
All Youth Fellowships are advised to renew their memberships in the National Seventh Day Baptist Youth Fellowship. All memberships run from January to January. The fee is $1.00 per year per person. The fee includes the receiving of the Beacon for one year. Money left over will help defray the expenses of the national officers. Your list of members with money enclosures must, be sent to Mr. Lyle Sutton, Youth Work chairman Almond, N. Y.

Many campsites have been and are being considered for 1965 Pre-Con activity, but so far none has been acquired for our use.

Ronald Ellis has been chosen as advisor to the national SDBYF officers.

Board Meeting
At the quarterly meeting of the SDB Board of Christian Education held October 18, it was voted to rescind previous action taken to sell stocks and securities held by the board to the Seventh Day Baptist Memorial Fund. The reason is that our Memorial Board is not recognized by New York State as a receiving agent for a New York corporation's securities. The Christian Education Board asked its Finance Committee to meet with officials of Alfred University to work out an agreement regarding funds held by each party although the dividends go to the other.

The Publications Committee chairman reported that 180 new Junior Quarterlies and 24 Teacher's Manuals have been sold for its first quarter. He further reported that Sabbath Visitors for Boys and Girls are sent each month to our churches and 28 go to individuals.

Evangelist Leon R. Lawton was welcomed as a guest to the meeting.

The Week That Was
(The following article is from the S.D.B. Sentinel of the Sunshine State sent out by the Daytona Beach S.D.B. Church.)

"That was the week that was! Was what? Well ... That was the week that was stunned to find 15% of the active membership involved in the teaching of our boys and girls. 'People here don't expect to work,' the week had said.

"That was the week that was wrong. 'This is a church made up of retired folk,' it had said. But, well over 30% of those in attendance were under the age of 18.

"That was the week that was thrilled as 32 boys and girls were recognized — with more than 3/4 present. That was the week that was disappointed to learn that with a willing staff and eager youngsters, there was no adequate provision for places to meet.

"That was the week that was just beginning to catch the vision as it sensed that here in this Sabbath School is the growing edge of our church."

Sabbath Heritage Day appears on the denominational calendar the last Sabbath in November. It is a day set aside for Christians of all ages to be encouraged to observe it at their convenience. WOMEN'S WORK — Mrs. Lawrence W. Meredian
Family Worship
By Mrs. Loyd Pederson
"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it" (Prov. 22: 6).

Father, Christian father and mother pray for the ability to claim this promise. However, we all must realize that this training we desire for our children will not begin unless there is a time in our everyday life for an opportunity to study the Word of God together, and this is where the difficulty lies. Perhaps you are familiar with the story of the boy oversleeping on a school morning, leaving only enough time to stuff a roll into his mouth, take a gulp of milk, and be out the door. However, before he realized he did not feel well and commented to the teacher that he had been in such a hurry that he had swallowed his breakfast whole. I'm afraid many of us are just like that boy. We open our Bibles, read a few verses of Scripture, and each in his own way, little chil­dren run to school, dads to work, and we moms start in on the routine of the house and caring for the smaller children. We forget to "meditate·· on the food from God's Holy Word. The Bible says we should "meditate" on it day and night which is the same as chewing God's Word. One time in my life when I let my days become so involved that I don't allow time each day to thoroughly digest the spiritual food.

The first and last New Year's resolu­tion for my family was not to go, grace before our meals, which we soon enlarged to include a period of devotions, using various devotional guides and tracts. This was before our first child was born and it has been a daily spiritual contact with our Lord as our family has grown to ten. As each child became old enough, he joined in worship, taking turns choosing a chorus which we sing for the evening meal. I believe this in itself has created a greater interest in music for our children. "O sing unto the Lord a new song; for he hath done marvelous things" (Psalm 98: 1).

We pray that we are instilling within our children the blessings that we as a family have received through daily devotions, and though sometimes hurriedly, we ask for guidance and grace that we may learn to trust the Lord more completely.

As Psalm 32: 8 says, "I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: I will guide thee with mine eye."

Even as investigations into the causes of the North Philadelphia riots were being made, forty staff members of the American Baptist Convention, Valley Forge, Pa., and Philadelphia-area pastors met with civic and religious leaders to consider the problems that provided the seedbed for the riots in North Philadelphia and to look at some of the constructive work being done by religious and civic leaders.

The seven-hour seminar was sponsored by the Division of Christian Social Concern, American Baptist Convention. Elizabeth J. Miller, the division's executive director, explained that the seminar was held in order that the convention staff could see the problems which are closest to them. "The civil rights problems faced by Philadelphia," she said, "are not unique. If we look at Philadelphia, we can better consider other situations throughout our convention."

The group was addressed by Terry C. Chisholm, executive director, Human Relations Council of the City of Philadelphia. Speaking as a Negro civic leader, Mr. Chisholm reviewed the causes of racial tension, particularly race riots. The riot incidents were enlarged by the difficulties produced by high-cost renewal projects and the high percentage of unemployment in the Negro population caused by the lack of education. He explained that at first the civil rights struggle was supported only by the more educated and middle-class Negro drop-out, the boy that stands on the street corner" feels that he must do something for civil rights. lawful and constructive civil-rights action. As a civic leader, he challenged the church to again take the streets. However, he commented on the lack of the church in the street situation. "When the riots were in progress in North Philadelphia, the area ministers went up and down the streets pleading with the rioters to stop. But the people in the streets were not the people from the churches. The ministers had no influence, no frame of reference."

Mr. Chisholm suggested that to counter this lack of influence, and churches must re-examine their programs. "The people who most need the church are not getting it," he concluded.

The seminar was climaxcd by a trip to the Bright Hope Baptist Church in North Philadelphia. William H. Gray, Jr., its pastor, reiterated the pastor's emphasis on anti-poverty legislation: It was agreed that members who live north of the church would meet regularly for Bible study; likewise those living south of the church, and that both groups would meet once a quarter together, the unified church meeting to be on the first Sabbath of the second month of each quarter.

Members gave $1,601.35 to the church during the past year. The year closed with a balance in the treasury and $1,600 in the building fund. The average attendance for Sabbath School was 249. The average attendance of 29. The Young People's class voted to have Mrs. Herbert Saunders as their teacher. They are presently studying different religions of the world.

Church-State Problems in Anti-Poverty Bill

Congress passed President Johnson's anti-poverty bill with solving the church-state problems in it.

The overall anti-poverty legislation is basically an education measure. Most of it to some degree could involve church programs. A spokesman in the House Education and Labor Committee reportedly said that in almost every title of the bill there would be some provision or some authority to church groups to further promote their programs on a secular basis and to provide new ones.

Glenn L. Archer, executive director of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, accused politicians of using the President's "war on poverty" to wage war on the Constitution by weakening the church-state separation provision of the First Amendment. "This anti-poverty law can be used to hold the poor in hostage for a ransom of public funds for the benefit of sectarian institutions," Archer charged. "This new law opens a near-billion dollars' expenditure that will no doubt be followed by additional billions, which could be a windfall for churches and their institutions. The law may bring some benefit to the poor, but its immediate beneficiary will be the very tax-exempt groups that have already been highly favored by our laws."

"It may be that the President found he had to accept such a provision or get no law. This does not justify it. Nor does it mean that the American people will silently tolerate this use of government provided funds and manpower to build up the wealth of tax-exempt bodies."

Mennonites Send Teachers to Cleveland

The Mennonite Central Committee has announced it will send ten teachers into the 'ghetto' Negro areas of Cleveland to help improve educational standards. It said they will go "voluntarily as obedient Christian disciples, armed with the special skills needed for this assignment."

"Invisible ghetto walls, more treacherous than the walls of Berlin, en­nare most of the Negroes of Cleveland. Whites and blacks are as far apart in this northern city as they are in the South. In the North, economic bar­riers are swiftly taking the place of se­gregation by race. Lack of money effectively slams shut certain business and entertain­ment doors in the face of the Negro. True equality of opportunity has not been achieved." Also as long as Negroes are kept below economic par. Successful job competition is dependent upon education. For this reason, it is important to keep Negro youngsters in school."

The International Society of Christian Endeavor includes thousands of societies in Protestant churches in North America and approximately three million individu­al members.

The pastor has been leading the Friday evening services with discussions on the disciples of Jesus. He also has a preaching appoint­ment at our nearby Hebron, Pa., church.

Sabbath School officers elected Septem­ber 24, were: superintendent, Mrs. Vel­ma Reynolds, and secretary-treasurer, David Sanford. The Sabbath School reported an average attendance of 29. The Young People's class voted to have Mrs. Herbert Saunders as their teacher. They are presently studying different religions of the world.

The Youth Group has been very busy this past year. The first monthly publica­tion of The Belfry, the long dormant church paper, was published the last week of October. The members are trying in every way the members of the community ap­proved their new undertaking. The YF has also been helping Pastor Saunders in the youth work during the past year. They have also been cleaning the church and mowing the church lawn weekly as a project. Various other activities have been planned for this year, including a Halloween party, a chili supper, and a New Year's Eve party.

The Sunday choir, under the direction of Mrs. Saunders, and the junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Lethe Polen, have been faithfully presenting anthems each week for the church. Both choirs are delighted over the prospect of new robes, the present ones having been used for years.

We ask for your prayers that our church, as well as all Seventh Day Baptist churches in the world, may grow spiritually as we strive to do His will.
