one scouts of the church-sponsored troop, the scoutmaster and two assistant scoutmasters. Denison Barber, a former scoutmaster of this troop outlined the God and Country award requirements. The successful candidate for the award was one of the leaders of the boys when the troop was first sponsored by the church.

He holds the merit-badge rank of Life Scout and will be an assistant scoutmaster during the next charter year. The church was proud to see one of its boys honored on this occasion. One of the things counting toward the award was serving in the denominational Summer Christian Service Corps at Little Rock, Ark. He is currently the president of the national Seventh Day Baptist Youth Fellowship.

Contributions to COTA

Sao Paulo, Brazil (BP). — The Southern Baptist Convention contributed $83,682 out of a total of $90,340 received by the Crusade of the Americas (COTA) central office here during 1968. Eight Baptist conventions in North America were included in the report. Contributions listed were: General Association of General Baptists, $500; North American Baptist General Conference, $830; Seventh Day Baptist Missionary Society, $80; and SBC, $83,682.

Sixteen of the 42 conventions did not contribute financially to the Crusade of the Americas during 1968, the report indicated.

Listed with no contributions were: Baptist General Conference, National Baptist Convention of America; National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc.; and Progressive National Baptist Convention, Inc. The American Baptist Convention was not included on the list since it is not a participating national Baptist body.

Correction — The prices of books listed in the January 6 issue contained one error. Poems by A. J. C. Bond currently sells at $2.00, not 75 cents, a price fixed by the author years ago. We are sorry. It is probable that a handling charge of 25 cents should be added.

A Visit from the Chief of Chaplains

It isn't often that ordinary sailors get to shake hands with a Rear Admiral. The expressions on the faces of these men of the Naval Air Facility at Cam Ranh Bay, Republic of Vietnam, indicate that it is a pleasure to meet the Chief of Chaplains of the U.S. Navy. RADM James W. Kelly was visiting and encouraging Navy personnel on the other side of the world during the holidays. Our servicemen know that in the chaplain they have one who cares about them and desires to bring them close to God.
We Must Evangelize

Most of our churches are responding to the current emphasis on the Crusade of the Americas. This, no doubt, is a growing feeling that every local church ought to evangelize. A certain amount of urgency in this church mission is felt. This is the big year of the white churches. It is supposed to culminate next fall in some sort of major effort. We are aware of the Great Commission and its application to our church at the present time. There may be differences of opinion as to the most suitable or effective method of evangelism for the local situation in which we find ourselves or imagine that we find ourselves, but we all admit that we must evangelize. It is our business as Christians and as churchmen to care not only for our own religious family but for those outside of Christ who are lost and need to be saved. Dr. King has hit the world that the "moral defeat" is not certain, but have we ever lasting life. Without this clearly in mind the Great Commission can get only a half-hearted response.

Black Theology?

The Presbyterian church has historically been at the forefront of precise accurate statements in the area of theology. Some of the greatest books on theology have been written by Reformed (Presbyterian) theologians. There are evidences that some of the present leaders of the United States need to evangelize. It appears that we have lost the feeling that people of the world's need to be evangelized.

Let us ponder the implication of that statement. Do you agree with the writer's statement that "We Must Evangelize"? Let us consider the following statements.

- "The big question is related to it. Can any one find any call for segregationist theology? There is not one gospel, or one theology, for one race and another for a second race. We have some, and there is plenty of room for more, Negro theologians. But they are all deriving their ideas of God and Christ and the doctrinal concepts of Christianity from the same source book, the Bible. Their contribution to the knowledge about God and His dealings with man (whither it is theology) is for all races, not just their own. Theology is called the queen of sciences. Let us not cheapen it or foster the segregation of it.

How Does God Die?

People have talked about God being dead. Our generation is not the first to express such an idea. Atheists have long tried to write an epitaph for God, but they can't get Him to stay in the grave until they finish writing it. Spending their lives in such fruitless endeavor they may be nearly as dangerous. We suspect that projection fades, but the God who is real does not die. He is available to people of the human mind. But God is more logical circles about the "death of God". Nietzsche, for one race and another for a second race. We have some, and there is plenty of room for more, Negro theologians. But they are all deriving their ideas of God and Christ and the doctrinal concepts of Christianity from the same source book, the Bible. Their contribution to the knowledge about God and His dealings with man (whither it is theology) is for all races, not just their own. Theology is called the queen of sciences. Let us not cheapen it or foster the segregation of it.

God can die if He is only a projection of the human mind. But God is more than an idea made by man. It is sad that when that projection fades, but the God who is real does not die. He is available to all who seek Him. And He will be sitting on His throne in the Day of Judgment.
We Must Evangelize

Most of our churches are responding to the current emphasis on the Crusade of the Americas, and they are organizing the local churches to take part in the campaign. The recording of this crusade, however, that every local church ought to evangelize. A certain amount of urgency in this church movement is felt. This is the big year of the American church, and it is supposed to culminate next fall in some sort of major effort. We are aware of the Great Commission and its application to our church at the present time. There may be differences of opinion as to the most suitable or effective method of evangelism for the local situation, in which we find ourselves or imagine that we find ourselves, but we all admit that we must evangelize. It is our business as Christians and as churches. We dare not say otherwise, even though we might say with tongue in cheek.

The other day I read an article in a well-read independent religious journal which started me thinking about our own churches. The sentence is: "Many local churches are clearer about the church's need to evangelize than before. It goes along with a growing realization among us that the churches are not sure that the churches are not sure of the need, that evangelism is a duty. In the first part is along the line of what we have written in the above paragraph, i.e., that evangelism is a duty. In the second half of the statement he is not commenting on whether or not the world feels the need of the gospel. He is saying that the churches are not sure that the world needs evangelizing. In other words, we have lost the feeling that people outside of Christ are lost and need to be saved. This is not a new situation; it has been coming on for generations, but is perhaps more pronounced now than of old. It is a moral decline in the sense that people seem to be losing the feeling that people outside of Christ are lost and need to be saved."
Turning Stones into Bread

How modern is the temptation of turning stones into bread? This was not just a strange temptation of Jesus as He looked forward to His earthy ministry; the same question uppermost in the minds of church planning committees in 1969. Jesus would not put food above salvation; His work was spiritual and not material. But later on when there was need He multiplied the loaves. The church wants to do something big, perhaps to dispense public money for housing, for poverty relief, for various other secular social programs. It is not content to take the weaker, the slower approach to human betterment and redemption. Is it a temptation? The verdict of history will eventually be given. At the moment there seems to be a great deal of energy and excitement. It is a relatively untried path — this teaming up with secular programs in an official way. Some will say it is the church's mission to be big in the eyes of the world so that it is no temptation at all. The church may be wiser in this matter ten years from now — wiser but maybe not a true church. It may not be easy to shift back from secularity to spirituality. Some of the stones-to-bread programs leave precious little room for permeation with the gospel.

Report on the Editor

As indicated in a previous editorial, "Report on the Editor" was sent back to the hospital by his surgeon to attempt to kill with continuous intravenous antibiotics the mild but persistent outbreaks of staph infection. The treatment, continued for nearly four weeks, appeared to be successful. He returned home Wednesday, February 5. During the time in bed he worked fast and got some mobility in the long idle broken leg. Upon leaving the hospital he went back into a walking cast, to be replaced very soon with a brace. This, it is hoped, can be discarded in a few weeks, when normal walking will be allowed, with the bones back to full strength.

The time in the hospital was rewarding in many ways, especially since the patient was otherwise in perfect health. In a private room the working days could be much longer than normal (although there were a few hospital distractions, especially from the San Diego Rev. Alfred Weber, and some review copies or personal library copies that previously had gone untouched were read with varying degree of appreciation). He tried on their content. Much of this background information, hopefully, will make the editor's ministry more fruitful.

The patient appreciated again the faithfulness and tender care of the three shifts of nursing personnel, which all patients everywhere presumably get and perhaps take for granted. He tried to make the duty hours brighter for all the people who came to his room and particularly for the young lady who has a needle in his veins so frequently. A broader view of hospital care as a whole was gained on the morning of release from the hospital. A nurse in the morning took him out of bed. Standing at the window overlooking the parking lot and hospital entrance he saw in the cold pre-dawn nearly seventy cars filled with space and women of all ages in white stockings hurrying to their tasks.

President's Column

It has been some time since I have written an article for the Sabbath Recorder. A person often finds himself so involved with his personal activities that he doesn't do some of the things he should. I guess maybe this might fall into the category of sensitivity, or lack of it.

Many of you have not had the opportunity to be a part of the activities associated with a Commission meeting. Therefore, I would like to share with you just a few thoughts. First of all, the Rev. David Clarke, Don Gray, the Rev. Edgar Wheeler, the Rev. Paul Osborn, Warren Brannon and the Rev. Rev. Wheeler are a great group of men who are giving their best for the Lord and Seventh Day Baptists. It is not an easy week to begin each day at 8:30 a.m., and work till 9:00 or 10:00 p.m. at night, then take some special assignment home to work on for the next day. It does, however, show you what men are made of, especially when they can still show love for their fellowman and love for God even though they become tired from the long days and nights of work. I want to say that these men are made of admirable traits and are dedicated. I am happy to have the opportunity to work with them. These men are trying to be "Sensitive in His Service."

Of course, behind every good man there is a woman. I would like to express my appreciation for the wives that have given their support to these men, one of this group of men. I am also sure that your job was made so much easier because of our efficient secretary, Mrs. Peggy Williams Van Hoven.

When Commission arrived on the scene, another hard-working group was just finishing an equally strenuous week. This was your Planning Committee composed of the Revs. Everett Harris, Rex Zwolinski, Leon Lawton and Alton Wheeler; and Mrs. Gladys Drake. The one day that Commission spends with this group has become increasingly important as we share our problems and concerns. Let us continue to pray for our boards and agencies and those groups, individually, for their time and efforts without so much as a thank you. If you want to be "Sensitive in His Service," let some of these persons know that you appreciate their efforts.

I also feel compelled to say how much we appreciate the wonderful people in Plainfield who are continually sensitive to the cause by opening their homes to us and taking such good care of those who visit our denominational headquarters.

The Commission appreciates all of the support that is being given to them as they try to do your will for the Lord.

Presidential Prayer Breakfast Around the World

The grand ballroom of the plush Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington seems an unlikely place for a prayer meeting but it was to such a meeting that 2,000 members of Washington's government official-dom succeeded in getting invitations for President Nixon's first annual prayer breakfast. Prayers of humility and dependence were uttered by prominent men. The President told the gathering that he was sustained in the difficult role of President by the millions of prayers uttered for him by people across the nation and around the world. Evangelist Billy Graham was the main speaker.

The presidential prayer breakfast has been an annual event since 1952. This year it was for the first time ever been broadcast live over the worldwide facilities of the Armed Force Radio Service to U.S. military men around the world. It was estimated that 99 percent of the troops in Vietnam were listening.

The gathering was sponsored by the Senate and House Prayer Breakfast groups which meet regularly for devotion when Congress is in session.

Nyack Conference Anticipated

Considerable time was devoted by the Commission at its midyear session to hearing of preparations for the annual assembly of Seventh Day Baptists at Nyack Missionary College, Nyack, N. Y., August 10-16, 1969, as presented by Conference President, Leland Bond, and by the Host Committee chairman, Herbert Saunders, of the Plainfield Seventh Day Baptist Church. The group gave hearty approval of the plans under way and authorized the president to continue various program and procedural plans as outlined. The matters of clarification of intent of motions presented at Conference and protocol in the use of resource persons in committee work were referred to President Bond for implementation.

Conference Rotation Confirmed

Future Conference plans were also discussed, especially the anticipated Tercentenary Conference in 1971, in the general proximity of Newport, Rhode Island. The Historical Society was encouraged in plans which it has under way and it was asked through its historian, the Rev. Albert Rogers, to assist the president-elect in making the 1971 Conference a part of the 300th anniversary celebration. An inspiring prospect for this assembly is the meeting of the Seventh Day Baptist Federation during several days prior to that Conference.

Areas for the Conferences of 1972-1975 were proposed and requests for advanced planning are being announced as follows:

- Areas for the Conferences of 1972-1975 were proposed and requests for advanced planning are being announced as follows:
  - 1972—in the Colorado area
  - 1973—in the Southeastern Association area
  - 1974—in the SDB New York State Council area
  - 1975—in the Pacific Coast Association area

It has been observed from statistical records that during the past 19 years the average number of delegates and visitors has been 351 persons and that the total registration of delegates and visitors has been 583. A cordial invitation is extended to all who can possibly arrange to attend the annual session this August, as Seventh Day Baptists are encouraged to cultivate an awareness of being "Sensitive in His Service."

Tours and Such

Family or Church Youth Group

If you are planning to take like millions of other Americans, now that the days are lengthening and the promise of spring is clearer, consider tours of Seventh Day Baptist internecine interest. At Newport, R. I., where the old Seventh Day Baptist meeting house is enclosed in the Newport Historical Society building on Touro Street, renovations are going on. They will resume on March 15 according to Theodore E. Waterbury, director of the society. Seventh Day Baptists are particular welcome as he states, Tuesday through Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Sabbath mornings. They close on holidays and Sundays as well as Sabbath afternoons.

At Plainfield, N. J., the visit the Seventh Day Baptist Building including the library and exhibits of the Seventh Day Baptist Historical Society, the Seventh Day Baptist Center for Ministerial Education, the Publishing House and various denominational offices at 510 Watchung Ave. It is open weekday from 10:00 to 4:30 and on Sabbath afternoons and Sundays by appointment for out-of-town visitors. The Plainfield Seventh Day Baptist Church holds services at 10:00 and 11:00 Sabbath mornings and welcomes visitors, of course. Please call Rev. Herbert E. Saunders, pastor, or Charles H. North, president of the church trustees, for information.

Those who may have special interests are invited to correspond with Rev. Albert N. Rogers, president of the Seventh Day Baptist Historical Society, Box 868, Plainfield, N. J. 07061. Planned tours at Conference time are being scheduled and youth or family groups are especially invited at that time.

BIBLE READING FOR MARCH

Deuteronomy, Joshua, Judges, Ruth

Deuteronomy covers the last months of the Israelites' forty years of nomadic wandering between Egypt and the promised land, Canaan (1:31). Moses now addressed the assembled people in the uplands of Moab, amid its green and fertile fields and pastures, overlooking the Jordan River. In the months (Deut. 1:6-4:40; 5:28, 29-30) he reviewed the Israelites' recent history narrated in Numbers. He taught the laws given in Exodus, Leviticus and Numbers, and urged the people's obedience to God. Moses gave encouragement to Joshua who was to be his successor (ch. 31). Then Moses blessed the people, ascended Mount Nebo for a view of the promised land, and died upon that mountain.

The book of Joshua is shaped after the great spiritual and military leader who successfully led the Israelites in conquering the Canaanites, then spent the rest of his life settling and governing the twelve tribes. The Bible narrative of the conquest, including the burning of Jericho and other cities, is now supported by archeological discoveries revealing Jericho's fallen city walls, charred bricks and timber, and broken household pottery caused by sudden destruction.

The period of the book of Judges was a very unsettled one in Israel's history. The new nation had twelve independent tribes, who repeatedly fell into pagan idolatry, fought civil wars, and were threatened by surging enemies. God raised up a succession of 12 leaders or "judges" to deliver from enemy attacks and lead in times of peace. Judges covers some 300 years of Hebrew history from Joshua's death up to Samuel's time.

The book of Ruth gives a refreshing picture of quiet domestic life during the troubled period of the Judges (Ruth 1:1). Ruth was the great grandmother of King David. From here on Old Testament interest centers mainly around the family of David.

Through this plan we are able to read together as families, congregations and as a denomination. Let us pray that even more people will join us in reading God's Word daily, prayerfully and eagerly in 1969.
Christians are described in Ephesians 2:19 as “fellow citizens with the saints and members of the household of God.” We are citizens of God’s Kingdom as we go about our daily activities in the home, place of business, school and church, as well as in the “eternal life” promised the faithful. Christians likewise are citizens of the state and Paul admonishes us to “be subject to the governing authorities.” We are told not to resist these authorities because they are ordained of God. Yet God is recognized as the higher authority, “for there is no authority except from God” (see Romans 13:1-7).

The Christian is clearly a member of two communities. He has an allegiance to both God and country. At times he has fared well in these two communities with little conflict, but frequently this has not been the case because the demands of the state have been in sharp contrast with the moral and ethical demands of Christ’s Kingdom. Within the soul of every man is the voice of conscience and through conscience he tries to act out God’s will for his life.

Much of the time the Christian finds no conflict between his allegiance to local, state and national law and his obligation to carry out God’s standard of right and wrong as he understands it. Yet there have been times when Christians found themselves caught between commitment to God and duty to state. Christians have suffered persecution, imprisonment, and even death because they saw God as requiring their first allegiance. The early Christians could not worship God as supreme and also worship the emperor as deity. They chose the One, Almighty God and His Son Jesus Christ as having first demand.

Peter and John were ordered to cease teaching in the name of Jesus, their Lord. In good conscience they could not and answered, “We must obey God rather than men” (Acts 5:29). In modern times we would call their action “civil disobedience.”

Civil disobedience is not new. Men have always felt compelled to oppose and peacefully violate laws which seemed unjust, in obedience to conscience or a higher law. Our Baptist forebears in England four hundred years ago acted on the faith in Christ in conflict at times with the civil order. John Bunyan spent many years in prison and Sabbatarian John James was dragged from his pulpit in Bull Steak Alley, London, on Sabbath afternoon of October 19, 1661, accused of treason, tried, judged guilty, and was put to death at Tyburn the next day because of his religious convictions.

In our own day the struggle for racial justice has compelled men stirred by conviction, conscience and passionate concern to oppose and, if the situation seems to justify it, to disobey unjust laws which are degrading and an insult to humanity. Yet today, Peter and John, one does not oppose civil authority without being willing to accept punishment for sake of conscience and allegiance to a higher law of God.

A Christian feels a sense of loyalty to both divine law and civil law. He sees local, state and national laws as being for his good and the good of society. Laws which he does not like demand that he work through peaceful channels of protest and change. He is concerned for law and order with justice. Law and order must be combined with justice which is the object of law, and which we desire in being. He works for changes in the social order, changes which respect the personalities of all men so that all may be treated with equal justice. A respect for God’s law and the demand that God’s Kingdom gives one concern for the welfare of his fellowmen, and at the same time gives a respect for civil law or a desire for its improvement.

THE SABBATH RECORDER

IF THE SALT HAS LOST ITS SAVOR

There are eleven living religions in the world today. Each has its distinctive qualities. Among these is Christianity. Christianity claims to be the most outstanding of all because it is rooted in the death and rising of the Lord.

The history of Christianity has held out a great deal of light to the world through the faith of faithful men who have witnessed to a sin cursed world. By this great witness the world has been greatly blessed. Men have witnessed the power of God unto salvation. Men have had their lives renewed, being washed in the blood of the Lamb.

This was the manifestation of the admonition of the apostle Paul, “That salt . . . is good—just as Christ Himself said, “Salt is good.”

There is, however, the second part of the verse: “If the salt have lost its savor, with what shall it be salted? from thenceforth shall it be good for nothing, but to be cast out.” (Matt. 5:13).

We see great decay in world society. Law and order see the greatest decay in human behavior. This could happen in any barrel of meat which had been put in salt and left for preservation. How does Christianity relate this analogy to the decadent world in which we live? Christianity, like salt in the barrel of meat, has been put in a world in which there were fresh lives — “But, if the salt have lost its savor.”

There are many ways in which the “salt” has lost its savor. We could begin with the great church council of Nicea in which Athanasius lost his life in the name of Christian ambitions. Certain Christians became so self-centered as to hold the savor. They felt their views would make them popes. Let us look at the Biblical counterpart: “That my sons may sit, the one on the right side on the other on the left.” (Matt. 20:16). One of the greatest ways in which Christians lose their savor is by being ambitious of being lords and masters: “That we may sit one on the right side and the other on the left.” (Matt. 20:21).

The time has come when the salt needs to regain its savor. We could begin with the great church council of Nicea in which Athanasius lost his life in the name of Christian ambitions. Certain Christians became so self-centered as to hold the savor. They felt their views would make them popes. Let us look at the Biblical counterpart: “That my sons may sit, the one on the right side on the other on the left.” (Matt. 20:16). One of the greatest ways in which Christians lose their savor is by being ambitious of being lords and masters: “That we may sit one on the right side and the other on the left.” (Matt. 20:21). The time has come when the salt needs to regain its savor.

FEBRUARY 17, 1969
A good spirited meeting of the Board of Managers of the Seventh Day Baptist Missionary Society was held on Sunday afternoon, January 26, 1969, in the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist Church in Westerly, R. I. There were nineteen members and visitors present. The meeting was called to order by President Loren Osborn and opened with prayer by the Rev. Paul Maxson.

The report of the treasurer and executive vice-president were received and approved. The final report of the director of evangelism, the Rev. Leon R. Lawton, was received and approved, along with an expression of appreciation from the Board of Managers for his twelve and one-half fruitful years of service as he has been related to the board. We wish him Godspeed in his new position as pastor of the Denver Seventh Day Baptist Church where he is to begin services as of February 1, 1969. The executive vice-president expressed his own personal appreciation for the valuable assistance of Pastor Lawton in home field work and the rich fellowship in Christ that has been experienced as he has worked with Pastor Lawton, first as missionary in Jamaica and then as director of evangelism.

The report of the Home Field Committee was received by the Rev. S. Kenneth Davis, chairman. A call to serve as evangelist on the home field on a project basis was extended to Pastor lawton on a part-time basis.

A recommendation was approved to request Miss Connie Coon to continue her services as assistant to Pastor Bass for another year, September 1, 1969, to August 31, 1970, with an increase in salary and travel expense appropriation. This has been a favorable relationship toward the work being done there.

The recommendation was approved to extend to Pastor Soper in Jamaica and then as director of the Jamaica Conference Executive Committee, the Rev. Edgar Wheeler. Among other matters it was noted that four more African ministerial students have been accepted at Liskuba Bible Institute at Blantyre, Malawi, bringing the total to nine students. This school is located located near the home and office of the Rev. David Pearson who offers distinctive Seventh Day Baptist training to these ministerial students. It was reported that effective workers are in demand in time of sickness. Thank God for restorations and for blessings in disguise.

A communication from Conference President Leland Bond was presented which reported that the part the Missionary Board might have on Conference program in August at Nyack, N. Y. It was voted to request President Loren Osborn to appoint a committee on Conference program. He appointed the members of the Executive Committee with the addition of the chairmen of the standing committees of the board.

The executive vice-president presented a letter dated January 15, 1969, from Conference Secretary Alton Wheeler concerning the new Constitution of the Missionary Society which had been adopted in September 1968. Consideration had previously been given to this communication by the Executive Committee. It was voted by the board that a letter be sent to Pastor Bass by President Osborn, reviewing the objectives and the reasons for the change, be sent to all Seventh Day Baptist Boards and Agencies.

The meeting was adjourned at 4:45 p.m. with a closing prayer by Pastor Paul S. Burdick.

Our Prayer Corner

"Men ought always to pray and not to faint.

"But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast closed the door, pray to thy Father which is in heaven. "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

Suggestions for Prayer This Week

Pray for:

1) In thanksgiving for answered prayer in relation to health. Quite a number of our pastors and leaders (as well as others) have had sicknesses of a few days or a few weeks and are recovered. Those who knew prayed definitely for God's grace in healing and for His presence in time of sickness. Thank God for restorations and for blessings in disguise.

2) For the theological students entering new phases of their education and serving churches on a part-time basis.

3) For the students not yet in seminary who are making the most of the preparation that colleges can offer and are finding fruitful ways to serve the Lord and extend the Sabbath truth.

4) For spiritual growth of recently converted people in our churches through pastors' classes, special Bible studies, and challenging avenues of service in the church.

Suggestions for intercessory prayer are solicited from all who see the need. Send them to the editor or to the Conference president so that they may be raised in intercession for the people who most need to be upheld at the throne of grace.

Religion Helped Pueblo Crew Through Captivity

Religion was an important factor in the lives of the members of the Pueblo crew during their captivity by North Korea, according to a report to the American churches by Rear Admiral James W. Kelly, who had been a Baptist and the Navy chief of chaplains.

Kelly summed up the religious experience of the Pueblo crew during the 11 months of their captivity: “Every effort to take away their faith only caused them to move in the direction of God. Every effort to subvert their faith only caused them to re-affirm it.”

But the situation in captivity was described by one of the men, “all we had left was religion.”

Kelly reported, made it most difficult for the men to practice their religion. They had no Bibles or religious materials. No worship services were permitted. They were reprimanded for thanking God for their food.

In spite of this the men worked up a list of the books of the Bible, managed to recall the words of the 23rd Psalm and to sing them through, and to piece together the Ten Commandments.

According to the report, the men prayed openly before one another, although they had to prove that they were being seen in acts of worship by their captors.

The Pueblo crew reported that they were told, “The Russians shot God down with their missiles and despisers were held up to scorn by the North Koreans. “The Pueblo men were told that every cross in Korea was an antenna for sending espionage messages,” Kelly said.

In response to the desire for worship services following their release, both Protestant and Catholic mass were conducted for the men on the day of their release. An Army Jewish Rabbi was made available for the two Jewish members of the Pueblo crew.

The following day a joint Protestant-Catholic Christmas Eve service was held for the crew. Every man attended.

The Navy chaplain chief reported that several Pueblo men who had been indifferent to religion vowed that “it is going to be different now.”

Pastoral Change

The Los Angeles church is reported to have secured a new pastor. Rev. and Mrs. Leland Davis will be moving to Los Angeles in June to take over the leadership of the church and to share in the home mission work sponsored by the California churches. Mr. Davis has led the Schenectady, N. Y., church into new life and growth since his return from the Guyana mission field. The Los Angeles church has been carrying on without a pastor for several months.

Lesson Scripture: Mark 8:27-37

Dr. King and Economic Justice

Never before in the history of mankind have so many people heard the Christian apocalyptic message explained and described with such emotion in such a short time—due to the magic of modern communication media. Kings, presidents, and statesmen have been eulogized for days at a time; but never before has a member of a minority group, without wealth or rank, been so highly eulogized and worshiped in such a short period of time.

One aspect of Dr. King's efforts was noticeably absent or scarcely mentioned in the eulogies. This was his newly conceived effort—symbolized in the Poor People’s Campaign—to turn from racial equality, as such, to economic justice and economic equality for all poor people, whites and blacks alike. For there are poor among Puerto Ricans, American Indians, Mexicans, and those living in Appalachia. Dr. King’s outlook was not black racist—it was wide enough to include all who are in need.

During the 13 years Dr. King was in the public eye his ideas, emphasis, and program developed through a series of steps—all nonviolent.

James Baldwin, in the balance in Dr. King’s newest emphasis. The militants were challenging the efficacy of nonviolence as a method; Dr. King firmly believed in it. The black nationalists were challenging integration; Dr. King believed in it and was willing to include the white man in the Poor People’s Campaign. The black power advocates were crying for more economic and political advantages; Dr. King wanted this too, but he had to prove that they could be obtained by nonviolent confrontation.

King Memorials to Delta Ministry

Contributions to the Delta Ministry of the National Council of Churches in Mississippi have been received from the churches in Hawaii, California, and New York in memory of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

The Dutch churches, which had voted to ship services to the Delta Ministry this year, added another $30,000 following the tragedy in Memphis.
A memorial gift of $5,000 had previously been received from the Danish churches through the World Council of Churches’ Division of Inter-Church Aid. And from Kenya came a letter the same week from the National Christian Council transmitting $200 of freewill offerings received at the Delta Ministry.

Contributions from overseas churches in 1967, totalling $112,000, came from Australia, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, New Zealand, Switzerland and the United Kingdom.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES

NEW AUBURN, WIS.—We enjoy nothing the signs of progress of other churches. Perhaps they would like to hear something of us. Three events of the fall are considered very important: (1) the ordination of our Pastor, Edward Sanford, at the Semiannual Meeting here in October; (2) the purchase of good used books held even at seventeen below zero. (3) the end of the indebtedness on the new church building. This was pinpointed by the burning of the mortgage at a ceremony Sabbath afternoon of Semiannual Meeting by the Rev. Don Sanford. This former pastor was responsible for much thought, labor and advice in building the structure, and we were happy that he could attend.

In December the Ladies’ Aid remembered each of five servicemen here, by sending a package of books, as supplying good, reading material. The evening of December 20 a very nice Christmas program was enjoyed, most of the Sabbath School children participating. Special evening was spent at Sabbath School during the fall, combined with a white Christmas gift netted $50 and was sent to missions in Burma and Malawi.

The heavy snows and below zero weather in January made normal church attendance difficult, but services were held even at seventeen below zero. On Sabbath afternoon for several weeks a group has met to discuss the book Tell It as It Is. The Bible study for outreach and witness to others should be of great personal value. At the annual meeting, reports of the past year and the budget of the next year were considered. We were pleased that in our O.W.M. giving last year the goal set as reached and exceeded by more than hundred dollars.

We are looking forward to being host to the Northern Great Lakes Association of Seventh-day Baptists (union of the North Central and Northern Associations) on June 21 and 22. Right now, with four months ahead, would be a good time to add a word of the topic to be evaluated at that time: “Sense of Service” (S.O.S.).

—Correspondent

LITTLE GENESEE, N. Y.—The young student pastor, Harold King, encourages the Bible reading program and prints the following invitation in the church bulletin:

Are you reading the Bible through in the order of its events this year like the denomination has suggested? You are all invited to come join your pastor and his wife on Wednesday night (7 P.M.) at the parsonage in the reading of the chapters of that day and look at what the Bible has to say to us today. There will be plenty of coffee, tea, and milk on hand also. If you can’t join us, then why not read and study the chapters for that day with your family?”

NORTONVILLE, KANS. — From the February church bulletin came the information that February is Tract Month. The folder carried two stories of how tracts that might appear to have been wasted, lost or discarded still found their mark and helped to transform lives. Each Sabbath morning at Nortonville there is or has been an emphasis on Seventh Day Baptists literature. On the fifteenth the special program was a set of 100 slides entitled “Tracts Bring Results.” Scheduled for the last Sabbath of the month was the new filmstrip, “Your Tract Society at Work.”

An urgent call for eight and a half months of concentrated prayer has been issued in behalf of the United States Congress on Evangelism by its two key men, Evangelist Billy Graham, honorary chairman, and Dr. Oswald C. J. Hoff­man, chairman of the 52-man National Committee, joined in the call to Amer­ican churches and Christians to under­gird the September 8-13 Congress with intercession. It will be held in Minnea­polis, Minnesota, and will bring together 8,000 delegates representing more than 100 denominations. They will be one­third lay men and women, one-third parish pastors, and one-third evangelists, educators, theological students, executive, etc.

The Call for Prayer includes these paragraphs:

“The urgency and need for a mighty moving of the Spirit of God in our nation and across the world is impressed upon us in every newscast. Our daily papers compel us to realize that we are at a crossroad, and that our choice is either Christ or chaos.

“What assistance can be given to the American home? How can the local church be mobilized to reach the com­munity for Christ? What is the Scrip­tural answer to the cultural, social, and moral upheaval of our day? How can the needy individual be convinced that Jesus Christ is the answer? We must have answers in our generation.

“Church leaders from all across Amer­ica are urgently requesting that you pray during these months ahead with an over­whelming faith that there shall be a spiritual awakening in our time.”
