The Deity of Jesus
By Leon M. Maltby

There are times when we should emphasize the humanity of Jesus, for He was truly human in many respects. He was hungry when He went without food, tired when He went without rest. He was tempted in all points as we are, except that He never yielded to temptation. When He was crucified He bled like any other man. When the eternal Son of God took on human flesh at the incarnation, He took on our infirmities and our physical and emotional attributes. His humanity cannot be questioned and should be spoken of when people seem to think of Christ in the flesh as being completely different from us.

There are times, and perhaps many more times, when we should emphasize the deity of Jesus. He came to save people from their sins, and no man can do that. While here on earth He was as truly the Son of God as before He came, after He returned to the Father, and when He comes again to judge the world. The Bible clearly teaches this. One expression in the New Testament that sums this up is the expression “Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today, and for ever” (Heb. 13:8).

One of the most familiar prophecies about the coming of the Messiah (which is used every Christmas and is featured in Handel's "Messiah") is Isaiah 9:6. The child to be born would be called, among other things, "the mighty God." If the other names apply to Jesus this one does also. From such a lofty starting point we do well to study the fulfillment of the prophecy and see how many things Jesus did or will yet do which only God can do. In a materialistic age we who are Christians rise above the common level. We may not understand everything, but we live by faith and have resources that derive from our faith in Jesus. Bishop H. D. Kimmel has gathered together some Scripture that we ought to bear in mind when people question the deity of Jesus.

God laid down His life .......... 1 John 3:16
Jesus laid down His Life .......... John 15:13
God is our Savior ............... Isa. 45:21
Jesus is our Savior .......... Titus 2:13
God is the Rock .............. Psalms 18:31
Jesus is our Rock .......... 1 Cor. 10:4
God is the GREAT I AM .......... Exodus 3:14
Jesus is the GREAT I AM .......... John 8:58
God is our CREATOR .......... Gen. 1:1
Jesus is our CREATOR .......... John 1:3-10
God only treads the waves .......... Job 9:8
Jesus walks on the water .......... John 6:19
God only can forgive sins .......... Isa. 43:25
Jesus forgave sins .......... Mark 2:10
God is the Almighty .......... Gen. 17:1
Jesus is the Almighty .......... Rev. 1:8

The New Testament Scriptures show why Isaiah under inspiration could speak of Jesus as "the mighty God."
Independent Thinking

Seventh Day Baptists pride themselves in their church organization which allows them to think independently. We like to say that in our denomination the beliefs, traditions, standards, the good, bad, etc., do not come down from the top as in some other denominations — even those in similar faith — but do come up from the bottom. The local church is independent in large measure from the association and the General Conference. But independence is not just for the local church, but also for the individual as well. Every man interprets the Bible for himself — honestly, it is hoped, and with the help of his fellow Christians of present or past years. He is foolish not to avail himself of the fruit of other men’s minds, but the decisions are his.

Not only does the individual member assert his individuality in matters of Christian faith and practice, but also in the conduct of church worship and program. In a democratic local church he has an obligation to express his well-considered views on matters of church policy and program as well. One noted that the term is not specifically mentioned in the Bible. But the church, as well as the denomination, must operate according to the will of the majority. Therefore, the individual having voiced his opinion and campaigned for it, recognizes the vote of the majority, assuming that he has exercised good judgment. Only in areas of clearly defined principle does one stand out against his brethren when he thinks they are wrong, for he needs the church as much as the church needs him.

A denominational editor reading church bulletins and corresponding with church leaders observes that in the case of local churches, some good, some bad. One cannot be quite sure of the direction we are going in our church life because there are always contradictory tendencies and what is in the ascendency one year may not be the next. While boasting of our individuality we have quite a tendency to conform to what we think everybody else is doing. We conform to fleeting fashions in church matters almost as much as in matters of dress and hair styles.

A few years ago one of our pastors made a study of the Jewish Passover and attempted to educate his people by conducting a service communion in same in all the same manner of the Passover supper that resulted in the institution of the Lord’s Supper. Other pastors followed suit with less preparation. It came near to setting a pattern quite contrary to the simplicity of the communion service that our forefathers thought was in accordance with New Testament practice.

Rather recently at least two churches have been experimenting with a Sabbath Eve program that includes a supper together with one or two activities before the meal and two or more after the meal. At this point it shows individuality and independent thinking. It could be picked up like a fashion without thorough evaluation. This is the direction we are going for our church. It is yet to be seen whether Sabbathkeeping is improved by the concentration of more scheduled activity at the beginning of the day and probably less in the last half of the day.

Innovations may be good or may not. It depends on how well they are thought out and how they succeeded in promoting the chief function of the church in making people’s lives more Christ-centered and Christ-self-centered. Following the Leader (Christ) is our business. It takes some praying, some Bible study, and some historical perspective to know His will and what will forward His work.

People Are Interesting

The editor and his wife recently spent a short time in Florida on a spring vacation. They found the automobile trip south into the warmer climate very enjoyable. There are sights to see along the way and many things in Florida to catch the eye (and the money) of the tourist. Of course, people want a taste of pleasure, of Florida fruit and Florida sun. In late March the weather cooperated in this sampling of more leisurely living.

We were impressed again this time, as before, that what makes a vacation really enjoyable is not the sights beheld or the fun of the experience, but the people with whom one is associated. The strongest memories brought back, the greatest blessings experienced, are related to the folks we saw at church or in other places where we made contact with life. We entered into some sad experiences of close friends and we made some new acquaintances that seemed fruitful. This entailed being in the company of so much more satisfying than the beauties of animate or inanimate nature. We spent time on some of the finest beaches of the world. We visited a remarkable re-creation of an African safari in lion country. We were transported to Japan in a realistic reproduction of a Japanese fishing village. But even here it was fellowship with the Japanese people on duty that made Marco Polo Park memorable for us.

People are more interesting than things, especially when we are trying to be interesting ourselves. Not everyone responds to a warm smile or to conversation about religious subject; but the response we get as we brush elbows with people is largely in proportion to our outgoing spirit. It reminds us of the countless opportunities we miss when we allow ourselves to be withdrawn. One does not have to take a vacation to meet interesting people, but when we are away from our daily round of exacting duties we soon begin to appreciate our need for fellowship and thus our need to extend it. The ability of something to contribute to life around him. As he gives he receives a blessing.

Our Prayer Corner

Suggestions for Prayer This Week

Pray for:

1) God’s blessing on the preparations for and participation in the biennial Ministers Conference at Battle Creek April 28-May 4.
2) The extra financial needs of our world work and the expenses of the delegates to the SDBWF next summer.
3) The increased use of the May 1 special issue of the Sabbath Recorder and the ministry of the regular issues.
4) A greater commitment to the individual call to evangelize.
Conference Publicity

General Conference in General

An overall view of General Conference, this year and any year, holds several high points that are well to emphasize: What is General Conference? Where is it held every year? Who goes? How long does it last? What happens there? These are a few of the questions to ask.

A recent church bulletin that came in the mail titled its short article on General Conference, “Plan Ahead.” This is excellent advice for nearly everything one undertakes, but in planning to attend the sessions of the annual get-together, looking ahead is always important. It’s important to plan ahead if the delegates hope to derive the most possible personal benefit; so that they will know what to look for; so that details will be taken care of well ahead of time, ensuring that the mind is at ease and receptive.

The president and other officers have been working for at least two years to make this both an enjoyable and a meaningful experience for the delegates and a stimulus to the denominational programs. It is up to the persons attending to make the most of these opportunities so presented. There will be the usual hard, behind-the-scenes committee work from which stems the progress of business for Conference consideration. Plan ahead to work with the committee of your major interest.

There will be addresses and sermons by talented, inspirational leaders that you will not want to miss. Plan ahead to take them all in. There will be a music program for the benefit of the listener as well as performer, that will make Conference a “symphony of sound.” Plan ahead to be there at all possible.

There will be old friends to greet and new friends to meet. So plan ahead to spend your time most pleasantly. And there will be breakfasts, receptions, banquets, exhibits, reports, and many other activities connected with the annual sessions. Plan ahead to be there, at Amherst, Massachusetts, Sunday evening, August 8—and plan ahead to stay all week; plan ahead to participate.

World Mission of Reconciliation

A Five-year Project of the Baptists World Alliance

Goal—Baptists working together for world reconciliation through Jesus Christ.

Call to Commitment—As communists of misunderstanding, fear, and hate cleave our world into hostile segments, we boldly proclaim our faith that Jesus Christ is the one hope of reconciliation.

Remarkable spiritual victories in many countries challenge us to take them on; to intensify our endeavors to fulfill the mission to which Christ calls us.

We acknowledge that some of today’s problems and crises result from our failure to proclaim and practice the gospel. We confess that we have not always loved others as Christ loves us, and have often been guilty of inconsistencies with the gospel we preach.

We, therefore, seek divine forgiveness and genuine spiritual renewal. We commit ourselves to the privilege and responsibility of being ambassadors for Christ seeking to bring about reconciliation between man and God, and between man and man.

We appeal to the Baptists of the world to unite our resources in a World Mission of Reconciliation through Jesus Christ, dedicating ourselves:

1) to seek spiritual renewal through repentance, prayer, and Bible study,

2) to express the love of God in positive, practical ministries of reconciliation,

3) to proclaim in word and deed through creative, relevant approaches, the gospel of Jesus Christ to all men,

4) to motivate believers to discover, develop, and use their God-entrusted abilities in dynamic witnessing,

5) to lead new believers immediately into warm Christian fellowship and active service for Christ and men,

6) to seek the transforming of society by challenging all people, individually and corporately, to apply Biblical principles to personal conduct and social relationships.

Daytona Beach Church Burns Mortgage

March 13 was the day for the burning of the remaining small mortgage on the Daytona Beach church which had been acquired by the faith one month previously. It was voted at the annual meeting in January to try to lift the mortgage this year. A search of the records revealed that the mortgage was recorded in November on March 13, 1932. It was decided to make an all-out effort to raise the money in a few weeks and to celebrate on the anniversary date. It could also include a reenacting of the ground-breaking ceremony on March 19, 1933.

For a number of years the church had felt that it could budget only $100 per year for mortgage reduction, but special gifts had been applied. Loyalty ran high as the anniversary plans progressed so that by March 13 more than enough money had come in. During the same period there was also a special well-publicized campaign to pay off an unbudgeted termite control bill. It too was oversubscribed.

March 13 at Daytona Beach was more than a mortgage burning. It was a great day of reviewing past history and looking forward to the future. People gathered from far and wide.

Featured in the morning service was the paying off of the mortgage. A check was presented by Winfield Randolph, church treasurer, to Clarence Rogers, president. The mortgage, $2000, had been handed over the mortgage which was then burned in the presence of many of the people who had responded so faithfully in the campaign to clear the church from debt.

The afternoon service was held outside the church building. It included a well-documented dramatization of the reorganization of the church, which took place under the pastorate of the Rev. Elizabeth Randolph and the presidency of Dr. M. Josie Rogers. The Rev. Miss Randolph was not able to be present, but Dr. Josie Rogers, now confined to a wheelchair, was able to take part by reading from the record book. In the dramatization Lyle Davis represented Dr. Rogers in the president’s chair. Pastor Marion Van Horn took the part of Pastor Elizabeth Randolph. Anne Trede, daughter of Elder Clifford Trede, took the part of deaconess Mabel Main. H. O. Burdick represented Bothe C. Davis, president of Alfred University in a message of cheer. Clarence Rogers of Salem, W. Va., 1971 president of the Memorial Fund, represented the 1933 president, speaking of the progress of the work, in the dramatization and later in the reenactment of the ground-breaking.

In the simulated meeting the motion of C. M. Rogers was read: “I move we take all necessary steps for completing the organization of an independent local Seventh Day Baptist Church at Daytona Beach, Florida.” For the church, which by this time people recognized as the original members of the church (which was started back in the 1880’s) and reorganized in 1932. The unique position of this resort-area church was emphasized in the following motion from the record book:

“I move that the organization of this church shall be such as would be created by tourists who wish a church organization here, were there no resident members at all, and that the articles of the Constitution be interpreted according to all members of other Seventh Day Baptist Churches, who spend a month or more in Florida, who comply with its simple provisions, being granted all rights and privileges of resident members during and for the year following their sojourn in Florida.”

Pledges in 1932 were a little more than enough to purchase the building so the surplus being set aside for constructing the building. A loan was solicited from the Memorial Fund and ground was broken, as mentioned above, on March 19, 1933.

Probably no Seventh Day Baptist church in the United States has so many members and supporting friends in its program, for it year after year draws its congregation largely from the northern churches. Many winter residents find a greater place of service at Daytona Beach than at home.

There’s no weapon half so mighty
As the working of prayer
Not a broader field of service
Than the ministry of Prayer.

THE SABBATH RECORDER

APRIL 17, 1971

World representatives to the federation will also take part in the Seventh Day Baptist General Conference (USA) sessions at Amherst, Mass., Aug. 29-31, as the tercentennial of the first church of this faith in America (1671, Newport, R. I.) is celebrated. Dr. Stephen Thornburg, Pebble Beach, Calif., is the president of the General Conference.

Missionary Society officers elected for the new year are: Loren G. Osborn, Concord, N. H., president; Elston H. Van Horn, Westerly, L. secretary; Leon R. Lawton, Pawcatuck, Conn., executive vice-president; Everett T. Harris, Westerly, R. I., consultant; Karl G. Stilman, Westerly, R. I., treasurer. Two college-age youth were appointed to the thirty-eight-member Board of Managers.

President's Statement

Much has happened during the year past that is worthy of note, but to try to outline all the actions and developments of our mission-oriented work would take too long. What we are able to report highlights is directed to the quarterly Missionary Reporter that carries comprehensive summaries. You, and all our friends, are urged to read the Reporter carefully at each publication, as it carries the minutes of the regular meetings and reports of the Board. It is a must for all interested committees involved with specific fields.

Probably most notable in the administrative sense is the transfer of reins from the former executive vice-president, now the consultant in the office, Everett Harris, to the Rev. Leon Lawton. The change was made so smoothly that little outside notice was taken. It probably only those two gentlemen realize the hard work that went into exchange of duties. The consultant has provided invaluable assistance in background and counsel as well as ably filling the executive role when Mr. Lawton was on extended field trips. This is one of the many forward-looking developments, having capable back-up personnel at home base so that the executive vice-president can follow up the leads and needs of the entire Missionary Society's projects.

The consultant has provided invaluable service to the Board of Directors and the executive vice-president attended a youth conference representing campuses all across the United States '70 and his report and advice to others attending was a most encouraging sign in this generation. Our youth are making their voices heard; are taking their stand; are attracting favorable reaction not only from their contemporaries but the "establishment" as well. It is time that our work is seen as the final basis for Christian faith and life. "A deep love for the Bible has been thrown back to the Biblical message as the final basis for Christian faith and life. "A deep love for the Bible has emerged, which has made the deep and uncovered needs for Holy Scriptures even greater," he continued.

Enumerating new openings last year Mr. Smaadahl said he has contact with thirteen translation projects including four in Yugoslavia, three in the Soviet Union, two in Czechoslovakia and one in Bulgaria, Hungary and Poland. While the term production in Czechoslovakia "very limited and irregular" up until 1968, a total of 122,000 Scriptures were produced in Bucharest, Bratislava and Rumania during the last two years.

There was no production in Rumania prior to 1967, but since then 100,000 Bibles were printed in Bucharest. Currently 40,000 New Testaments are under production in Rumania.

A production of 50,000 New Testaments is expected in Bulgaria where translation work has been finished in the foreseeable future, the United Bible Societies secretary said.

Mr. Smaadahl said that the 750,000 copies of the Scriptures which were made available, in different ways, in Eastern European countries in 1969 might seem slight in light of the 350 million inhabitants. However, compared to the situation five years ago, it is a real "break-through for Bible work in the Communist countries."

MEMORY TEXT

"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting" (Psa. 139:23, 24).
Our Aloneness
By Everett T. Harris

(As a Scriptural background read Galatians 6:1-10)

To the Galatians the apostle Paul wrote, “For every man shall bear his own burden.” He had just admonished these Christian brethren to bear one another’s burdens and thus fulfill the law of Christ. Then he adds almost as an afterthought that everyone “ought to be as we are called to bear his own personal burden.

Friends and loved ones may be ever so sympathetic and kind but finally everyone must bear his own suffering or pain. One by one we must decide to take up the cross and follow Jesus. No one can decide for another what one day will come before the throne of God in judgment. Whether willingly or unwillingly every man does have to bear his own burden.

Whatever may be our own private load, we are expected to carry it and not to grumble. Every other man along the way has something to carry, too. We are apt to look at someone enviously and think to ourselves, “That man is lucky that he doesn’t have to carry what I do.” But we deceive ourselves. That other man may be carrying more than we are but he may carry it more gracefully. Or perhaps he has found a source of secret strength outside himself by which he carries his load with ease or at least in silence.

The apostle Paul recalled, a “thorn in the flesh” but we never learn what it was that he had to bear. Some have speculated that it was “near blindness or some secret ailment.” Whatever it was, he kept it to himself and did not ask for anyone’s pity. Paul wrote concerning this thorn in the flesh, “I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me. And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness.” So, the apostle Paul bore his own burden in silence, drawing on the grace and strength God gave him.

That which is important to note in these matters is the fact that all our aloneness in burden-bearing is with a purpose — to draw us to God. God, our Father, wants His children to lean on Him. “Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him.” He wants us to turn to Him and let Him carry the greater part of the burden.

Let us think further of the loneliness of every living soul as we go about this business of carrying our own burdens; what causes our loneliness and what may be the cure. Let us notice first the aloneness of the soul in bearing responsibility.

Everyone has some responsibility — his job, his family, perhaps his own life to live before God. It is recalled that in peace times there was a lightboat just off the Waterford Coast near Race Rock. Men lived on this boat the year around and kept the light. If they had failed just once to keep the light going there would have been a crashing of ships and would have been a loss of life — for incoming and outgoing ships depended on that light.

Sometimes we fail to realize our responsibility as lighthouse keepers. Followers of Christ are called ones of the world” and admonished “Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven. We may deplore the fact that we have a responsibility toward others as examples but we cannot escape the results. We cannot help the way others will look to us even if we would rather they did not.

Sometimes a conscientious person will feel that he cannot carry the weight of some responsibility, work, all alone. He feels like complaining as did Moses of old, that the burden was too great. But God did not intend for Moses to carry all the responsibility. His father-in-law, Jethro, advised him to divide up the work and let others carry a share of it. A highly revered pastor once advised a younger pastor as he began his services in a church, “It is far better to get ten men to work in the church than it is for the pastor to try to do the work of ten men.” So it is that we are not expected by our heavenly Father to carry the burden of some work all alone. He has given His Holy Spirit to guide us and He has promised His strength to sustain us. The aloneness of bearing responsibility is intended to drive us to Him. “For in Him we will always receive strength for the day — and we ought to give Him the glory.

Thinking further of the loneliness of each soul, the consecration of the soul to some high purpose brings one to lonely heights. “The man that God has touched is always a being apart” said Renan. Jesus called each one of his disciples to come apart from the world. He still calls us today. “Consecrate your lives to my service, renounce the crowd — the world — and choose the lonely road with me.”

The soul that is consecrated to God must know what loneliness is — when the heart and soul are yearning for something and cannot be satisfied. Cried the psalmist, “As the hart panteth after the waterboats, so panteth my soul after Thee, O God!” — God in His holiness and splendor — in His tenderness and loving-kindness. Sometimes we are afraid of this loneliness but if He is to be sought and found and if life is to be consecrated to His high purposes we must not shrink from being alone with Him nor from the aloneness of that experience.

When Moses came down from the mountaintop where he had spoken with God his face shone so that the people were afraid of him until he wore a veil. His tent was pitched to the east of the tabernacle and aside from Aaron and his sons and the ark of the covenants he was afraid of him until he wore a veil. Moses was rich in companionship with God. The burden of sin drives us farther and farther from God unless we can come before the throne of God in judgment. There are wonderful compensations for the aloneness of that experience.

And then, let us consider the aloneness brought about by sin. To be estranged from God and our fellowmen because of some wrong deed is a terrible kind of aloneness. To be in the outer darkness where God is not; to be filled with remorse for an evil deed for which it is too late to make amends is one idea of hell on earth.

The burden of sin drives us farther and farther from God unless we can come back through the forgiving grace of Christ. And so, even here we see a purpose in aloneness. The sinner is truly and terribly alone of the nearness of God to comfort him.

THE SABBATH RECORDER
MINISTERIAL EDUCATION—Rev. E. Zweibel

We Need Ministers

A quick survey of Seventh Day Baptist churches as of this writing shows that we have six hundred churches without on-the-job pastorate. Two ordained men who are serving now in partial retirement, and are quite sure to be retired within five years, otherwise, will retire within that time.

Within ten years, eight of our active men will be near or beyond retirement age. Within fifteen years, there will be five more. In other words, just for our established churches, we will need at least six hundred, and as many as thirty-two ministers within fifteen years.

There will be new churches and there will be openings in our boards and agency work that call for persons educated in religious work that call for persons educated in religious education.

Kabak, a teacher of religious education at Montclair, New Jersey, it was my privilege to have a conference with, any who give evidence of having a desire to learn more of the Bible story with a prayer for wisdom. She wanted to make sure that her youngesters understood the word, “wisdom.”

“How can I tell me what ‘wisdom’ means?”

After a short period of silent thought, a lad suggested: “I do not know what ‘wisdom’ means, but I have a Jewish friend. I’ll ask him.”

Witnessing on Florida Beaches

Fort Lauderdale in recent years has been crowded during Easter vacation with thousands and thousands of thrill-seeking college students. Daytona Beach runs a close second. Most of the 100,000 students who consider it the “thing” to congregate on these beaches have something other than religious experiences in mind.

Christians, to the number 2,500, from thirty-five states in several evangelistic student organizations have seen this as a challenging opportunity to witness for Christ — challenging because of the need is high school is almost at an end and again this year, there were 350 I-V students (Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship) who went to Ft. Lauderdale to witness effectively, beginning April 4.

Others went to Daytona Beach for a similar ministry. Campus Crusade for Christ sent students to four popular beaches (including Bermuda) but concentrated on Daytona Beach, with about 1,500 trained students participating.

Among the witnessing groups at Daytona Beach was a Seventh Day Baptist team directed by Mynor Soper. We will be looking for reports of the experience of the well-chosen, well-motivated and well-trained student evangelists.

How We Talk

Isn’t it strange that every day in New York City 43 million phone calls are made . . . yet most New Yorkers never call their own neighbors from a Miss Kabak, a teacher of religious education in a Roman Catholic school nearby. She revealed this incident:

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION—Soc. David S. Clarke

Christian Family Life Resources

By the time you read this the Christian Education keyperson of your church and the pastor or clerk will have received materials suggested for the observance of the Christian Family Sabbath, May 8 or 15. That week is the national Christian Family Week, recommended by your Conference Planning Committee.

We are happy to recommend the materials presented by the board’s Family Life Committee under the theme of “The Family Builds for a Responsible Maturity.” Mrs. Frank (Jean Palmer) Snyder and Mrs. Nelson (Amanda Stevens) Snyder are the co-chairmen of the committee. Mrs. Francis Boucher, Mrs. William Thompson, Pastor Harmon Dickinson, and Dr. H. O. Burdick are the members of the issue-oriented committee. You can imagine that with the radical changes in thinking about human sexuality, family relations, social standards, etc., that meetings of this committee are vigorous in dialog and thought-probing. We pray that our shared presentations lead us all to want to be most wholesome person, Jesus, the Christ.

The message by Ruth Bucher of the Richburg church brings us a litany for challenge for honesty and wholeness in Christian living, both within the family and throughout life. Kathryn Thompson of the Hope church has a sunset scene that suggests a daily living that will inspire family and church groups. Resources available from either this board or other agencies are partially listed at the end of the sheets. Write this board if you desire information in family ministries.

Youth Pre-Con Directors

Mr. and Mrs. Garth Warner of the Verona church are to direct the Youth Pre-Con to be held at Amherst, Aug. 4-8, 1971. The Warners have been professionally related to youth through public school teaching and counselling.

They have a fine family, and they are all active in the Verona church’s ministry.

Youth from ages 15 to 20 years (or who have completed the 9th grade) should finalize as many plans as possible for attending Youth Pre-Con at “UMASS” in Amherst this August. With the Seventh Day Baptist World Federation and the 300th Anniversary of Seventh Day Baptists in America this promises to be an exciting experience — especially with Hark and Mayola directing Youth Pre-Con.

Social Documentary Films Available Free for Churches

Modern Talking Pictures Service has issued a brochure describing a group of free-loan documentaries concerned with the vital problems facing America today.

This brochure, “America’s Problems and Challenges,” includes films on environment, delinquency, drugs, health, nutrition, medicine, safety and community action. The films not only cover the many problems confronting Americans, but offer solutions as well.

Keiper Insurance in cooperation with the National Coordinating Council on Drug Abuse Education and Information offers a new 27-minute documentary on community drug abuse action, “It Takes a Lot of Help.” Unlike most, it does not dwell on the other side, but expose the horrors of specific drugs, instead it offers comprehensive guidelines for groups and individuals concerned with developing constructive programs to combat local drug abuse. Lorne Greene is the narrator and the music is by the Beatles.

In “Drivin’ & Drinkin’” the cold, hard facts about drinking are presented in a manner psychologically suited to teenagers. This 141/2-minute film shows how drinking affects driving and seeks to motivate young people to make their own decisions to separate drinking from driving.

Complimentary copies of the brochure, “America’s Problems and Challenges” can be obtained by writing Modern at 2323 New Hyde Park Road, New Hyde Park, New York 11040.

But the blood of Christ cleanseth from all sin. On his lonely cross Christ turned to a penitent sinner and forgave him. He is able to save to the uttermost all who come unto God through Him.

And finally, there is the aloneness of death — we all die alone — even though there may be at hand, when death comes it comes to each of us alone.

In a recent issue of World Vision Headline we may read the startling statement that every day over ten thousand people die of hunger, starvation, and disease. The article then concludes with these words: "But they all die one by one."
The stark loneliness of this statement strikes us to the quick: "They all die one by one."
But then a related thought may come: "God knows everyone of them by name — one by one. He knows them. He marks the sparrow's fall. Every child is precious in His sight."

The apostle John wrote, "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear." When we think of death it is natural to be afraid — afraid of the unknown, fear of separation from loved ones. But a more perfect love toward God, the aloneness of sorrow and grief, the aloneness of sin, or the aloneness of death — these all have purpose in the plan of God. And that plan and grace would be eligible for contracts to operate a wide variety of services.

"Our children are in trouble," Sen. Birch Bayh declared when he introduced the bill in the Senate, "and hence our nation is in danger — and we must move quickly, boldly, and with all the resources needed to reverse the process of child destruction now taking place."

In defending the need for local planning and authority, Sen. Bayh declared the bill to be "a new constituency ... a new approach, a new methodology with a new constituency that rises above racial lines, class lines, income lines, and cultural lines, a constituency that is willing to work for the benefit of all children in the community, not just a favored few."

Sen. Bayh pointed to the following facts: "One of the needs that are both obvious and increasingly urgent":

- There are fourteen million children in this nation who have working mothers (eight out of ten of these children are cared for through makeshift arrangements);
- There are 2,790,000 mothers who work because they are the sole support of their families;
- Of those mothers who work, nine out of ten do so to satisfy an otherwise unmet economic need: basic support, medical bills, to provide for the future development of the children, etc.

While the proportion of working mothers with preschool children was ten percent in the 1940's and forty percent in the 1960's, it is estimated that the percentage will increase to between sixty and seventy percent in the decade of the 1970's, Sen. Bayh noted.

Turned on to Jesus

A Book Review

The story of Arthur Blessitt, evangelist to the hippies and dope addicts of Sunset Strip, Los Angeles, is told mostly in the first person in a 1971 book Turned on to Jesus. It is a Hawthorne book of 242 pages with a list price of $5.95. It is likely to become a very popular book with a strong appeal to the unconverted as well as the earnest Christians. It gives a close-up picture of the degradation of lost youth and the successful efforts to reach them with the gospel where they are.

The book traces the life and hardships of the spectacular young evangelist up to about a year ago. Evicted from his rented room on Sunset Strip because he was cutting down on the profits of sin, he chained himself to the church cross and fasted for twenty-eight days until a new location was offered him. Harassment by police and others ended and the work of conversion continued at his Place. It is claimed that some 10,000 young people have found salvation through the ministry on Sunset Strip. Some of the language of the book is not nice. The author tells it like it is, describing the sinfulness of sin in a way soul niners have never thought of before. It is a book that one doesn't want to lay down until it is finished. The reader will never be quite the same again. He may not be able to do just as Arthur Blessitt has done, but he will not be content to do nothing for those who are turned on to drugs or other debacles. Blessitt says, "Turned on to Jesus." —L.M.M. tind, 4,500 youngsters start smoking evey day, and approximately a million school age children now alive will die of cancer before age seventy if present trends continue, according to Dr. Curtis.

"Operation Can-Quit" is cartoon-illustrated by Paul Farber. Dr. Curtis has written more than twenty books on drug abuse, most of which have been published by TANE Press. Others have been published by the U. S. Government, and by pharmaceutical firms.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES -
FOUK, Ark. - We are glad to report winter visitors including Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bird from Dodge Center, Minn. He taught the adult Bible class while he was here. The Ralph Greens from Milton, Wis., were recent visitors as were sisters of Mrs. Soper from Antioch, Calif., and Nashville, Ark.

Our nearest neighboring Seventh Day Baptist Church (Texarkana) is now pastorless so Pastor Ralph Soper has been preaching there at 9:30 and here at 11:00 each Sunday.

Since our church does not have a bap­tist our pastor has used the Texarkana church several times for baptisms. We feel grateful to the good folks there who have cooperated with us so nicely in this.

NORTH LOUP, NEBR. - The annual New Year's dinner was held January 2. This is a custom of many years. Following the dinner the Missions Committee pre­sented the filmstrip "Seventh Day Baptists in Britain." Previously the filmstrip on Brazil had been shown. Since then they have shown the filmstrips about Burma and Germany. We feel that these are worthwhile.

Evangelist Myron Soper and his family spent a Sabbath afternoon in Lincoln and held services with the youth of our church in that city. Later all enjoyed a fellowship supper at the home of John and Mildred Benson.

Pastor Skaggs was chaplain at the Ord Nursing Home. He held the hospital in Janu­ary, taking his turn with other ministers of this area in holding services. Church members assisted with the music.

The Youth Fellowship sponsored a "soup and salad" early in February to raise funds for a new and expanded service for Christ.

Ten of our adults and youth attended the Central Nebraska Sunday School Con­vention at Sterling. Trend is to expand leadership training February 15 and 16.

Recently the memorial committee placed the pictures of twenty-five former pastors of our church on the wall in the foyer. All have been reduced to the same size making a more attractive arrangement. They begin with Elder Oscar Bab­cock, who was the pastor in 1873, and the last one is of the Rev. Duane Davis, our previous pastor.

The Tuesday morning Bible Study is being continued by a group of our women. They meet in their homes with Marion Soper as leader.

Considerable interest has been shown in the book "The Sabbath: Symbol of Creation and Re-Creation" by Herbert Sadler. Two groups have been formed for its study with Pastor Skaggs as leader.

SHILOH, N. J. — The following item appeared on the back page of the April 3 church bulletin describing the local pro­duction of "Tell It Like It Is," the musical that was presented by the youth at Conference last August. Some fifty Shi­loh church young people have been working for two months on the production. The pastor, the week before, had urged peo­ple to come early if they wanted to hear it. It was Like It Is. The filmstrip was presented in our church last Sabbath night. Those who were present know the results, and those who are away should be glad their church was not so crowded than it was for this musical because it couldn't hold any more. By 7 o'clock the church was full and by 7:15 it was packed — two rows of chairs across the back, chairs up each side aisle and the middle aisle. People were standing in the balcony, on the stage, and in the vestibule. It was estimated that at least fifty were turned away.

The group, under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Loper, held the congregation spellbound for the hour. The solos, the harmony, the balance, and the spiritual atmosphere created made this an event­ing which will never be forgotten.

As soon as it was over many indivi­duals and churches began to ask that it be given again.

Refereements were served in the Fel­lowship Hall following the performance, and most people stayed for this time of informal fellowship. More than 300 were served.

Sabbath Thoughts

Do you have some new thoughts on the subject of the Sabbath or new experiences in Sabbathkeeping? Your denominational paper would like to print more short articles on our distinctive faith and practice. Strange as it may seem, not many Seventh Day Baptist ministers or laymen submit articles on the Sabbath for publication. There are new things to be said or old things to be expressed in better ways.

Many people in our churches are studying the book The Sabbath — Symbol of Creation and Re-Creation. Such studies are good and should result, not just in understanding the author's thought, but also in stimulating more Bible study and new thoughts on the whole subject. If you have any ideas that you think would benefit Sabbathkeepers or non-Sabbathkeepers, set them down in good order and submit them to the editor for possible use on the back page or as a feature article inside.

Thoughts on 1 Corinthians 16:2

By Tertullian

"Even if there does exist a sort of common fund, it is not made up of fees, as though we contracted for our worship. Each of us puts in a small amount one day a month, or whenever he pleases; but only if he pleases and if he is able, for there is no compulsion in the matter, everyone contributing of his own free will. The monies are, as it were, the deposits of piety. They are expended upon no banquets or drinking-bouts or thankless eating-houses, but on feeding and burying poor people, on behalf of boys and girls who have neither parents nor money, in succor of old folks unable now to go about, as well as for people who are shipwrecked, or who may be in the mines or exiled in islands or in prison — so long as their distress is for the sake of God's fellowship."

— From Tertullian (Apolog., xxxix) who lived about 150 to 258 A.D.

(Given to Stewardship Chairman Paul Osborn by Conference President who received it from Oscar Burdick.)

NO TIME

I knelt to pray, but not for long,
I had too much to do,
Must hurry off and get to work
For bills would soon be due.

And so I said a hurried prayer,
Jumped up from off my knees;
My Christian duty now was done,
My soul could be at ease.

All through the day I had no time
To speak a word of cheer,
No time to speak of Christ to friends—
They'd laugh at me, I feared.

No time, no time, too much to do—
That was my constant cry;
No time to give to those in need—
At last 'twas time to die.

And when before the Lord I came,
— I stood with downcast eyes,
Within His hands He held a Book,
It was the "Book of Life."

God looked into His Book, and said,
"Your name I cannot find,
I once was going to write it down,
But never found the time."

Making God's Garden Productive

It is springtime and our thoughts turn to our use of the ground that may be ours.

Isaiah says that just as God makes the barren ground bring forth and bud, so He makes His Word to prosper as it goes forth at the hands of His servants. Not all of us have a plot of ground to plow and cultivate, but we each have our garden of opportunity for spreading the gospel truths that we hold dear. When we labor, God fulfills His promise, "It shall not return unto me void."
