Public men in general are not much concerned by the Sabbath, nor are they very much bound by it, which is the better part of the sabbath, and one another, and not the national sabbath, which is the sabbath of the government more or less than on that in the framing of those great political rules. The grounds of criticism are always the same, in various forms, but always the same. They may be gathered under three heads: 1. As to their principles—against the peace of society—and against the interests of the church and the state. The principles of the church have

ADRESs TO THE VOTERS IN THE STATE OF NEW-York.

FREEDMEN.

In the year of our Lord 1845, there will assemble in Albany, a Convention of Delegates from the several States of the Union, at the State House of New-York, for the purpose of deliberating on several amendments to the Constitution of the State.

In the United States, and in the State of New-York, there are now 2,000,000 freemen, and 1,500,000 colored people, and it is a matter of national importance for the safety and prosperity of the nation, that these two great parties should be reconciled.

We are told that the States shall have the right to regulate their own internal concerns, but it is not practicable for them to do this without the concurrence of the Legislature. We are not at liberty to act upon this principle, as the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State, have both been ordained by the General Assembly, and by the Legislature of the State, and are therefore binding upon all the States.
