The changing face of missions

During the last 150 years, the great force for world evangelization has come from Europe and North America, with tens of thousands of missionaries being sent to almost every country in the world. The pace was accelerated following World War II, and in the 40 years since, new records have been set.

But with the "coming of age" of mission work in many lands, the national church has its own trained leaders, pastoral training schools, and some are sending missionaries of their own. For most agencies, the goal was to develop a self-propagating, self-governing, self-supporting national church. Thus there came the "Three Self Movement," even though the first two seemed easier than the third.

In the last 35 years, the SDB Missionary Society has sought to train and encourage national leadership on the fields where missionaries were sent. This has resulted in having independent national church conferences led by trained and experienced church leaders. It has been several years since missionaries were last sent to Guyana, South America or Jamaica, West Indies. After their second—and shortened—term in the Philippines, Rod and Camille Henry were able to be the first, and last, missionary couple to the Seventh Day Baptist Philippine Convention.

The only field with Seventh Day Baptist missionaries now is Malawi in Africa. David and Bettie Pearson, who first went to then Nyasaland in 1954, continue a vital ministry with the Central Africa Conference of Seventh Day Baptists. David is dean for the students studying for pastoral service at Likabulu Bible School in Blantyre and leads in Christian education and outreach ministries. Bettie has, for the last few years, acted as medical administrator for the four clinics, hospital and mobile clinics which are run by the conference in cooperation with the Private Hospital Association of Malawi.

New Malawian leadership is being trained and receiving experience to carry on this administration.

One of the new "calls" for mission support is coming from new non-denominational agencies that have been established to give support to national pastors in many lands.

The changing face of missions

During the last 150 years, the great force for world evangelization has come from Europe and North America, with tens of thousands of missionaries being sent to almost every country in the world. The pace was accelerated following World War II, and in the 40 years since, new records have been set.

But with the "coming of age" of mission work in many lands, the national church has their own trained leaders, pastoral training schools, and some are sending missionaries of their own. For most agencies, the goal was to develop a self-propagating, self-governing, self-supporting national church. Thus there came the "Three Self Movement," even though the first two seemed easier than the third.

In the last 35 years, the SDB Missionary Society has sought to train and encourage national leadership on the fields where missionaries were sent. This has resulted in having independent national church conferences led by trained and experienced church leaders. It has been several years since missionaries were last sent to Guyana, South America or Jamaica, West Indies. After their second and shortened — term in the Philippines, Rod and Camille Henry were able to be the first, and last, missionary couple to the Seventh Day Baptist Philippine Convention.

The only field with Seventh Day Baptist missionaries now is Malawi in Africa. David and Betty Pearson, who first went to then Nyasaland in 1954, continue a vital ministry with the Central Africa Conference of Seventh Day Baptists. David is dean for the students studying for pastoral service at Likululu Bible School in Blantyre and leads in Christian Education and outreach ministries. Betty has, for the last few years, acted as medical administrator for the four clinics, hospital and mobile clinics which are run by the conference in cooperation with the Private Hospital Association of Malawi. New Malawian leadership is being trained and receiving experience to carry on this administration.

One of the new "calls" for mission support is coming from new non-denominational agencies that have been established to give support to national pastors in many lands. These agencies point out the tremendous difference in such support compared to the cost of missionaries coming from another land. The appeal is great, but there are difficulties in determining who to hire, how much to pay, and how their ministries are accountable. Too often jealousy in breed and the work of the Lord hindered. Such an arrangement may be more suitable to church groups having centralized control, too. But those having congregational polity find that such practice can be damaging when local churches are not responsible for their leadership support. The foreign paid pastor may have difficulty with his role and relationships. Effective stewardship that would allow a local congregation to support their pastor is not taught and may not be possible.

The SDB Missionary Society continues to relate, with limited regular financial support, to national conferences in six countries — Burma, India, Guyana, Jamaica, Malawi, and the Philippines. Some is designated for specific projects or ministries. In return, regular financial reports and other reports are shared with the Board. Through the years, the amount of non-designated funds sent has been reduced so that each of the national conferences is more independent and self-supporting.

When missionary leadership is continued, then the call for a second, or following, term, is made by both the national conference and the Missionary Society. Guidelines for their service, a job description and the awareness that their ministry is something that cannot be done by a national pastor is always sought. Thus the missionary works with, and under, the national leadership.

Sister conferences have also sought to reach out into other areas and neighboring countries. Several years ago, we worked with the Central Africa Conference when they sent one of their pastors to serve in Kenya for nine months. They have churches in Mozambique and former correspondence with leaders in Zimbabwe. The church in Brazil has some congregations in Argentina and missionary outreach in Paraguay. As the local church becomes alive and obedient to God's Word, they will reach out in their own area and be led to also seek to reach others for Christ across cultural and national lines. Let us pray and work that the gospel of Jesus Christ will be preached to all cultures and peoples, and in all nations.

The SDB Missionary Society continues to relate to national conferences in six countries—Burma, India, Guyana, Jamaica, Malawi, and the Philippines.

Leaders in T.I.M.E.

Training In Ministry and Extension

by Rodney Henry

T.I.M.E. is expanding around the country to reach Seventh Day Baptist church leaders with quality theological training. We have started a new group of trainees with seminars to be held in our Boulder/Denver (Colorado) churches. The first training module with home study and seminar as been completed by these 10 new trainees. At the same time, seven trainees have finished three training modules with two seminars held in our eastern training center in Salemville, Pennsylvania.

Seventh Day Baptists have always had full-time pastors who have served our churches without the benefit of theological education.

Bi-vocational pastors

Many of our churches are not yet large enough to support a pastor to minister with them on a full-time basis. Some churches solve this problem by calling pastors to serve the local church on a part-time basis while working outside of the church to provide the additional support needed. These pastors must be specially gifted and called to minister bi-vocationally to the local church. T.I.M.E. is training several of these bi-vocational pastors.

Full-time pastors

Seventh Day Baptists have always had full-time pastors who have served our churches without the benefit of theological education. Now we are able to bring training to these church leaders while they serve our churches in full-time ministry.

Each of these persons serves the church full-time while getting their theological training through Training In Ministry and Extension.

The new Tuingo SDB church building was dedicated on Thursday evening, October 23, 1986, at 6 p.m., followed by worship services. Village council members and church leaders of other denominations were invited.

Actually, the building was not fully completed. Timber walls for both sides were not yet fixed as funds kept by the treasurer in Tahan, in K100. bank notes, were demonitized. This paralyzed the process and delayed the project, but the work is continuing.

Two families joined the local congregation in Tuingo. Some more families are likely to join soon. Nine persons, including six teen-age girls, were baptized on Sabbath afternoon, October 25.

Elder Khawrothuama, a member of the Burma SDB Conference Executive Committee who lives near the church, donated his fat bull-calf for the joyful inauguration and communal feeding on Sunday, October 26—a great feast for the delight of all the SDBs. I contributed K500. for this special occasion.

We rented a loudspeaker for three days and three nights, so the whole village of about 700 households heard our messages. We were blessed by the Holy Spirit, and the meeting was a grand success.

The work in Rangoon is progressing. Gatherings are increasing.
An idea whose T.I.M.E. has come

by Bobby Wright

"There is one thing stronger than all the armies in the world, and that is an idea whose time has come." I have a warm and fond memory of Rev. Elmo Fitz-Randolph (Randy), my pastor while I was a member of the Boulder Seventh Day Baptist Church, using this quote from Victor Hugo as he encouraged me in the work and programs of the church.

The idea of "Double in a Decade" arose out of Commitment to Growth in the mid 1970's and emerged as a full-grown goal of Seventh Day Baptists by Conference action in 1979. Dr. K. D. Hurley, the Executive Secretary, wrote in the November 1979 issue of The Sabbath Recorder, "Seven Day Baptists -- with faith, determination, and enthusiasm -- have launched a Decade of Discipleship with a goal for the 1980's in which the first year would be an introductory year and the next nine years were to emphasize three-year cycles -- nurture, extension, and ministry."

While I was aware of these plans and goals I was not involved with the task of accomplishing them in a meaningful way until I entered the pastorate in 1983, serving the Upper East Tennessee Seventh Day Baptist Church in Blountville, Tennessee. After a couple of years in the pastorate, I realized that while faith, determination, and enthusiasm are good and necessary qualities to possess when approaching such a goal as this, there was something else needed. There seemed to me to be a great gap between possessing these qualities and actually accomplishing the goal. I felt a deep need for some sort of structure to bridge this gap. Enter T.I.M.E.

I entered the Training in Ministry and Extension (T.I.M.E.) program in March, 1986. T.I.M.E. is a three-year course of study presently being administered throughout the denomination through the combined efforts of the Missionary Society and the Center on Ministry. It is for those persons presently engaged in ministry and extension work of the church. It is designed to assist those who have not completed or had the benefit of formal training. I needed a way to translate ideas into goals, and goals into tasks that when completed would reflect the nature and purpose of the church. It was during the first course of study, Introduction to Church Leadershiff, that I found my key for bridging this gap. A more extensive treatment of this may be found in The Emerging Seventh Day Baptist Church, written by Rod Henry for the T.I.M.E. project (available through the Seventh Day Baptist Center in Janesville, Wisconsin). I would like to share with you ideas worked through the Ministry Cycle, as presented in this book.

Nature and Purpose -- Based on our understanding of Scripture we believe that the local church is a community of Christ's followers, organized for fellowship and service, practicing and proclaiming common convictions.

While working on the purpose of the church as presented in our "Statement of Belief," we discovered that most of our energy was going into worship and fellowship but very little into service, practice, or proclamation. In other words, we did not have a balance in our purpose.

Teaching and Goals -- Teaching is the means by which the goals will emerge by clarifying to all the nature and purpose of the church. Goals are the translation of the church's nature and purpose into action.

As we began to address these neglected areas, we realized that while we were listed in the phone book and the local papers, we were not visible to our community in a personal way. In short, we did not know the needs and desires of our community; and our community did not know the nature and purpose of our church.

In a series of goal setting and planning meetings we decided that a lack of visibility was hampering our efforts to proclaim -- to make known our reason for being in this community.

Structure/Organization and Tasks -- Structure is the bridge between what we want to do (goals) and the actual doing (tasks).

This led us to the next step of conducting a community survey. We procured maps of our area to plan where to go and keep track of where we had been. We went into our community, beginning with the immediate area surrounding the church. This also necessitated producing a brochure of our local church (something we had intended to do for years) to be given out to those attending church, as well as a survey form to record responses of those we visited as to their perceived needs of the community and what they see the church doing or should be doing.

Evaluation -- The process of comparing what we are in fact and practice with what we claim to be in nature and purpose.

After compiling the responses to our questionnaire, we were then able to see the needs in our community and what the church should be doing -- as perceived by the community. When we compared this to what we see as the nature and purpose of the church, we were able to proceed in the programs of the church in a much more effective manner. This is all in addition to accomplishing a greater degree of visibility in our community.

We are excited about the possibilities of reaching our community with the Good News about Jesus Christ. Along with other ideas we are presently working through the Ministry Cycle, we are looking forward to continuing our survey in the spring.

"Double in a Decade" is no longer a dream or a wish. It is an idea whose T.I.M.E. has come.

Pastor Bobby Wright (L) and Harold Balkom (R) study a map of the area surrounding the Upper East Tennessee Seventh Day Baptist Church in Blountville, Tennessee. The congregation took a survey into the community to discover how they could meet area needs.

We decided that a lack of visibility was hampering our efforts to proclaim.

Shiloh to celebrate 250th anniversary

by Donna Bond

The year 1987 will mark an important milestone in Shiloh—the 250th anniversary of the founding of the Seventh Day Baptist Church.

The church's standing Historical Committee, headed by Florence Bowden, has been expanded to plan special events for this year of celebration. The committee felt that not many churches can trace their roots 250 years in a country that is only 210 years old. (The Declaration of Independence was signed in 1776.)

The committee has held numerous meetings during the past two years for this purpose.

In addition, a professionally printed and bound hard-covered book entitled History of the Shiloh Church is in the final stages of preparation. Tim Bond has given innumerable hours to the writing of the history of the church which will be added to the history written in 1937 by John Bonham, Rev. Leon Maltby (including a portion written by T.L. Gardiner in 1860), and Anabel Bowden.

Additional sections are also underway for the new history: the Ladies Benevolent Society section is being written by Elsa Scull, the Sabbath School section by Phil Bond, the Female Mite Society section by Beulah Davis, the sections on the impact of the Jonathan Davis family and the history of Union Academy by Florence Bowden, and the history of the Session Room by Mildred Harris, a list of the men who served in the Armed Forces by Owen Probasco, and a membership list compiled by Mary Ayars.

Visual appeal will be provided by 40 pages of photographs—current pictures taken by Charles Ellzey of Bridgeton, New Jersey, as well as pictures from the past. (Watch future issues of The Sabbath Recorder for information concerning the purchase of this volume.)

Meanwhile, Pastor Emeritus Charles Bond and his wife, Margaret, have been collecting portraits of former pastors to be mounted on a plaque for permanent display. Lora Harris has been working on a time line, marking important events in the history of the church, also for permanent display. The Benevolent Society is geared up for celebration also, having chosen monthly programs centered on historical themes.

Finally, potential family heirlooms will be available for purchase throughout the year in the form of commemorative keepsakes depicting the 250th anniversary. (Further details on these items will also be available in future issues of the Sabbath Recorder pages.)

Commitment of our congregation's talents and spiritual gifts will be utilized throughout the year, just as total commitment to Christ has kept our church alive these 250 years. We will be calling on everyone—our writers, artists, seamstresses, organizers, musicians, builders, mechanics, AV specialists, photographers, cyclists, cooks, actors, preachers, planners, salesmen, playwrights, babysitters, display-arrangers, hospitality arrangers and providers, narrators, financial benefactors, researchers, and even our little children—in the carrying out of five unique "episodes" celebrating the various aspects of our church life.

Episode one will begin our year of celebration on March 27 and 28, the actual anniversary weekend of the signing of the covenant in 1737. The Friday evening service will feature the advent of the

To provide our salvation. And do let us hang on more blessing; the arrival of a letter from you in our too-often empty post box.

Pearson's prayer letter

Dear Brothers and Sisters in the family of God,

Kumar visits Seventh Day Baptists in India

For several years, regular monthly reports— in the form of a daily diary— have been shared by Rev. B. John V. Rao. Last year, his son, B. Kishor Kumar, was appointed by the executive of the SDB Conference of India to aid his father in such duties. Using the motor bike purchased some years ago by the Missionary Society to facilitate such visits to the local churches, Kumar spent most of last September in the field.

Most of the Seventh Day Baptist churches are located in villages and towns in the state of Andhra Pradesh, and in turn, are grouped into Field Associations or Parishes. The statistical report in 1982 noted 62 of these, with 32 receiving some conference help.

Kumar’s first day in the field is reported as follows: “Instructed by Rev. Rao, left for Gudur SDB Field by motor bike in the morning, reaching the place at 9 a.m. At Gudur SDB Church, met the field officials and elders. Held talks with them, familiarizing with the church matters. At 10 a.m. preached at the church to the assembled congregation. In the afternoon, visited home of the members, comforting the sick. Evening prayer meeting was held at the church.”

Many of the following days were similar as he visited Chapalapalle, Venkatagiri, Kalahast, Nagudupet, Trupati and other places. Sometimes officials from a field met Kumar at another place to travel with him to their field. Some comments in the visit to the Chittoor Field were: “Here also evangelists are doing good work. Informed of the interest shown by some people to come into our fold. Visited some of the SDB churches, getting acquainted with the people and places. These humble and sincere people need much more than what they have now materially. The field itself belongs to a backward area and people in majority struggle for their livelihood. They believe and steadily attend the church. Our gospel teams comfort them as to their material problems and help them in any way they can.

There are two fields near Madras. In the North, ‘New SDB centres are being planned as more and more people are turning to us.’” The St. Thomas Mount Church is in the South where “Evangelism and church work by the pastors are good. All the churches are working satisfactorily, and I think much can be done through intensified evangelism since more people are educated and interested. I am new to some of the churches here, and not only the members, but also others had come to see me preach. The experience was exhilarating and praise be unto our Lord for his grace.”

There are several fields near the main center of Nellore. “Church work and evangelism is carried out to the best of their ability, and our gospel teams are discharging very fine work, particularly in the Somasila and Rapur SDB fields,” Kumar reported.

Let us continue to pray for B. Kishor Kumar in his ministry.

Washington D.C. church thankful for 1986

by Lenoy Tsutsumi

The year 1986 was a busy one for the Washington, D.C., Seventh Day Baptist Church. Some of its activities included the following:

On May 17, the church celebrated Sabbath Emphasis Day. The Youth Fellowship was in charge, and the message was entitled, "What Sabbath Means to Me." Nicole Simon, Alakshi Harris, and Brenda Harris brought the message in the form of mini-messages. Vacation Bible School was held from July 14-18, in the evenings. There were 31 children and youths in attendance, most of whom came from the surrounding neighborhood. This neighborhood is a mission field since many of those attending VBS do not attend a church at all. All the children in the Beginners Class made the decision to turn their lives over to Jesus Christ and follow him. The VBS staff thank the Lord for this decision. We hope many more decisions like this one will be made in the future.

On September 20, Basil Clarke was ordained as a deacon. Pastor S. Kenneth Davie of the Salem, West Virginia, Seventh Day Baptist Church brought the morning message. A luncheon was served for members and non-members gathered for fellowship. Several churches within the Southeastern Association were represented for this occasion—Central Maryland, Salemville, Pennsylvania; Plainfield, New Jersey; Shiloh, New Jersey; Salem, and others.

Sabbath in America and the pre-covenant days of our church, beginning with the 1705 purchase of land by Robert Ayars. This event will be directed by Ayars’ descendants, Miriam Richardson and Clara Richardson Mulford, along with Clara’s husband, Frank Mulford.

On Sabbath morning, March 28, Pastor John and Linda Cannelly will lead the congregation in a "forward-looking, heritage-honoring" service which will include hymn singing, testimonies, participation of former pastors in the worship service, and a signing of the covenant by all church members present. (Visitors and guests will have a special commemorative document to sign.)

The morning worship service will be followed by a colonial-style fellowship dinner of beef stew, corn bread and baked apples.

In the afternoon, "Robert Ayars" will share some flashbacks as the signing of the original covenant is reenacted.

The remaining four episodes during the year will consist of the following:

April 24-25 Growth of the church
Moving of the frame church building
Naming of Shiloh

June 5-6 Ongoing programs
Role of women in the church

Impact of church on community
Role of the church in missions and education

October 9-19 Music (featuring use of antique pump organ)

November 27-28 Events of past 50 years (since 1937 history was written)

Throughout the year, numerous invitations will be sent to individuals for the special events; however, we would be happy to see you any and all of our church friends at any time. (Contact Ruth Probasco at RD 1, Box 464, Bridgeport, NJ 02002 if you need hospitality.)

To bring our year of celebration to an inspiring conclusion, special events are being planned for each weekend in December, including a nativity scene in a barn on a Friday evening.

As the year 1987 comes to a close, we will be challenged to look to the future with an eye on ways to meet the needs of the community and spread Christ’s light for another 250 years.

Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. (1 Thessalonians 5:17-18)

The above passage comes at the end of the first letter to the church at Thessalonica. Written by Paul the apostle, this letter was to a church that Paul, Timothy and Silvanus had helped establish. It contains encouragement, concern and some rules for practical Christian living. As Paul always does, he includes an admonition to pray, at the end of this letter. In the King James version above we are told to pray without ceasing. The New International version says “pray continually.” But the main emphasis here is that prayer is something that Christians should do.

Prayer is not an option.

During the last several months, as I have prepared and participated in a seminar course on Spirituality and Ministry, I have learned that prayer is a very important aspect of the life of the Christian. Although prayer is one of several spiritual disciplines, I can personally affirm—along with my professor, Dr. Roberta Hestenes—that it is not an option for the Christian. All people who would relate to God must have a significant prayer life.

Old Testament Prayer.

As I have spent time in Scripture studying prayer, I have become fascinated with the fact that prayer was natural between Old Testament personalities and God. It was just as though that person and God were carrying on a regular conversation.

Here are Moses and God talking. The Lord said, “I have indeed seen the misery of my people in Egypt…” Moses says in response, “Who am I, that I should go to Pharaoh and bring the Israelites out of Egypt?”

God said, “I will be with you.” The same kind of natural conversation goes on between God and Abraham or Noah or Joshua or David. It is the same as a conversation that you and I might have.

Another interesting Old Testament prayer experience is the way the prophets not only talk with God, but how they in turn talk to what God has said and give the people instructions about their everyday lives. In any of the prophets, major or minor, you find the phrase, “Thus says the Lord” with the specific instruction following.

My major point here is that not only was prayer a natural conversation-like experience, but it was every day and people ordered their lives by this dialogue between them and God.

Jesus and Prayer.

Early in the lives of Jesus and his followers it is recorded: “Very early in the morning, while it was still dark, Jesus got up, left the house and went off to a solitary place, where he prayed” (Mark 1:35).

It was obvious to the disciples that this time that Jesus spent with God had important significance for his ministry. No matter where he was or how late he had been up the day before, Jesus always spent time early the next day in prayer with His Father God.

One day Jesus was praying in a certain place. When he finished, one of his disciples said to him, “Lord, teach us to pray…” (Luke 11:1). In the verses following are recorded “The Lord’s Prayer” as we have also been taught. Jesus’ prayers, as recorded especially in the Gospel of John, are very natural although we do not have the same sense of dialogue as we do in the Old Testament.

Prayer and the First Century Church

Throughout the Book of Acts and the letters of the New Testament, it was obvious that prayer was a significant part of the lives of the apostles and the churches. It is recorded in Acts 1:14 that, while the disciples were waiting for the gift of the Holy Spirit, “They all joined together constantly in prayer, along with the women.” After Pentecost the fellowship of the church was recorded: “They devoted themselves to the apostles teaching and to the fellowship, to the breaking of bread and to prayer (Acts 2:42).”

Prayer as dialogue.

Yes, prayer is not an option. However, it does not have to be so difficult. Jesus did teach his disciples how to pray, both by his personal example and with a model in the Lord’s Prayer.” But, as I have read through the Scriptures again, focusing on prayer, it seems much more natural now for me to enter into a dialogue with God.

One significant thing I learned was that I must not only take time to talk to God but I must take time to listen as well. There cannot be a dialogue if I am doing all the talking.

My prayer for Seventh Day Baptists in 1987.

I do not know about you, but until this last year my prayer life was generally based on my weakness. After I had done everything I knew to do, then I would turn to God and say, “Alright, Lord, I have done everything I can. It is up to you. See what you can do with this mess.” He almost always straightened things out.

But, since I have spent a great deal of time in Ephesians, my prayer begins from a different point. In Ephesians 4:16, Paul, the apostle, prays, “I pray that out of his glorious riches he may strengthen you with power through his spirit in your inner being.”

My prayer for Seventh Day Baptists is that we will begin our days in prayer—talking with God, coming to him not out of a position of our weakness, but realizing that we can approach our lives based on the “glorious riches” of God. God has provided us with so much and promises us even more. The riches of his spiritual gifts and fruits are limitless and available to all of us. Have a rich and spirit-filled year.

Press on to know Christ

There is always an excitement about a new year. A certain anticipation awaits us as we forget the things we can no longer do anything about and look forward to all the possibilities that are before us. In Philippians 3:10, we catch some of Paul's excitement as he shares with us his heart's desire to know Christ in all his fulness. For him to know Christ, and to become like him, was Paul's life goal. It is no wonder he was continually motivated, for the more he knew him, the more he discovered there was to know.

Over and over in Paul's letters we find him bursting into praise and thanksgiving that he could not contain. His joy was so great that he also wanted all who might know him more deeply and intimately this new year? It is possible this might be the last opportunity you and I will have to do this. Living to please him necessitates discarding our own agenda.

You know, we do this in various degrees with those we love and respect. A husband and wife find there are things they need to do—or stop doing—and things they must give up for the good of their marriage. Most of the time, they find that the results of giving unwillingly brings more happiness than what they might have given up. For example, a full night's rest might have to be sacrificed with the coming of an infant into a home, but the trust and love in those little eyes more than make up for a lack of sleep.

To become a mature Christian requires sacrifice and effort, not just occasionally but continually. We can no longer live, think and act as the world does. Practicing godly living is not for the uncommitted and immature. Paul has said that once you begin this new life in Christ, everything else is pale by comparison. I am finding this to be true. I am committed to know Christ and become like him.

Will you press on with me in this effort?

Plainfield has busy summer

by Ruth Parker

Pastor Joe Samuels of the Plainfield, New Jersey, Seventh Day Baptist Church had a very busy summer.

In June he attended the SCSC training session in Colorado and prepared to direct our team of three, Steve Osborn, Laura Hoes, and Maggie Rhodes. If you have read Laura's account of their many activities in the October Recorder, you realize what a strenuous time the month of July was for all of them. The team enjoyed Pastor Joe's leadership so much that they called him "I".

Plainfield's Vacation Bible School was held for three hours in the morning during the first week but was extended to six hours during the second week to accommodate the working mothers. That meant a lot more work for the SCSC team, but it resulted in a great increase in attendance. There were 18 children that week. Conducting six evangelistic crusade meetings in the evening and counseling at Jersey Oaks junior camp were also strenuous activities for Pastor Joe and the team. On August 2 we honored our SCSC workers at a fellowship dinner.

During August Pastor Joe and Joyce attended the World Federation sessions in Beverly, Rhode Island, General Conference in Worcester, Massachusetts, and the ministers' retreat in Shiloh, New Jersey. Pastor Owen Lynch of England spoke to us on August 23, when we had another fellowship dinner. In September Pastor Joe and Joyce went to Toronto, Canada, where he conducted Pastor Lyons' funeral, and to Marlboro, New Jersey, where he spoke at the Yearly Meeting.

We are very happy that Andrew Samuels, Pastor Joe's nephew and one of our new members, was led at the last minute to give up his job at the UN and take another one rather than be transferred to Mexico City. He has conducted our service and brought the message several times and will be able to continue attending the T.J.M.E. seminars. He is the leader of our Youth Fellowship and has recently been elected as our assistant church treasurer. In July we licensed him to preach the gospel.

In addition to all of our pastor's church duties and community activities, he has consented to speak at our monthly Women's Society meetings on a variety of interesting topics. In October he gave a comprehensive summary of the history of Seventh Day Baptists in Europe, and in November he planned to organize with SCSC history in America. It is possible this might be the last time we have an energetic pastor to talk with.

Bay Area church holds retreat at Yosemite

The Bay Area (California) church held a retreat in the mountains at Yosemite National Park over Labor Day weekend. Twenty-two of our people took part in the retreat, staying at Evergreen, a cabin built and owned by George Barber.

Our Sabbath worship service and evening vespers services were held on top of a hill overlooking the beautiful valleys of Yosemite. We also looked at three video tapes on "The Church Unleashed" by Frank Tillapaugh. These tapes (available for loan from our Missionary Society) gave us plenty to think about and challenged us to rethink the ministries of our church.

The Youth Fellowship of our church, along with their leaders Doug and Jane Macintosh, held their own retreat at Evergreen for two days before the other people arrived for the weekend. Our youth are being urged to take their Christianity seriously. A new after-school discipleship class was started in September to help meet this need.

Last June, our children and youth presented the musical "Make a Joyful Noise" (a.k.a. "Colby"). Many will remember this musical from its presentation at General Conference in 1985.

One of our students, Michelle Griffin, served in the Summer Christian Service Corps this year. She is now back home, serving faithfully in our church and going to college. Stephen Peters, who was pianist in our church for several months, has now joined the U.S. Army.

Verse for the Month: "Create in me a new, clean heart, O God, filled with clean thoughts and right desires. Don't toss me aside, banished forever from Your presence. Don't take Your Holy Spirit from me. Restore to me again the joy of Your salvation, and make me willing to obey You. Then I will teach Your ways to other sinners, and they—guilty like me—will repent and return to You." Psalm 51:10-13 [L]

FOCUS on missions today

by Leon R. Lawton

Milwaukee, Wisconsin, USA: A worship service was held at the home of Tom and Mary Moden in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on November 19. Extension Pastor Earl and Mabel Cruzan of the Milton, Wisconsin, church, met with them. Seven adults from the Milwaukee area, representing five families, were in attendance, as well as five children. Lawrence and Jane Leach of Milton were also in attendance, along with their daughter, Joanna. Following the worship service, it was decided to begin regular Sabbath meetings in Milwaukee. A second meeting was scheduled for December 6, with the expectation that services will be held weekly thereafter. They are seeking a meeting place other than a home. Pastor Cruzan will provide the basic leadership.

Pastoral education, Brazil and Jamaica: At the '86 session of the Seventh Day Baptist World Federation held the first week in August, a special project committee reviewed needs presented by delegates from most of the countries represented. Their report gave priority to helping to meet the educational needs for pastors, with two countries named specifically—Brazil and Jamaica. During the session of General Conference USA and Canada the following week, the Women's Love Gift included these two countries, with $800 raised for Brazil and $300 for Jamaica. At the October Missionary Board meeting, the amount for Brazil was matched to help implement their training program. Two hundred dollars was also voted to reach the goal Jamaica set, and plans are underway for counsel by Rodney Henry in setting up a Theological Education by Extension (TEE) project in Jamaica early in 1987.

Extension support is sought

Tamps, Mexico: The Mexico Mission Committee of the Mid-Continent Association continues to seek to help meet needs of our sister Convention. At a meeting last fall, action was taken to help provide printing equipment to enable more adequate publication of literature—a priority need expressed by Pastor Elias Camacho. Paul Robles, a printer and member of the Denver, Colorado, church, is published to help set up and train those in their new ministry. Most of the needed funds for the project came from Mid-Continent SDB churches, with an additional amount sought from the Missionary Board.

Lushai books sent to Illinois

Dekalb, Illinois, USA: Richard M. Cooler, director of the Center for Burma Studies at Northern Illinois University, was sent seven Lushai books translated or written by Rev. L. S. Thanga of Rangoon. They were sent following a providential meeting with Leon R. Lawson on a flight from Denver, Colorado, to Chicago, Illinois, recently.

In late October Cooler wrote, "I have discussed these publications with our two linguists who specialize in Southeast Asian languages, and they are delighted at the prospect of having written materials in Lushai as a part of our Southeast Asia Collection."

Three of the books are translations of Billy Graham's Peace with God, The Holy Spirit, and Angels. The other four are written or edited by Thanga.

Cooler also wrote, "Since so little is published in Lushai, and since so little of that reaches the West, and since there are English translations of three of these works, your donation is a true bonanza of teaching materials for students wishing to learn Lushai. Linguists will be equally enthusiastic about having access to these unusual materials."

Mrs. Priest, a member of the Board of Deacons and Elders, saw the sign in the window of the new Christian Education addition as she walked to her car following the prayer meeting. "They ought to ask Mr. James," she thought, unlocking the driver's door. "I've taught with him for years in the local school. He would make an excellent prospect and he's not involved in the church."

Mr. Levite noticed the sign as he arrived to attend a committee meeting. He thought the sign amusing and stopped to read it. Going into the building, Mr. Levite remarked to his fellow committee member and long-time friend, "Did you see that sign in the meeting room window? Neat idea!"

Mrs. Samaritan, a recent convert and new church member, observed the sign. "How unusual," she thought. "I didn't notice a sign there on Sabbath Day. She stopped and read the printed sign. She was reminded that her children enjoyed Sabbath School and especially the Primal Sabbath Nurture lessons and The Sabbath Visitor take-home papers. She looked forward to Deacon Faithful's class. She would volunteer to help.

Pastor Shepherd was in his office, preparing for the Bible study. Mrs. Samaritan told the pastor of her desire to help but feared that she had little to offer and wondered if there was a place for her. Pastor Shepherd recounted how Mrs. Samaritan had completed the Discipleship phase of the Natural Evangelism Training experience just prior to joining the church. This would be an excellent background in the biblical basis for our beliefs.

The pastor recalled that she had shared with the NET group her morning devotions, using the Daily Bible Meditations from The Helping Hand. He demonstrated, with samples of the Sabbath School curriculum, that her daily readings and study would cover the same scripture. Pastor Shepherd reminded Mrs. Samaritan that he had just included her name with those who had enrolled in the Scripture Memorization Program.

The pastor explained that she would have an opportunity to be an observer for one month, during which time she would meet with the regular teacher to discuss the lesson goal, preparation, and activities. Gradually, she would move from observer to assistant, helping with one or more activities of each class. Pastor Shepherd asked that she be in attendance at the monthly teacher meetings and weekly with the regular teacher to review weekly responsibility. Pastor Shepherd and Mrs. Samaritan prayed that God would guide her ministry to his children.

"Passing the sign on her way home," she said, "Thank you, God, for giving me a job. Thanks for the sign!"

Memories of a YF president
by Bill Probasco

A little over 17 months ago, when I formally accepted the position of YF president, I was a bit like former President Jimmy Carter—all smiles. But by Saturday night of conference, I had lost a great deal of my grin.

I started out with a lot of enthusiasm, as did my officers (Cheryl, Suzanne, and Andrew). Throughout the year, we worked and met, planned and fund-raised until we found ourselves at Conference '86 with an entire schedule of activities and close to $12,000 to cover their cost.

Our first official “business,” appropriately, was the youth business meeting on Sunday night, during which new officers were elected for the coming year. It seems ironic that my first business was to appoint my successor (best of luck, guys). The business meeting also brought several new hopes, concerns, and desires—far too many to list here.

Monday night was Swim Night. We had hoped to use the entire gymnasium, but the college had recently redecorate its basketball court, so we were restricted to the pool.

Tuesday night, nearly 100 youth swarmed the Getaway Skating Rink. There we skated around and around and around a large rink to selected Christian favorites like Amy Grant.

Wednesday night, we tried our luck at bowling at the 50-lane Auburn 10-Pin. Some felt pleased to score 100, while one guy scored over 200! I wonder who that could be?

Thursday night, to the delight of young and old alike, the youth dressed in togas for the Roman Pizza Party. Believe it or not, the youth went through 20 pizzas—in under two hours!

Friday night, we met in the Lower Wedge near the cafeteria for a Coffee House. During this time we sang songs, fellowshipped, and worked on igniting a fire in ourselves. After the Friday evening message by Rev. Bill Shoffner II, all of us were strongly moved towards our Seventh Day Baptist beliefs and felt a desire to spread the Good News. I hope we will all “catch fire” for and with the Lord! And don’t forget what was talked about (150 in D.C.—remember)?

Everyone at conference enjoyed the Sabbath message by Rev. Kev Butler! Later, after the Saturday night meeting, the youth were entertained by the talented David Coates—true Christian rock ‘n’ roll experience. There was no problem hearing the message they sang about, and all the youth there enjoyed one of the best closing youth activities in recent memory (my slightly biased memory, anyway!). In fact, my vice-president said her most memorable moment was being backstage during the concert. After the concert, the youth were permitted to go to the Lower Wedge until 2 a.m., but I finished the waning hours of my term helping the band get packed up and seeing them on their way.

Our course, I can’t be expected to write about everything that went on, but maybe I’ll write a book or something. The job as a national YF officer is definitely not all fun and games (as any former officer will tell you), but I really enjoyed it and I don’t regret it at all!!

Good luck to the new ’87 officers and Youth Director Matt G. Olson in this new year.

In closing, I want to thank a few people (so if you want to stop reading, now is a good time). Thank you to Amanda Snyder, Ernest Bee, and Dale Rood—who were always there when I needed them.

Thank you to Buster and Linda Dickinson for being willing (and gullible) enough to be the youth advisors. Thanks to the Shiloh and Marboro churches for their support. Thanks mom and dad for many an obvious reason. And, last but definitely not least, thanks to my fellow officers: Andrew Camenga, treasurer; Suzanne Vandervlis, secretary; and, above all, Cheryl Davis, vice-president, tag, and my driving force!

P.S. Hi to DJ, KS, KB, AB, NKD, and my roommates who actually stayed out of trouble (pretty much)—HC and BM.

Memories of Young Adult Pre-Con
by Angie Butts

Hi, everyone!

Once again, conference and Pre-Con are a part of the past . . . what aummer!! But our memories are to be added to this list, so here are a few from Young Adult Pre-Con.

This year’s young adult directors were Ken and Ruth Burdick, assisted by Rod and Camille Henry. They were all great! Ken helped us “dig” into the Bible with daily study challenge-sheets and listening-point exercises. Rod helped us to take a closer look at ourselves with his messages during vespers (“preach!”). Camille did a great job with our “musical” . . . she really proved that she can do more of anything that we need. We are all grateful for our young adults, and we feel that we had a great vespers service that we had together was especially nice. Not only did we share in worship, but we were able to watch God in action through a beautiful lake sunset.

Of course, no one can forget all the crazy things that we did. I think that we will all remember the napkin wars that never failed to erupt during meals. Too bad that’s not an Olympic sport! We’d have quite the winning team! The daily mud volleyball games gave new meaning to recreation, not to mention a certain grandpa to showers.

There was the midnight meeting where we learned (well, at least tried to learn) how to square dance. Now all we know about it is that we feel like to be a bird . . . and a beak, beak, and a wing, wing, and a tail, tail . . .

There were also many more great times, both serious and crazy, and there’s no way any of us could even begin to record them all. But when you take 27 YADF young adults—and four staff members—and a great cook—you know that there will be many great memories. That’s what I have!

Youth Pre-Con '86
An impressionistic essay
by Mark Green

Vespers was always a great experience, thanks to many of the personal testimonies shared by some campers.

Steve and Irene Saunders, our cooks. We all consumed way too much.

We were directed in various directions by our jelly-director, Perry Cain. Gosh, he's a crazy guy! Our Bible study was led by the always suave and debonair Bill Shobe. Christina Cain maintained order and gave us something to think about during our alone time, while Matt Olson lies in. "My name is Matt, I'm here to say, I'm the best rapper in the world" helped us find the answers to some of the more confusing questions we Christians—as Seventh Day Baptists—face. Dave Taylor helped us out with chapel and vespers, and he jammed on his accordion for us. I'm thinking about taking it up myself.

Then there were those special moments. How well I remember our trip to Newport, Rhode Island, on Sabbath so we could worship at the first Seventh Day Baptist church in America. Could we have possibly sung "Sing Alleluia" more times? No, I don't think so. Vespers was always a great experience, thanks to many of the personal testimonies shared by some campers.

There then was music, and it was very good. Amanda Snyder jammed with us on such great tunes as "How Majestic is Your Name" and "Ceaseless Praise." She did a great job, although she would not let us do "Why Should the Devil Have All the Good Music" or any of those motions and dance steps we thought up.

Well, there was so much more to Pre-Con than what I've written, like those games led by Paul and Wendy Prior (perhaps the most peculiar contest known to man). I still think Pastor Dave Taylor helped us find the answers to some of the more confusing questions we Christians—as Seventh Day Baptists—face. Dave Taylor helped us out with chapel and vespers, and he jammed on his accordion for us. I'm thinking about taking it up myself.

Then there were those special moments. How well I remember our trip to Newport, Rhode Island, on Sabbath so we could worship at the first Seventh Day Baptist church in America. Could we have possibly sung "Sing Alleluia" more times? No, I don't think so. Vespers was always a great experience, thanks to many of the personal testimonies shared by some campers.

There then was music, and it was very good. Amanda Snyder jammed with us on such great tunes as "How Majestic is Your Name" and "Ceaseless Praise." She did a great job, although she would not let us do "Why Should the Devil Have All the Good Music" or any of those motions and dance steps we thought up.

Well, there was so much more to Pre-Con than what I've written, like those games led by Paul and Wendy Prior (perhaps the most peculiar contest known to man). I still think Pastor Dave Taylor helped us find the answers to some of the more confusing questions we Christians—as Seventh Day Baptists—face. Dave Taylor helped us out with chapel and vespers, and he jammed on his accordion for us. I'm thinking about taking it up myself.

Our World Mission is a Partnership in Ministry

You can be an active part of this partnership through your ongoing relationship to your local church. At the same time, you can help to carry the responsibility of the partnership by supporting our combined denominational budget—Our World Mission. Your dollars are needed to do the work that is the denominational agencies’ responsibility in the partnership. Your prayers, ideas and reactions are also needed to support the work that Seventh Day Baptists are doing together.

SDB booth wins blue ribbon

The deep blue of an Alaskan river winding among beautiful evergreens and over huge boulders, with majestic mountains in the background, could well have inspired the theme "How Great Thou Art" in the Allegheny Association Seventh Day Baptist booth at the Allegheny County (New York) Fair. Instead, this was the backdrop for the newly paneled and carpeted setting of this year's first attempt at silent witness in a public place.

The project, which won a blue ribbon for best "non-commercial booth," was done under the direction of the Association Missionary Evangelism chairman, assisted by some parishioners of the Richburg, New York, Seventh Day Baptist Church.

The booth was designed in keeping with the topic "Liberty and Pride," designated by the Fair Association. The right sidewall displayed two pictures: one of the Statue of Liberty with the caption, "Liberty to Worship in America," and one of Christ on the cross with the caption, "Freedom from Sin through Christ." Just below these pictures was a small shell holding a colorful picture of the nation's capital with the caption, "One Nation Under God," in red, white and blue.

Opposite on the left wall, the topic of "Pride" was displayed. The subtitle, "In Our Country," was flanked by the song "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and the American flag in miniature. The subtitle, "In Our Religious Heritage," was flanked by the caption, "Seventh Day Baptists—1671-1961," with a short paragraph by Samuel Ward—patriot, statesman and Seventh Day Baptist.

The booth also contained an attractive and colorful assortment of 12 tracts aimed at reaching ever age level and current problems. Other features were four specific Sabbath related tracts: a free guide to Bible Understanding Course, and free county maps with an SDB church ad.

A moving message, "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy" (Exodus 20:8-10), hung from the ceiling at eye-level. Tables with Bibles on them, and chairs for rent, were provided within the booth. A bouquet of flowers was placed on a small center table. Visitors to the booth were given an opportunity, in daily drawings, to win a free Complete Living Bible.

Battle Creek church holds retreat

The Battle Creek, Michigan, Seventh Day Baptist Church held its annual Fall Retreat on September 13-14. The theme of the retreat, which was led by Pastor George Calhoun, was "What a Difference a Day Makes." Presentations were also given by Dorothy Parrott.

The sessions focused on aspects of prayer. Each session was introduced, the participants individually did a study or exercise on it, and then all reassembled for discussion before going to the next section. Scripture, songs and choruses helped set the mood and added to the joy. Lessons included: learning how to do a topical study; picking a favorite Scripture verse of a passage and writing a prayer to God for yourself based on it; learning how to ask the right questions to really get yourself to study a passage, not just read it; overcoming Satan's influence in our lives; plus much more, including extra material to give us a start on daily personal devotions.

Sabbath evening, the group was divided to do a simulation of the Council at Antioch in 190 A.D., trying to decide which elements of the remembrance of the Lord's Last Supper should be officially endorsed. Groups represented at the Council were the Lukians, Johannines, Markans, and Paulinists.

The retreat started with a potluck dinner Sabbath afternoon and was held at Camp Holston. Many stayed over in the dorms Sabbath night. There was good attendance and participation, and all agreed they had received inspiration for their own personal prayer life.

SDB booth wins blue ribbon

The deep blue of an Alaskan river winding among beautiful evergreens and over huge boulders, with majestic mountains in the background, could well have inspired the theme "How Great Thou Art" in the Allegheny Association Seventh Day Baptist booth at the Alleghany County (New York) Fair. Facing each new day

Dear Ones All,

I crawled out of bed to face a new day a few days ago. My legs would not go where I directed them and I realized my balance was gone. How could I face a new day with a cluttered house, dirty dishes and the very thought of food turning me green? In one of my usual mad dashes to get a manuscript in on time, I had neglected my housework. When the script was finished and in the mail I tumbled into bed with a migraine. This day could not be allowed to be a total loss. Did I not pray each day for health? Later, I was rather amused as it came to me that the world had many dizzies, hung-over people with queezy stomachs on New Year's morning. I do not find drunkenness amusing-only the fact that I had done nothing to deserve my dizziness.

It was simply a manifestation of my diabetic condition. God had promised a way of escape and I wondered what it would be.

As I finished, I marveled again at the thrill my hands felt as they fingered these pages filled with words spoken thousands of years before. Well, my sense of touch was intact. I prayed God would show me the way to put his words into practice and set about clearing the clutter. I realized as each task was cleared away, I felt a little better. Had the clutter and the postponed work so disturbed my mind and soul? Suddenly it dawned on me that it was a good New Year's Women's Page subject.

God has given us a whole new year, completely unclouded, unblemished. We can renew our souls and start all over again. Will we get it right this year? In your life, what is causing discomfort and distress; an attitude, possessions, wrong priorities? Throw it out! Nothing worth the feeling of separation from God.

Nothing. As the load lightens, I pray you too will find the road clearer, the heart steadier and can say with deep felt meaning, "What a great new year." Try my method of keeping up with the World Wide Bible Reading program the American Bible Society? This is not instead of daily reading, but in addition to. See if you, too, benefit from the extra exposure. They are grouped in subject matter, thus lending to a cluster reading program, and Christians all over the world are pondering these same words.

Speaking of the New Year, right now is a good time for you society secretaries to begin to keep track of what you want to put in your yearly report of activities for your report to the Women's Committee of Conference next August. If you jot down things as they happen, the report is a breeze to write up. That is the voice of experience speaking.

From the Women's Department of the Baptist World Alliance comes a newsletter giving many fascinating details of a trip to Bangladesh where a young doctor is doing great things in his ministry of evangelism and healing.

Perhaps I can share part of that with you another time. Also mentioned was the fact that they had resolved to give $2,000 to the Evangelism and Education Division for mini-libraries, a collection of ten or so books on Christian ethics, doctrine, how to for teaching and so on. On her return from the World Federation, our president, Mrs. Shettel, told me that ten of these mini-libraries were provided to persons attending this meeting by the Baptist World Federation. A great reason for supporting this group if your society can do so.

Seventh Day Baptists seem to be in the food business, again, if they ever were not. Several societies have been serving community suppers. Albion mentioned a pancake breakfast and a chicken and biscuit dinner. Nortonville spoke of their fall bazaar. I cannot imagine one of those without some kind of food in that area. Both Alfred and Salem spoke of serving dinners for service organizations and local groups, a good source of income but a lot of hard work for all. I believe Milton also goes in that group. At any rate, we must have a lot of good "cookers" as my nephew used to say.

In Salem, West Virginia's annual report they noted that they had changed their day of meeting to the fourth Sunday of the month, "so that more members could attend." That is an idea that some of the rest of you who have memberships made up of working women might find helpful. North Loup, Nebraska also had a Sunday morning Bible Study, for a time Whatever you can find to help all members to feel a part of your society is imperative.

Two messages from the Board: one was brought to mind by a notice from one Society whose key worker had reminded the society to be thinking about the Robe of Achievement recipient for 1987. When you send you nomination, please make the nomination as near a biography or resume as possible. The committee cannot write back asking for more information without giving away the fact the person has been nominated. Besides their work in the local church, what have they done Denominationally, in their Community, Eucumenically, etc? This will help a great deal in the consideration. As I have stated before those nominations are kept and reconsidered. If you have perhaps submitted one which was not chosen and you feel you have further information along those lines that would be helpful, send another letter. The committee will happily correlate the information.

Number two is a message from the S.C.C. committee. They are really anxious to get an early start on the projects this year. If your church is going to desire workers, then please be prayerfully considering your projects and get them defined clearly and contact the committee before the deadline with this. Costs have risen so alarmingly that a great deal of effort has to be put into raising the funds to cover this program. We need to start as soon as possible.

Oops, I am still not seeing too clearly. There was a third message from the Nightingale for Newborns chairlady, Joy Ross. Conversations and correspondence from Bertie Pearson have led us to believe that more numerous, smaller packages sent with the little nighties are more readily received than the big packages. Also, it is not advisable to mark the packages as "used clothing" unless they are truly that, not just laundered ones. This is hurting our witness there with the postal authorities, and it seems to make little difference on whether duty must be paid or not. Most important is not to stop now, as the Committee to consider Woman's Work mandated a continuation of the project. Diapers and pins can be purchased there so money sent for this aspect of the project will be well received.

From Philippians 1:9-11 (Living New Testament): "My prayer for you is that you will be strengthened in the Lord and in the power of his might." It is time to get an early start on the projects. Your nominations are most appreciated.

“Finding” Seventh Day Baptist churches

Finding a Seventh Day Baptist church? So it has happened on more than one occasion. A clear sign that can be read has carried us in the listing of the church in Little Rock, Arkansas. The branch church group in St. Petersburg, Florida, did not go that far but knew that the first SDB churches were in Rhode Island. One Sabbath morning, they called the Rhode Island Local churches should have identification signs to help people understand we exist.

information operator, were given the number of the Westerly church and made the first contact. Now this group is a branch of the Daytona Beach, Florida, church. The new branch church (of Los Angeles, California) in Santa Barbara, California, obtained a church phone as one of its first actions. Within a day or two, even before the number could be published, a lady called information to obtain the phone number of a Seventh Day Baptist church. Today, another new branch group in Thousand Oaks, California, can be identified with this method of contact.

Through the study of God’s word, more and more people are understanding the Bible Sabbath. They then seek fellowship with local groups. Those with a Baptist background find it more difficult to relate to other types of Sabbath-keeping groups and need to know there is another option for such fellowship—the Seventh Day Baptist church.

Let us be sure our local church is adequately identified. Let us have our church phone listed in an easily seen way in the Yellow Pages. Let us use church listings in local newspapers, but even more vital, let us be sure that regular news items of church happenings are sent in for publication, making sure the editor knows we are Seventh Day Baptists.

Another modern way of letting people know where we are is a listing in the Yellow Pages. Here the “sign” may be a boldfaced heading, a special listing, or the normal listing for churches having a phone. The Naylor church pastor “found” us in the listing of the church in Little Rock, Arkansas. The branch church group in St. Petersburg, Florida, did not go that far but knew that the first SDB churches were in Rhode Island. One Sabbath morning, they called the Rhode Island Local churches should have identification signs to help people understand we exist.

A personal testimony

Having learned the truth of the Sabbath while attending a "Prophecy Countdown Seminar" that was given in Doniphan, Missouri, by the Seventh Day Adventist church, we were surprised to hear that there was a group of Christians called Seventh Day Baptists. While doing research about some of the teachings that the Adventists had in their seminar, we noticed in the encyclopedia a list of the Protestant churches in the United States. The Seventh Day Baptist church was on this list. Until this time, we were completely unaware that there were any SDB churches.

We were brought up in the Baptist church. However, when we learned the truth of the Sabbath, we were no longer satisfied with going to church on Sundays. We were interested in learning what the Seventh Day Baptist church believed, but because their churches are few and far between, we were unable—at that time—to find any information about them.

After about a year, while I was going into Naylor, Missouri, one Saturday afternoon, we noticed a sign outside a house trailer that read “The Naylor Seventh Day Baptist Church.” The sign stated that their services were conducted on Sabbath morning, and that Bible study was held on Wednesday evening. Since it was already Saturday afternoon, we waited until the following Wednesday before we attended their service.

We found within this church what we were looking for. As of now, we are still attending church here, and we intend to continue to until we feel the Lord has guided us elsewhere. We have grown tremendously in our faith and our Biblical knowledge since we have learned the truth of the Sabbath. We have so much more to learn, and we are very grateful to God for allowing us to see and to accept his truth.

We are also very grateful to the fellow Christians within the Naylor Seventh Day Baptist Church who are helping us to achieve the potential that we have, so we can serve our God as he would want us to.

SDB logo signs are available

At General Conference last August, many individuals obtained plastic, magnetic Seventh Day Baptist logo signs (in color) that can be placed on any metal surface. These are available, tax and postpaid, for $5.00 each from:

P and H Enterprise
Phil Burrows
205 Green Hill Circle
Milton, WI 53563

Several pastors have also obtained special signs displaying the name, the name of their church, phone number, etc. These can be placed on the doors of your vehicles—when you wish to do so—and are easily removed when you do not wish to have them there. Please write Phil Burrows for a price quote, sending the copy you wish to have on the sign. These signs also usually include the SDB logo in color, and wording can be in more than one color, too.

A new church information sign, to post on roads entering a city or to place at a corner near the church to direct people to the church location, is being made. If you are interested in such a sign for your church, please ask about it when you write Phil Burrows.

“Finding” Seventh Day Baptist churches

“Look there. Isn’t that strange? A Seventh Day Baptist church!” So it has happened on more than one occasion. A clear sign that can be read has carried the message of a Seventh Day Baptist church to new people, some of whom have been seeking and subsequently relate to the local congregation.

A few years ago, visitors in Washington, D.C., noted the large sign which identified the Seventh Day Baptist Church Center. Noting the phone number, they called the pastor to seek more information and eventually related to another SDB church in another state. Another couple drove down 16th Street for some years before they “saw” the sign and then entered into fellowship and membership in the local congregation with their family.

More recently, the new Naylor, Missouri, SDB Church—through its prominent sign—was able to communicate its presence to a couple driving past, and the testimony of Rick and Donna Smith is given in this issue. Local churches should have identification signs on the highways, as well as their property, to help people understand we exist. Many have sought us for months and years before “finding” a SDB church. We wonder how many have sought such information and never found us?

Another modern way of letting people know where we are a listing in the Yellow Pages. Obituaries

Mark.—Mrs. Dorothy Ingraham Mark passed away on December 30, 1985, at Uncas-on-the-Thames Hospital after a long illness. She was a receptionist at Mary Elizabeth Convalescent Hospital, and more recently, she was employed at Richard Williams Book Store in New London, Connecticut.

She was a dear friend of the Waterford, Connecticut, Seventh Day Baptist Church and attended when she was able.

She was born on October 1, 1920, in Centerbrook, Connecticut, the daughter of Alfred and Jennie Taylor Ingraham. Her husband preceded her in death on February 7, 1972.

Survivors include a son, Gregg W. Mark of Richmond, Virginia; four brothers, three sisters, and two step-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at Byles Groton Mortuary Home. Interment was in Elm Grove Cemetery, Mystic, Connecticut. Pastor Don Richards conducted the memorial services.

Pederson.—Reta Susan Pederson was born on November 12, 1896, in Marion, Iowa, the daughter of Ralph E. and Mary (Mattison) Loofboro. She died on September 8, 1986, at Lindquist Funeral Chapel, Buffalo, Minnesota, where she had lived since 1982.

When she was four years old, Susie moved with her family to New Auburn, Wisconsin, where she was baptized at the Covenant Home in Buffalo, Minnesota, where she had lived since 1982.

When she was four years old, Susie moved with her family to New Auburn, Wisconsin, where she was married to Ivar Pederson in New Auburn. After their marriage, they made their home on a farm near New Auburn, where they lived until August of 1975. They then moved to Buffalo to live with their son, Dave, and his family. Ivar preceded her in death on December 12, 1975.

Susie was the oldest member of—and active in—the New Auburn Seventh Day Baptist Church, and was a member of the Parent Teachers Association and the American Legion Auxiliary in New Auburn.

She is survived by her husband; three sons, Victor of Mt. View, California, Paul of Monona, Wisconsin, and Alfred Williams Book of Bloomer, Wisconsin, and Clara Loofboro of Richmond, California; two sisters, Alice Ling of Bloomer, Wisconsin, and Clara Loofboro of Milton, Wisconsin; one brother, Eli of New Auburn; 38 grandchildren, nine step-grandchildren, and 47 great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband; a daughter, Jane; two sisters, Esther Churchward and Irene Loofboro; and two brothers, Leo and Ralph.

Funeral services were held on September 8, 1986, at Lindquist Funeral Chapel, Buffalo, Minnesota, with Rev. Carl Taylor officiating. Intermemt was in the Village Cemetery, New Auburn.

Obituaries

Mark. - Mrs. Dorothy Ingraham Mark passed away on December 20, 1985, at UNC-General Hospital after a long illness. She was a receptionist at Mary Elizabeth Convalescent Hospital and, more recently, she was employed at Richard Williams Book Store in New London, Connecticut.
She was a dear friend of the Waterford Baptist Church and attended when she was able.
She was born on October 1, 1920, in Centerbrook, Connecticut, the daughter of Alfred and Jennie Taylor Ingraham. Her husband preceded her in death on February 7, 1972.
Survivors include a son, Gregg W. Mark of Richmond, Virginia; four brothers; three sisters; and two step-grandchildren.
Funeral services were held at Byles-Coton Memorial Home. Interment was in Elm Grove Cemetery, Mystic, Connecticut. Pastor Don Richards conducted the memorial and graveside services.

Pederson. - Rev. Susan Pederson was born on November 12, 1919, in Marion, Iowa; the daughter of Ralph E. and Mary (Matiassen) Loofboro. She died on September 11, 1986, at the Ebenezer Covenant Home in Buffalo, Minnesota, where she had lived since 1982.
When she was four years old, Susan moved with her family to New Auburn, Wisconsin, where she was baptized at the Seventh Day Baptist Church in 1911, at the age of 15. She attended high school in Clark, Wisconsin, and later taught school in Minot, North Dakota. On December 31, 1919, she married Ivar Pederson in New Auburn. After their marriage, they made their home on a farm near New Auburn, where they lived until August of 1975. They then moved to Buffalo to live with their son, Dave, and his family. Ivar preceded her in death on December 12, 1975.
Susan was the oldest member of - and active in the New Auburn Seventh Day Baptist Church, and was a member of the Parent Teachers' Association and the American Legion Auxiliary in New Auburn.
She is survived by six sons, Virgil of Mt. View, California; Paul of Menomonee, Wisconsin; David of Buffalo, and Loyd, Arden and Clayton, all of New Auburn, two daughters, Helen of Clayton, Wisconsin, and Elizabeth of Richmond, California; two sisters, Alice, Lang of Racine, Wisconsin, and Clara Loofboro of Milton, Wisconsin; one brother, Earl of New Auburn; 38 grandchildren; nine step-grandchildren; and 47 great-grandchildren.
She was preceded in death by her husband; a daughter, Jane; two sisters, Esther Churchward and Irene Loofboro; and two brothers, Leo and Ralph.
Funeral services were held on September 8, 1986, at Lindquist Funeral Chapel, Buffalo, with Rev. Carl Taylor officiating; and on September 9, 1986, at the New Auburn Seventh Day Baptist Church, with Pastor Don Cheringer officiating. Interment was in the Village Cemetery, New Auburn.

Be gracious to me, O God, be gracious; for I have made thee my refuge. I will take refuge in the shadow of thy wings until the storms are past.

The Sabbath Recorder
Under God's Provision
by Charles Anderson

When you notice the birds that man does feed, They will search through the snow, to find a lost seed. Happy are they, you can hear their sweet song, They will finish their meal, and scurry along.

God created and loves the birds of the air, But His love for us, you cannot compare. God provides for the birds, as well as for you, When you're able to trust Him, then you can fly, too.
