Who are Seventh Day Baptists?

If you’ve never read The Sabbath Recorder before, you might be wondering who Seventh Day Baptists are. Like other Baptists, we believe in:

+ Salvation by grace through faith in Christ Jesus.
+ The Bible as the inspired word of God. The Bible is our authority for our faith and daily conduct.
+ Baptism of believers, by immersion, witnessing to our acceptance of Christ as Savior and Lord.

The seventh day

God commanded that the seventh day (Saturday) be kept holy. Jesus agreed by keeping it as a day of worship. We observe the seventh day of the week (Saturday) as God’s Holy Day as an act of loving obedience—not as a means of salvation. Salvation is the free gift of God through Jesus our Lord. It is the joy of the Sabbath that makes SDBs just a little different.

September 2003
Conference was almost planned, except for a small space in the schedule that revealed the lack of a musician for Monday morning's worship service.

Wrapping up his year-long visitation of Seventh Day Baptist churches, Conference President George Cruzan was worshipping with his brothers and sisters in Christ at the Seattle Area SDB Church in Auburn, Wash. With compassion and a desire to help, the church body asked if there was anything they could do to assist with the fast-approaching Conference.

President Cruzan was delighted—as we all were—when we heard the special selections of Seattle's vocal group, "Six Days Work," on Monday morning.

There are many more duties to being Conference president than simply chairing the business sessions. In fact, the president is in charge of almost everything scheduled for Conference week—or, at least, helping to plan it.

Though the president is involved in many activities, his/her two main jobs are to decide upon and develop a Conference theme, and to appoint people to carry out all of the Conference activities.

The theme for this year's Conference, "I am in Christ," came from a sermon given by President Cruzan's pastor, Don Chroniger, at the Shiloh, N.J., SDB Church.

Choosing the Conference theme, however, is only the beginning. As important as it is to have a well-developed, God-driven theme, it is also necessary to have enough people to carry out the activities. There are Bible study leaders to appoint, speakers to choose, and interest committees to head up.

"The most difficult part," said President Cruzan, "is the first six months of identifying people appropriate for each job."

As he traveled throughout the United States and Canada, meeting parishioners and speaking at SDB churches, Cruzan gathered a plethora of ideas for topics, speakers, and musicians, just as he did in securing the Seattle vocal group.

Of course, it would be too much work for one man to come up with all those names, which is why Cruzan is so thankful for people like his wife, Patricia, and for Kevin Butler, Andrew Camenga, Calvin Babcock, and many more. Their suggestions and ideas were very helpful.

The process of developing a theme, picking leaders to carry it out, and planning Conference does not happen overnight. Each August, we experience the coming together of 23 months of measureless work and preparation.

Though the process of planning is long and ongoing, President Cruzan's job culminates at the end of the week. On Sabbath night, the "changing of the guard" ushers in President-elect Dale Thorngate as next year's Conference President.

"One difficult thing about this job," Cruzan noted, "is that a person does it for only one year."

While there is little that can prepare one for stepping into the position of Conference president, Cruzan believes that being a part of General Council helped him to understand the role and importance of Conference within the denomination. As attendees spend worry-free time in wonderful worship, Bible studies, seminars, and activities, we can be thankful for all the preparation President Cruzan has done. And we pray for future presidents of the denomination as they begin planning the countless details that make Seventh Day Baptists at General Conference.

Business Action
• Approved 2004 budget of $1,014,006 calls for $425,153 to come from current giving

From Christian Social Action:
• We recommend the Seventh Day Baptist Conference of USA and Canada adopt the following statement: “Seventh Day Baptists strongly affirm that the Divinely instituted union of marriage is solely between a man and a woman.”

From General Council:
• To more adequately reflect the responsibilities and scope of the office, the General Council recommends a change of title from Executive Secretary to Executive Director of the Seventh Day Baptist General Conference, and where “Executive Secretary” appears in the by-laws, that the title be changed to “Executive Director.” [first reading]
• We are encouraged with the progress of the First Seventh Day Baptist Church of Alfred, N.Y. It appears that this church is currently functioning as a Seventh Day Baptist Church. It is appropriate for the church to retain Conference membership. First Alfred’s interaction in the Seventh Day Baptist General Conference, USA and Canada, Ltd., and the SDB Allegheny Association of Churches, should be sufficient safeguard based on the association principle. Therefore, in good conscience we cannot recommend removal of the First Seventh Day Baptist Church of Alfred.

From Reference and Counsel:
• In recognition of the progress the First Seventh Day Baptist Church of Alfred has made toward reconciling itself with the policy and beliefs of their World Federation program to start.

SDB Young Adults engaged and involved
by Aubrey Appel, from the Conference Crier

A large number of young adults met Tuesday night to get down to business. Erin Burdick was gracious enough to run the meeting and put up with our interruptions and jokes. Jonathan Mackintosh opened with prayer, and last year’s minutes were read.

First on the agenda was the topic of First Alfred’s interaction in the Seventh Day Baptist General Conference, USA and Canada, Ltd., and the SDB Allegheny Association of Churches, should be sufficient safeguard based on the association principle. Therefore, in good conscience we cannot recommend removal of the First Seventh Day Baptist Church of Alfred.

If you are interested in missions work, contact Kirk Looper, Miriam Lawton, Jeff Hazen, or Andrea Davis.

Jeff reported that next August the Faith Orphanage AIDS/HIV Awareness International Conference will take place in Zambia, South Africa. Also next year, InterVarsity will sponsor the Urbana International Conference in Urbana, Ill., a missions conference with awesome worship.

Church Planting Missions—another project with young adults in mind—is in the planning stages. The SDB Memorial Board may fund the volunteers, who will be given at least three months to do dedicated work in planting churches in such places as Louisville, Ky.; Richmond, Va.; Las Vegas, Nev.; and Urbana. Pastor Scott Haurath encourages us to pray for everyone involved in planning and preparing for this project.

Wayne North or Dr. Pete May can supply further information.

The second item on the agenda dealt with the Board of Christian Education. Executive Director Andrew Camenga fielded our questions concerning the scholarships for Year-End Retreats. The board is looking to change the fund from being capped to being regionalized, as a basis for distributing money for young adults' travel expenses.

All young adults are strongly encouraged to raise money during the fall to build up the fund. The donations should be designated for The Young Adult Year-End Retreat Travel Expenses Fund and sent to the BCE office at P.O. Box 111, Alfred Station, NY 14803. All comments and requests can be e-mailed to Nathanael Lawton at: fred_ya@hotmail.com.

We summed up a previous discussion about implementing prayer partners to aid the continuation of fasting and praying on Wednesdays next year.

It was decided that the Prayer Partner program will be open to all interested parties, regardless of age. A web page will be developed for posting messages of sharing and encouragement. Contact Lydia Davis for details.

We decided, as a whole, to set the goal of becoming more involved in our local churches this year. Pastor Scott suggested resources on fasting, such as books by Bill Bright, and Fasting for Spiritual Breakthrough by Elmer Towns.

It was decided that the YA Year-End Retreat will take place at Camp Wakonda in Milton, Wis. Kecia and Bethany Thompson (and) are co-chairing the host committee. Young adults on the East Coast were asked to begin planning for the 2004-2005 Winter Retreat.

Memorial Board lightens up

by Cheri Appel
From the Conference Crier

After the members of the Memorial Board were introduced and recognized, Erin Burdick began the presentation with, "We know you think we're stuffy and old-fashioned. That's why this year we've decided to lighten up!"

Erin high-lighted the many grants, funds, loans, gifts, and scholarships that come through the Memorial Board for the benefit of individuals and organizations in our denomination.

Don Graffius indicated that there's a new investment program for our denominational future—our pastors' kids! (And we all know that they're the smartest of all "PKs")

The Memorial Board will put $1,000 into a savings account for the children of pastors at the time of their birth. The account can be contributed to by anyone. The investment will mature until the child is 18, then the proceeds may be used for college or vocational school.

Don also reported that even though this has been a tough year for investments, our funds are showing positive returns, with some even in double digits!

So, What can you do to LIGHTEN UP? You can contribute to any existing Memorial Board fund. You can also create a new fund, give to an annuity, leave a gift for the SDB Conference in your will, or help develop a new ministry program.

We need to stand shoulder-to-shoulder!" (The traditional post-game Youth Rally song.)

The ABCs of UPGs for SDBs
by Abigail Vaught
From the Conference Crier

Tim and Jayme Osborn led a seminar on "The ABCs of UPGs for SDBs." They strongly encouraged people to begin praying for Unreached People Groups (UPGs) and to encourage others back at their home churches to pray. UPGs are "ethnic-language groups with no indigenous church or no church-planting movement with enough strength and resources to evangelize the entire group without help."

According to current statistics, less than 1% of the funds used for evangelization go towards reaching people who have never heard the Gospel. Who are already Christians?

According to Jayme, the "10-40 Window" is the largest area in the world filled with UPGs, including countries such as Iraq, Iran, and Mongolia— the hardest to reach for Christ because of the deep Islamic beliefs instilled from birth. Thus, in order to penetrate this zone for Christ, and to have the workers' efforts succeed, prayer is an absolute necessity.

No wonder they are unreached! Symbolizing the money and time spent on outreach, Tim Osborn (middle) gives daughter Baylee some leftover slices compared to the many loaves given to son Quentin who represented so-called Christian nations.

The Osborns also cited Elijah, who was a "normal guy" who prayed, and it didn't rain in Israel for three years. Even one prayer can make a difference!

We had a brief time of prayer for the Imazighen-Berber people, an Unreached People Group; listened to statistics; watched some skits; and were inspired to pray and offer our hearts to God for other people.

Sharing in Christ's riches
by Donna Bond
From the Conference Crier

We thought we were entertaining a fraternal delegate from the Association of TV Evangelists when Friday morning's Bible study began. But alas! It was our own Ken Burdick (Seattle Area church) merely imitating the style of a more visible brother.

With Hebrews 3:4, Philippians 4:19, and Colossians 1:27-28 as our basic study Scriptures, Ken led us on a word study through many of Paul's letters to determine just what is meant by "Christ's riches." Material or spiritual? Hmm...

Since several passages used the word "all," it became obvious that both spiritual and material needs will be met by God in Christ. Letters written from prison—possibly even death row—indicated that God had used the Philippian people to minister to Paul's needs in terms of financial support and encouragement. Paul knew what it was like to have plenty, and also to be in need. However, he had learned to be content in both situations. How? By surrendering to God, by allowing Him to define needs, and trusting Him to supply those needs.

Thus, Paul challenged his contemporary supporters and 21st century Christians to "Live in Christ's Riches."

Confession of a pew potato

by Marty Jackson

This is the confession of a pew potato. All my life, when I attended church, I usually tried to find a pew nearest the back of the sanctuary. I thought I was doing the right thing by going to church, singing some hymns, and listening to the sermon. I thought I was a pretty good person, and that the Lord should be happy with me.

Then, about 12 years ago, I moved my family to eastern Washington state. The closest Seventh Day Baptist church was in the Seattle area, about a four-hour drive from our home. I called the SDB Center in Janesville, Wis., to find out if there were any other people so I could wor­

I thought I was doing the right thing by going to church, singing some hymns, and listening to the sermon. I thought I was a pretty good person, and that the Lord should be happy with me.

I struggled through that class. Afterwards, I hoped that someone got something out of it, but I was lost. I really didn't know what I was doing. Why would the Lord of the universe want me to try to start a church?

After my ad ran for a few weeks, I started receiving some phone calls. I didn't know where to start! I would talk to callers and tell them I was trying to get people together to start a church. But I didn't have a plan, so nothing happened.

Then one day, a woman called and said that she and her husband would like to talk to us in person. We arranged to meet at a restaurant and dine together.

We enjoyed the meal and company, so we decided to start a Bible study on Friday nights. We took turns leading the study and added a few more members.

In February of 2002, we had six people meeting at our home. By the first of September, we were meeting on Sabbath mornings and had 20 people one Sabbath. There wasn't an empty chair in our house, so we rented a church building.

We now average 15-20 people each week. I teach the lesson most of the time, and I'm not quite as nervous speaking in front of people as I used to be. My wife plays the piano during worship, and we have one family that loves to lead the singing. We have a church in Kennewick!

Now I don't want to go back to sitting in the rear pew. I've been greatly blessed by taking part in worship and have found out that it's not a spectator sport. I've received so much more by actively participating in worship that I can't even imagine being a pew potato.

There are times when I wish we had a pastor to take over some of the responsibilities, but I want to do what I can to help our church grow. I'm not a special person, but I have discovered that God will take what little we have and give us so much more in return.

Do you live far from an SDB church? Ask God to take care of it for you, but don't be surprised if He asks you to help. It's a blessing waiting to happen.

You can call me at (509) 308-6707. (We live on the West Coast, so please remember the time difference.) I'm always happy to share some humorous stories.

Stories, songs, and a skit

by Vicki Burdick, From the Conference Crier

At the Women's Banquet during Conference, approximately 120 ladies of all ages enjoyed a buffet meal with unlimited desserts. What more could we ask for?!

Although the food was good and the program was great, it was the fellowship with our sisters in Christ that was the amazing part of the evening.

We were blessed with dinner music by Brett and Aubrey Greene, and hearing the shared Summer Chris­tian Service Corps experiences of a project director (Linda Lawton), a four-year veteran (Miriam Lawton), and an Australian worker (Maureen Siolo).

Pears from the Past by Don A. Sanford, historian

Name changes are a part of history

A recent book by Michael Perry entitled, Population: 489—Meeting Your Neighbors One Siren at a Time, caught my fancy. What intrigued me the most about Perry’s book was that the town of 489 people he wrote about was New Auburn, Wis., where I had pastored from 1954-1958. At that time, the population was around 390. Except for nearby Interstate 35 and a new school, the town hadn’t changed much.

From Cartwright to Auburn

One paragraph of Perry’s book that especially caught my attention dealt with the town’s name changes. I knew that the town and church used to be named “Cartwright,” after David Cartwright, a member of the Milton, Wis., Seventh Day Baptist Church in the 1870s.

Cartwright secured a tract of land in the pine area and put up a sawmill. As his employees built mills, the town became known as “Cartwright.” The postal department dropped the “ills,” and the town became Cartwright. When residents established an SDB church there in 1879, it took that name also. Even Seventh Day Baptists in Europe and America lists the church as “Cartwright.”

“I was the very particular name-confusing in 1902, when Rev. Leon Burdick was pastor of the Minnesota church, and his wife, Rev. Perle F. Randolph Burdick, ministered at the Wisconsin church. (I was glad to hear that the Seattle Area SDB Church, when it bought its building in Auburn, Wash., kept the Seattle Area name. Otherwise, it would have been the “Nearest Auburn” SDB Church.)

Cuba to Genesee

Growing up in Little Genesee, N.Y., the church there was originally called “Cuba.” When the county became more populated, Cuba was divided into about four townships.

I never understood why our corner of Cuba township was called “Genesee.” The Genesee River flows through the central part of the county, but the water from our corner flows into the Allegheny River system.

“Little Rhode Island” would have been a more appropriate name, since the Little Rhode Island Cemetery is about a mile from our church. The cemetery was so named because many of the area’s earliest settlers were Seventh Day Baptists from Rhode Island.

On to Milton, or Prairie du Lac

When I left to attend Milton College in Milton, Wis., it didn’t take long to discover that the town was named after the English poet, John Milton. One of our college songs began with:

While reading about Milton’s history, I discovered that when Joseph Goodrich and Henry Crandall settled there with their families in 1839, Milton was known as Prairie du Lac (French for “Prairie of the Lake”). However, the Post Office made them change the name because it sounded too much like the town of Prairie du Sac, named after the Sac Indian tribe.

Since all of this took place before zip codes, it’s easy to understand how letters could be sent to the wrong post office. With a name like “Milton,” mail sometimes went to Milltown or Milton instead.

King Alfred on the Nile

When I entered seminary in Alfred, N.Y., I had no problem with the town’s name, for I had attended enough Alfred University football games to hear: “On Saxon warriors, the Purple and Gold defend,” linking the town to King Alfred the Great of England, who died in 899.

When workers constructed the Erie Railroad across the southern tier of New York, it missed Alfred by about two miles. The little town that grew up around the station was thus named “Alfred Station.” The Seventh Day Baptists in Alfred were grateful for the invitation to help celebrate the Jamaica General Conference’s 80th anniversary.

On to Milton, or Prairie du Lac

When I left to attend Milton College in Milton, Wis., it didn’t take long to discover that the town was named after the English poet, John Milton. One of our college songs began with:

The Conference meetings were held on the campus of the new Maiden Hall Conference Center and Camp. Work on the building was escalated so that it would be finished in time for the meetings.

The Center’s cement structure has two floors. The lower floor houses the kitchen and dining room, with the men’s dormitory off the dining area. The second floor contains a lecture hall and rooms that are used for the women’s dormitory. It is a very efficient building, with little wasted space. More rooms—such as a lecture hall, and more dorm and cafeteria space—can be added as additional funds become available.

The Conference gathering was a time of tremendous fellowship, spiritual leadership and, of course, good food!

Bible study, praise, and prayer started out each day; then we enjoyed the preaching of one of the pastors or leaders. Conference business was conducted on Thursday and Fridays. On Sabbath, morning worship and Sabbath School were the main activities. All of the speakers were great, and everyone felt the Spirit of God moving. All week, sweet fellowship enveloped us as people took advantage of the many opportunities to talk and share.

Even though the days lasted from 6:00 a.m. to after midnight, everyone was still in good humor at the end of the week. The meetings ended with a baptism at the local baptismal pool, a short walk from the campus.

As the Conference observed its 80 years, historical references were made throughout the week. It was especially interesting to hear of the work of Sister Smikle, who rode a donkey from town to town to spread the work of Seventh Day Baptists in Jamaica.

We also heard of the many pastors who took great pains to perpetuate the work of the Conference. During its years in Jamaica, the Conference has developed 30 churches, with 15 pastors and several branches. It has also developed an extensive leadership education program, built a ministry with the Maiden Hall complex, and provided materials and programs to educate the church youth.

This is a wonderful inheritance, based on the faithfulness and sacrifice of our Jamaican brethren. It has been handed down through the years, and we pray that it will continue for many more years.

When "The Fat Man" asks you to come forward

by Philip Lawton
From the Conference Crier

This year at Pre-Con, the self-declared "Fat Man" (Pastor Rod Henry) spoke on becoming full of the Holy Spirit. He used the analogy of a golf glove becoming full from the hand of Tiger Woods.

That glove, though limp without Tiger's hand, can become a great instrument for golfing. Rod said that we are like that glove. Until we have the Holy Spirit, we cannot do much. But with the Holy Spirit, we can move mountains.

At the end of his second sermon, Rod asked anyone who wanted to change their life and be filled—or refilled—with the Holy Spirit, to come forward. Many of us at Pre-Con were informally and helped me to better communicate with God.

Pre-Con was highly enjoyable because of all the fun that "The Fat Man" and David brought to the youth. I believe that lives will continue to be changed because of these pastors.

In addition to Pastor Rod's sermons, Pastor David Thorngate conducted classes on prayer, touching on "how" and "why" to pray. They were informative and helped me to continue to be changed because of these pastors.

This spring, I decided to redesign my yard. Major outdoor projects always have their downsides, but there are upsides as well.

Sure, I had a few tons of bricks and paving sand camped out on my patio for several weeks. And, granted, I went through seven pairs of patio and garden gloves. (I still have enough dirt under my fingernails to grow a wide assortment of vegetables.) But digging and cutting outside my house meant that I wasn't dusting and cleaning inside my house. I'll take mowing over vacuuming any day.

A friend graciously loaned her out-of-work husband as a "handyman extraordinare" for several weeks. It turned out to be a blessing for both of us: He needed the extra money, and I needed someone with the time and expertise to complete my swelling list of tasks.

(I'm continually amazed by God's wondrous timing. George found employment the same week he finished all of my major projects.)

One project I undertook by myself was to build a brick planter near my front steps. When I finally finished the job, I headed to a local greenhouse to buy flowers.

When I stepped into that sun-drenched, spacious building, it nearly took my breath away. Literally thousands of plants engulfed me. They were a myriad of shapes and sizes, each with its own unique texture and fragrance—perennials and annuals, fruit-bearing plants and vegetables, trees and shrubs, herbs and tropical flora. Everywhere I looked, a living rainbow of petals and leaves spread out before me.

I asked a young clerk where I could find the moss roses, and she directed me to a large table several yards away. As I sorted through the plants, an older couple approached. They, too, were searching for moss roses.

After exchanging comments about the flowers—obviously not the old-fashioned, double-petaled moss roses that we were looking for—the pair headed off in another direction.

"Safaried" a few more tables before locating our elusive quarry.

By now, the elderly couple was on the far side of the greenhouse. I hurried over to them and triumphantly announced, "I found our moss roses!"

They followed me back to the flowers and were delighted. "These are what we've been looking for!" the husband said excitedly. The three of us scrutinized our treasure trove of delicate blooms and stems before selecting just the right plants.

Suddenly, the words burst from my lips: "I don't know how people get through life without the Lord."
Putting the “fun” back in fund-raising by Valerie Heath, Boulder, Colo.

Don’t you “love” it when your child comes home from school and utters those dreaded words?—“Mom, my class is going to raise funds for band uniforms. We’re going to sell...” Then you get hit with the usual list of calendars, magazines, chocolate, wrapping paper, and on and on.

In your head is a vision. Oh, not of your child going door-to-door, peddling whatever the school came up with to sell. Instead, you see yourself, dragging order forms to the office, begging coworkers to help you out. Friends avoid you, afraid that you might ask them to give you money on the spot.

For all of you who have “been there, done that,” fund raisers are the least favorite aspect of any extracurricular activity in your school, service club, or church. So, when Jean Jorgensen from the Nortonville, Kan., church sent a letter about designating May as “Youth Missions Month”—and having SDB youth, nationwide, raise money for a camp in Guyana, South America—my heart sank. Yet, our youth in Boulder were very enthusiastic about the whole idea.

With some skepticism, I listened to the fund-raising proposals. As expected, our young people bombarded me with the usual ideas.

“We could have a spaghetti supper,” one child said timidly. This proposition was met with groans. It’s not that we don’t love spaghetti; it’s just so much work.

“We could have a slave auction,” someone else said, with even less enthusiasm.

This idea of raising money for a mission camp in Guyana was going nowhere fast.

Youth and missions—a great match!

Having our SDB youth focus on missions is a wonderful idea. The kids in the Boulder church were so excited to learn about another camp being formed in another part of the world. On May 31, our youth Sabbath focused on our own facilities at Camp Paul Hummel. We sang camp songs and held a slide show of old camp pictures that brought tears to many eyes.

What a lot of great memories!

Isn’t this what camps are all about? Our SDB camping programs are probably our foremost tools for evangelism. I hope we never lose sight of how important it is to continue to teach our youth in a camp setting.

Following our youth Sabbath, our kids met at Camp Paul Hummel to count pennies, but they also undertook a camp service project.

In the spring, a large trench had been dug to bury some repaired electrical lines, and our youth were asked to fill in the trench. They also painted, cleaned, and did several smaller jobs to get the camp ready for its season-opening in July.

In all, it was a wonderful weekend and a perfect ending to a wonderful month. I truly hope that SDB Youth across the country will consider doing a Missions focus again next year—indeed, every year!

—Valerie Heath

I believe it was Levi Thorngate who spoke up next: “We could have a Penny War,” he said with a grin. “A Penny War?” I asked innocently.

“Well!” chimed in Amberle Thorn­gate. “We did one at school. It was totally fun, and no work at all!”

Now, when a teenager says that something is “no work at all,” I tend to believe it. Teens aren’t inclined toward physical effort, unless they’re playing a competitive game. Still, the question that kept running through my mind was, How will the good people of the Boulder church react if they’re asked to pitch pennies at each other? Somehow, that did NOT sound like much fun, at least, not for adults.

“Why does this Penny War work?” I asked.

The other kids were equally inter­ested. (Another clue that “the war” might actually be a good idea.)

“No, the war will just make them lose their war,” a third kid chimed in. (Have you noticed that the less one wins, the more one wants to lose the battle?)

“It’s easy,” Levi said. “We challenge each of the church classes to participate. They get a bucket with a lid that has a hole cut in it. Everyone brings pennies from home and puts them in the bucket in their classroom.”

“So, the class with the most pennies wins?” I asked.

“Well,” Amberle interjected, “it’s not quite that simple. You see, you can sabotage another class by putting other things in their bucket—like quarters, dimes, nickels, dollars, ten-dollar bills—you get the idea. The other types of money count against the number of pennies in the bucket. If you have someone put a dollar in your bucket, you have to have at least one hundred pennies to break even. I thought for just a moment before I nodded my head in approval. This Penny War does sound like fun!

The very next week, the youth presented their idea to the church. The competition would be between our Sabbath School classes. The one thing I hadn't foreseen was just how competitive the people in our small church are.

We limited our war to four weeks. Members brought in large pickle jars half full of pennies. We selected one of our youth—Ana Peterson—to act as an "embedded reporter," giving weekly updates on how the classes were doing, and who had been caught sabotaging some of the other buckets. Her updates became the highlight of our sharing time.

One week, I overheard someone telling Mary Wells, "No, no, Mary! You can't put that dollar in OUR bucket! Let's go put it in someone else's bucket!"

Our Penny War raised almost $675.00. By far, it was the most successful fundraiser we have ever had.

During the entire war, not a week went by that members weren't caught visiting other Sabbath School classrooms, dropping in bills as fast as they could. At the end of the four weeks, many of the youth gathered at Camp Paul Hummel for a work retreat (see box on page 21) and to count the money so they could announce a winner. It was interesting that the class that won (The Helping Hand class) was still "in the hole" by $1.16. The other classes raised far more money, but they lost because their penny numbers didn't even come close to matching the amount of dollars in their buckets. The losing class was more than $100 in the hole! With about 75 members, and in four short weeks, our Penny War raised almost $675.00. By far, it was the most successful fundraiser we have ever had. And the church members subsequently cornered me to let them know that they were already saving their pennies for next year.

This "war of coins" taught me an important lesson: successful fundraising needs to come from an idea that is well-received by your target group. And the idea should be original and have an aspect of fun to it. This experience also taught me something else: SDBs are very competitive! In the end, the camp in Guyana is the real winner. Thanks, Jean Jorgensen, for your great idea. Let's do it again! Who will be next year's recipient of the Youth Missions Month?

Alfred Station VBS news by Heather Rao

The Alfred Station, N.Y., SDB Church completed another successful Vacation Bible School. We had 58 children registered, with 55 as our average attendance.

Many thanks go out to our director Peggy Chroniger. She has led our VBS for 10 consecutive years and has decided to pass that pleasure on to someone else next year. Please help our church by praying that we can find someone with as much enthusiasm for VBS as Peggy. Our VBS again had a float in the Fourth of July parade. The float was in memory of Paul Branon, who drove our float in 2002 and then passed away later in the year in a trucking accident. Paul is dearly missed. When we reached the judges' stand this year, the children and adults on the float stood up to sign and sing "God Bless America." A great time was had by all.

A litany of God's goodness

On June 7, 2003, the First SDB Church of Geneseo in Little Genesee, N.Y., held a groundbreaking ceremony for its new church building. It will replace the one destroyed in a fire two years ago. Attendees included the church's pastor, Rev. Gordon Lauton, and its oldest living members—Letha Polen, Hazel Granier, and Ruth Bottoms. The dedication's Response Reading is printed below. (The leader read the regular type; the people read the bold type.)

How great are your works; O Lord, how profound your thoughts. How great you are, O Sovereign Lord! There is no one like you, and there is no God but you. How great is your goodness, which you have stored up for those who fear you, whom you bestow in the sight of men on those who take refuge in you.

(For each of His acts of mercy and kindness we all declare it would have been enough.) If the Lord had merely prevented any serious injury to firemen and others during the fire, but had not provided us with an alternate meeting place, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided an abundance of funds in gifts from all over, but had not provided an SSCC team to redecorate and refurbish the Community Center, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided an SSCC team, but had not brought in new attendees and musicians, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH.

If He had only seen fit to expand our congregation, but had not provided the opportunity to expand by acquiring the neighboring property, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided us with an alternate meeting place, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided willing hands of brothers and sisters in Christ to prepare it, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided willing hands to help prepare the Community Center, but had not provided donations of furniture and equipment to help replace what was lost, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH.

If He had only provided us with an alternate meeting place, but had not provided willing hands of brothers and sisters in Christ to prepare it, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided willing hands of brothers and sisters in Christ to prepare it, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided willing hands of brothers and sisters in Christ to prepare it, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided willing hands of brothers and sisters in Christ to prepare it, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided willing hands of brothers and sisters in Christ to prepare it, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH. If He had only provided willing hands of brothers and sisters in Christ to prepare it, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ENOUGH.”

How great is the love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that is what we are!

SR Reaction

Dear Kevin,

As you know, at Conference this August I stepped down as a member of the SDB General Council. I had toyed with the idea of also stepping away from the podium and our Monday morning script to "preach a little sermon" on what I see as the obligation of all our churches to financially support the General Conference. (My colleagues on the Council were relieved to know that I abandoned that plan, in favor of this note.)

A few years ago, Pastor Jack Morgan of our Paitaka, Fl., church showed me a passage in Numbers 18 that seems to provide an excellent model for the way believers and individuals should contribute to the work of God's earthly kingdom. Inasmuch as we don't read Numbers in great numbers (guese), here is a summary of God's plan for His people regarding giving:

Levites, the priestly tribe, were to receive tithes from the rest of the Israelites. These offerings were set apart for the Lord. The Levites, in turn, were told to give a tenth of the tithes they received—a tithe of the tithes—to Aaron, the high priest. Then, God warned the Levites not to treat the holy gifts of the people of Israel as though they were common.

As believers, we are bound together in fellowship and through our relationship with sister churches.

The Paint Rock (Ala.) SDB Church and the Cornerstone SDB Church (Pontotoc, Miss.) have enjoyed good fellowship for several years. Cornerstone was once a branch of Paint Rock, and our mutual support continues.

The Cornerstone meetinghouse's stained glass windows were a gift from the Delkley, NY, SDB Church. One of the windows is dedicated to Dr. Ella Swaney, a missionary to China from 1883 to 1895. Descendants of her family, now living in Texas, visited Pontotoc recently and donated funds to install a plexiglas panel to protect the window. The church currently has no pastor. Leadership is provided by the church officers—Larry and Carolyn

The Bible speaks in the areas of biology, astronomy, hydrology, geology, and more. While God thought these areas were worth addressing, unfortunately the Church has generally remained silent on them. The stories that are presented in the SR are excellent but, by themselves, they're inadequate. The lies of the world, if left unanswered, will be accepted as truth.

Every day, the Discovery Channel broadcasts at least one program promoting evolution. Almost every week, PBS will have some TV program promoting evolution. All the while, churches, including SDB, are just telling more Bible stories. Bible and other inspirational stories need to be a significant part of Christian education, but in today's world, they are not enough. If you wish to equip Christians of all ages to confront the dominant "religion" in the world today—evolution—you must give them the information they need.

What is needed is a regular feature in the SR that will give a biblical and scientific answer to the lie of evolution, showing how the evidence supports the reality of Creation.

Yours in Christ, Sean Neek
Mt. Juliet, TN
Day Baptist church in that town took on the same name, a great improvement over its first location in Goose Pasture.

Nearer the center of Allegany County was a branch of the Alfred church, designated in 1825 as the Friendship Seventh Day Baptist Church. Yet to most of us, it was known as the Nile Church. (I never knew why the community was named Nile. It flowed into the Genesee River, not the Nile!)

According to tradition, it was once named Nile. Its waters flowed into the Genesee River, not the Nile!)

The town of Richburg may have gotten its name from the rich flow of oil in the area. Because of its name, a Sabbathkeeping group in the Gold Coast area of Africa contacted that church in hopes of getting some of its riches. A short-lived mission was established at Ayan Main in West Africa in 1900.

Associating our historical geography

Physical geography remains fairly constant, but historical geography is ever changing. Our first SDB church in America was in Newport, R.I., in 1671. Its daughter church, called “Westerly,” later became “Hopkinson” or “easternmost church in the United States.

In 1835, three SDB Associations were established: the Eastern Association, comprised of the churches near the Atlantic; the Central Association, made up of churches in Central New York State; and the Western Association, which included western New York and expanded into western Virginia, Ohio, and even Wisconsin.

Curved out of this latter group, the Southwestern Association was later changed to the Southeastern, which recently divided into the Appalachian and South Atlantic Associations. These included the churches in southwestern Pennsylvania, western Virginia, and Ohio.

In 1649, the Northwestern Association was established, and included all of the area from Wisconsin to California, and from Minnesota to Arkansas and Texas.

It wasn’t until about 1968 that the Western Association became the Allegheny Association—spelled after the river, not the county where most of the people lived. Around 1980, it expanded out of the country to include Toronto in Canada.

As members of our churches followed the “Oregon Trail” to Conference this year—whether by car, train, or air—perhaps they considered some of the historical changes as well as the geographic variations.

For geography and history are not isolated studies, but closely intertwined.

In Christ at Conference

At one of my first Conferences, I heard an outspoken delegate deploring about how appalling he was at our “paltry” budget for the work of the denomination.

“This budget should be over a million dollars!” he insisted.

I didn’t realize that we had a prophet among us.

It may have taken 20 years, but our combined budget is now in the seven-figure category for the first time. Are we ready for this challenge? (More on this in future columns; in the meantime, read the Reaction letter on page 25 for a “numbers” idea.)

Other reflections from the first week of August:

- a search for new Conference leadership is underway in earnest. (And one piece of the puzzle was just named—see below.)
- a high level of involvement and commitment from our young adults and youth.
- a “different” kind of Tract Council presentation, with lots of reminiscing—and a surprise for the curious.
- various important committee actions and recommendations (see page 6 and below).
- a new staff assistant photographer instead of a blonde. Daughter and college grad Jenny was home working, so Andrea Davis filled in behind the camera. Great job, Andrea, and THANKS!!
- a very hospitable staff and fine facilities at George Fox University.

So, hey, what do you say? Shall we do this again next year?

Seventh Day Baptists, the Committee recommends that the General Conference take no further action regarding removal of this church.

- The Committee recommends the following bylaw change (to appear as the final paragraph of Article 2): “If, after the General Council has had time to research issues carefully and to pursue reconciliation, it reports to General Conference that it does not recommend the church for removal from membership, then the Corporation may, by 2/3 majority vote by churches at a General Conference session, override that decision and remove the church from its membership.” [First reading]
