News for and about Seventh Day Baptists
The seventh day

God commanded that the seventh day (Saturday) be kept holy. Jesus agreed by keeping it as a day of worship. We observe the seventh day of the week (Saturday) as God's Holy Day as an act of loving obedience—not as a means of salvation. Salvation is the free gift of God through Jesus our Lord. It is the joy of the Sabbath that makes SDBs a people with a difference.

Who are Seventh Day Baptists?

If you've never read The Sabbath Recorder before, you might be wondering who Seventh Day Baptists are. Like other Baptists, we believe in:

- salvation by grace through faith in Christ Jesus.
- the Bible as the inspired word of God. The Bible is our authority for our faith and daily conduct.
- baptism of believers, by immersion, witnessing to our acceptance of Christ as Savior and Lord.
- freedom of thought under the guidance of the Holy Spirit.
- the congregational form of church government. Every church member has the right to participate in the decision-making process of the church.

Ever been in a conversation where someone just says, “I’ve got my reasons!”

Well, here are my reasons. They don’t represent a “theological treatise” on the truth of the Sabbath, but they are the results of my personal reflection on why I keep the seventh-day Sabbath.

It’s not a real exhaustive list—Kevin would only give me a few pages (grin)—and some of the reasons you will find more compelling than others. My prayer is that this list will help you to reflect on your own reasons for keeping the Sabbath. If our reasons are right, they will inspire us to honor God more fully in our Sabbathkeeping.

Reason #10: I still have a bit of “rebel” in me

How often do Sabbathkeepers hear: “Why can’t you just keep Sunday like everyone else?” While that would make things easier at times, we all know that the truth is not defined by “the majority.”

The fact that I like to go against the flow is a poor reason for keeping the Sabbath. However, Scripture does encourage us to think for ourselves, rather than just going along with what conventional wisdom teaches. (Romans 12:2a; John 15:18-19)

Reason #9: It connects me with my spiritual and family heritage

I count it a privilege to have been born and raised a Sabbathkeeper. Keeping the Sabbath is one of the ways my family has attempted to honor God for generations.

My father and grandfather were both Seventh Day Baptist pastors. The people who have most deeply impacted my Christian experience have also been Sabbathkeepers.

When I keep the Sabbath, I am joining together with my immediate family, my ancestors, and my spiritual mentors to stand for the truth of God’s principles. (Deuteronomy 6:1-2a; 2 Timothy 3:14-15)

Reason #8: I can find no convincing argument to stop

Most Christians acknowledge that the seventh day is the Sabbath described in Scripture. Then they list the reasons why it is no longer valid.

They quote misinterpreted Bible verses, point to church history, emphasize our freedom from the Law, talk about how the “first day” resurrection of Christ supercedes the “Old Testament” Sabbath, or even point to practical reasons.

For me, if God expected that His children would keep the Sabbath, I have to be convinced that His expectations have changed before I feel it is okay to stop. I do not see any indication of this change in Scripture (Old or New Testament). And no extra-biblical reason holds the same weight with me.

So until God convinces me otherwise, I will just keep on doing what I believe to be right. (Romans 14:5, 22-23)

Reason #7: God promised rewards and blessings to Sabbathkeepers

In the Old Testament, God is pretty clear with the Israelites about the consequences of breaking the Sabbath and the blessing of keeping the Sabbath. While we cannot directly apply God’s promises to the Israelites to believers today, we can see that God was predisposed to respond favorably to His children who kept the Sabbath.

Now, I’m not a big fan of trying to manipulate a blessing out of God. But I do love to do those things that make Him happy. And if He chooses to bless me along the way... well, who am I to argue with God? (Isaiah 58:13-14)

Reason #6: God designed us to need a weekly physical, mental, and emotional rest

Everything in today’s culture is about pushing our limits—24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. God’s design for the human body is different. We were not made to just keep going and going without a break. Jesus said, “The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath” (Mark 2:27, ESV).

When was the Sabbath “made”? At the giving of the Ten Commandments? When the nation of Israel was established through Abraham? No, the Sabbath was established by God’s example at Creation (Genesis 2:2).

Was God tired? No—He was finished with His work and rested (or ceased), establishing for His new world a cycle of six days of work, followed by one day of rest. While we have kept the calendar—the 7-day cycle—we have done away with the concepts of “rest” and “ceasing.”

God instructed us to cooperate with the way He created us. When we fight against that, there are natural consequences. Physically, we get tired and run down. Our bodies start to break down. We become susceptible to sickness or disease.

Mentally, we also get tired and lose our focus. Our clarity of thought is reduced, which impedes our judgment. This in turn leads to poor decisions.

Emotionally we get tired, stressed and depressed. We ride an emotional roller coaster of high highs and low lows. We more easily give in to negative emotions and can eventually snap. (Leviticus 23:3)

Reason #5: It reminds me of who God is, what He has done and what He will do.

•Creator: In the Exodus account of the Fourth Commandment, Israel was reminded of God’s rest at the end of the Creation as a reason for keeping the Sabbath holy (Exodus 20:8-11). When I follow His pattern of working six days, then resting (or ceasing) and keeping the Sabbath holy (or set apart), it is a weekly reminder of the power and work of my Creator. (Genesis 2:2-3)

•Savior: The Deuteronomy account points Israel additionally to their deliverance from slavery in Egypt (Deut. 5:12-15) as a reason for abstaining from work on the Sabbath. Since the Exodus is also an illustration of God’s delivering us from slavery to sin through the saving work of Jesus Christ, our Sabbathkeeping is a weekly reminder of His saving work on our behalf. (Levit. 23:3; Deut. 5:14, etc.)

The Sabbath provides us the perfect weekly opportunity to focus our attention on God in a special way. We can recharge our spiritual batteries and soak up some “special God time,” which is a crucial survival skill for all believers.

Reason #4: I am spiritually renewed through focusing my attention more fully on my Savior.

With four children in our home, I have to be very intentional about making time to connect with my wife. When I don’t, communication breaks down and our relationship suffers.

The same is true in our relationship with God. It must be intentionally nurtured in order to maintain and deepen our spiritual vitality. Obviously this must be a daily focus, not just one day a week.

But in this rat race of a life, it can be difficult to devote the proper amount of time and energy to main-
We don’t have to be with a group to worship. We can and should worship God individually whether we are at home, at work, out for a walk in the woods or somewhere else (even at church). However, there is something special about gathering together with other believers and proclaiming together with one voice, “Our God Reigns!”

There is something special about gathering together with other Christians and proclaiming together with one voice, ‘Our God Reigns!’

Scripture tells us that from the time of the wilderness wanderings through the time of the New Testament Church, God’s people have gathered together to do just that. The Psalms are full of instructions for honoring God through our corporate worship. This worship most commonly took place on Sabbath, whether it was a holy convocation in the desert (Levit. 23:3), the custom of Jesus and others in Israel (Luke 4:16), a New Testament assembly at the synagogue (Acts 18:4), or a gathering of God-fearers by the river (Acts 16:13).

When we gather together for worship, our hearts are strengthened and our worship is inspired by the faith and worship of those with whom we gather. As a day “set apart,” the Sabbath is an ideal time for us to come together with other believers to honor God in this way.

Reason #3: I can honor God in a special way by worshipping Him together with other believers

We can and should worship God individually whether we are at home, at work, out for a walk in the woods or somewhere else (even at church). However, there is something special about gathering together with other believers and proclaiming together with one voice, “Our God Reigns!”

Scripture tells us that from the time of the wilderness wanderings through the time of the New Testament Church, God’s people have gathered together to do just that. The Psalms are full of instructions for honoring God through our corporate worship. This worship most commonly took place on Sabbath, whether it was a holy convocation in the desert (Levit. 23:3), the custom of Jesus and others in Israel (Luke 4:16), a New Testament assembly at the synagogue (Acts 18:4), or a gathering of God-fearers by the river (Acts 16:13).

When we gather together for worship, our hearts are strengthened and our worship is inspired by the faith and worship of those with whom we gather. As a day “set apart,” the Sabbath is an ideal time for us to come together with other believers to honor God in this way.

Reason #2: God says so!

When God recorded the Ten Commandments for Israel, He did it for their own good (Deut. 10:13). He didn’t just sit down on a whim and say, “Hmm... what should I make them do today?”

These principles for living are based both on the character and nature of God and His design of the human race. While applications may be specific, the principles are timeless and applicable to all of God’s people at all times.

When God wrote the Fourth Commandment—“Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days you shall labor, and do all your work, but the seventh day is a Sabbath to the Lord your God” (Exodus 20:8-10)—He was describing His universal expectation for His people.

God reinforced that concept by pointing back to Creation where He “Blessed the seventh day and made it holy” (Genesis 2:3a).

Jesus, although technically a Jew, also reinforced this principle through his own keeping of the Sabbath. God showed through Israel that when His people ignore the Sabbath, their relationship with Him suffers.

Now I will not claim to be the most obedient of all God’s creatures. But my desire is to respond to God’s “Jump!” with an enthusiastic “How high?” And yelling on the way up at that.

Since I know that God expects me to keep the Sabbath, why would I want to do anything else?

Reason #1: I love Him

This is the bottom line. It goes hand in hand with the previous reason, but is an important addition to the concept of obedience.

We can obey for all kinds of reasons (some good, some bad and some ridiculous). Some might obey to avoid punishment or to maintain a good appearance or because of an insatiable desire to please others.

Some might obey out of convenience or because everybody else is doing it. Some think obedience will gain them right standing with God and purchase their ticket to heaven.

But the true and pure reason for obedience is LOVE. Jesus said to his followers, “If you love me, you will keep my commandments.”

Let me tell you... I LOVE JESUS! I love God, his Father. I love His Word, His world, I love the way He created and loves me. I love everything about Him.

Because I love Him, I want to please Him. I want to honor Him. I want to do the things I know He wants me to do.

God wants me to keep the Sabbath. That’s all I need to know.

A caretaker takes care of a big decision

by Joan Holder
Paint Rock, Alabama

My name is Joan Holder. I am 72 years young, the mother of three children, five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Raised on a small farm in northern Alabama, I am the seventh of 10 siblings (eight are still living). I seem to be a very high-spirited person, love everyone, and have a desire to help anyone in need.

A definite role emerges

After marrying young I immediately began taking care of my mother-in-law who had rheumatoid arthritis. I was her caregiver for almost 20 years until her death in 1972. Not long after that, my father-in-law had a heart attack and stroke, so I began caring for him and did so until his passing.

It seems that being a caretaker is God’s will for my life, because shortly after my father-in-law’s death, my mother began to go blind. She moved next door so I could help with her.

In 1994 she passed away, and I took on the responsibility of taking care of my youngest brother who is now 62 years old and has Down syndrome.

Now it’s just Glenn

In 1986 my husband had seven bypasses and started having other heart issues. His health was fairly good until 2003 when congestive heart failure took a toll on his life. He passed away two years later.

So now it’s just my brother Glenn and me. We attend church together, and he is the greatest witness for the Lord that I have ever known.

When I got home, I opened the book and read the first page. It said that somewhere between Christ and our time, the observance of the Sabbath had been changed from the seventh day to the first day of the week. I laid the book aside and said, "No way.” I didn’t realize at the time that Satan didn’t want me to read that.

I kept reading

About six weeks later I opened it up again and read another page or two. I began to think, Can this really be true?

I picked up that little paperback several times before I could continue reading and compare it to the Bible. I wondered just how the rest of the world and I could have been so deceived by such a change, but it had surely happened.

The book told about who, when and why the change occurred. It has been some 20 years since I found the truth, and I am still on a spiritual high and praising God.

Making the transition

The transition from Sunday to Sabbath was not easy for me. There were many roadblocks along the way. Friends and congregants from my former church condemned me, even pointing fingers and telling me they felt sorry for me.
My husband did not accept this truth and demanded that I not go to a Sabbath church. I was submissive to him and asked God to give me a peace about doing the right thing. God gave me that peace. I went when I could, but it wasn’t until my husband’s death that I embraced the Sabbath and felt that I could worship freely.

Seventh Day WHAT?
There is no doubt that the Lord led me to the SDB church in Paint Rock, Alabama. I was searching the phone book for the closest Seventh-day Adventist church, when before my eyes, I saw “Seventh Day Baptist.” Could it really be? I didn’t know they existed!

At the first opportunity, I visited the church at Paint Rock where I met the most loving congregation. They took me under their wings immediately. Pastor John is one of a kind, and I love him dearly. He stands at the church door every Sabbath watching for his sheep to come in.

God has blessed me far more than I deserve. I am so thankful for the ones He has put in my path to take care of.

I feel confident that as long as I am able, He will continue to have someone in need of a caretaker, waiting for me. I am glad He took care of my church needs.

The Memorial Fund trustees have voted to help pastors in Malawi and their children. Between now and the end of July 2010, donations given toward Malawi will be matched, dollar-for-dollar by the Memorial Fund. The gifts will provide funding for the secondary education of pastors’ children, and will purchase bicycles for the pastors to reach their churches and people. A $40 gift will send one child to school for a year!

You have three choices in sending your gift: SDB Missionary Society, 19 Hillside Ave., Ashaway RI 02804; Metro Atlanta SDB Church, PO Box 1104, Dallas GA 30132; and Miami SDB Church, 10185 NW 7th Ave., Miami FL 33150. Make your check out directly to the Society or church, and please be sure to designate your gift as “Malawi Matching” in the memo. Thank you!
Seven months of the “Biggest SDB Loser” contest have passed. How are you feeling? Are you getting discouraged? Have you hit a plateau? Hopefully you feel like you’re making progress. Here are some ideas to help you keep trying:

1. Eat whole or cut-up fruit rather than juice, for the benefits that dietary fiber provides. Each fruit has a different nutrient content so vary your choices. (Mango is sweet, juicy and the queen of the antioxidant beta-carotene. Berries of all kinds are high in fiber, vitamin C and guilt-free sweetness.)

2. Eat foods and beverages low in “added sugars.” This includes sugars and syrups added to foods during processing, but not naturally occurring sugars like those in milk and fruits.

3. Use frozen vegetables for quick and easy microwave cooking.

4. Select vegetables with more potassium—such as sweet or white potatoes, beans (white, soy, lima or kidney), tomato products, beet greens and spinach, winter squash, lentils and split peas.

5. Order veggie toppings for your pizza. Mushrooms are a great source of protein, B vitamins and minerals.

6. Dried fruits make great snacks. They also have more sugar, so remember that 1/4 cup is equal to 1/2 cup other fruit.

7. Try a main dish salad for lunch. Dip your fork into the dressing rather than putting the dressing on your salad.

8. Popcorn, a whole grain, can be a healthy snack (with little or no added salt or butter).

9. Exercise by pedaling a stationary bike while watching TV.

10. Try a lowfat salad dressing with raw broccoli, red and green peppers, celery sticks or cauliflower. Better yet, use no dressing. Bell peppers are high in vitamins A and C.

11. Physical activity can include short bouts (10 minutes each) of moderate-intensity activity. The accumulated total is what’s important over the course of the day. Aim for 30 minutes.

12. For dessert, make pudding with fat-free or lowfat milk.

13. Color is not an indication of a whole grain. Bread can be brown because of molasses or other ingredients. Read the label! Choose a product that names one of the following ingredients first: brown rice, bulgur, graham flour, oatmeal, whole-grain corn, whole oats, whole rye, whole wheat, wild rice.

14. Substitute whole wheat for up to half the flour in pancake, waffle, muffin or other flour-based recipes.

15. If you drink cappuccinos or lattés, ask for fat-free (skim) milk.

16. Replace a coffee break with a brisk 10-minute walk. Ask a friend to go with you.

17. Look for fish rich in omega-3 fatty acids (salmon, trout, tuna). If fish isn’t your thing, add a tablespoon of ground flaxseed to your morning cereal.

18. Frozen juice bars (100% juice) make a healthy alternative to high-fat snacks.

19. Walking, gardening, briskly pushing a baby stroller or climbing stairs are all good ways of being active.

20. Sauces or seasonings can add calories, fat and sodium to vegetables.

21. For a change, try brown rice or whole wheat pasta. You may be surprised at how well your family adapts to these changes. A cup of whole wheat pasta gives you 6 grams of fiber.

22. Park farther from your destination and walk the rest of the way.

23. Substitute water, plain coffee or tea for beverages high in added sugars.

24. If you consume too many calories one day, eat less the next.

25. Plan time for exercise into your daily routine. Make it a habit.

Experts agree there are four things critical to weight loss:
- Create a calorie deficit
- Monitor food intake
- Track exercise expenditure
- Weigh yourself regularly

With these in mind and the tips above, push on for a healthier, trimmer you.
"Now we see but a poor reflection as in a mirror; then we shall see face to face." —1 Cor. 13:12

Reflections by Leanne Lippincott-Wuerthele

I felt a little awkward opening the door of the First Presbyterian Church in downtown Janesville, Wis. I knew that my pastor, George Calhoun, would be at the funeral service. If I'm lucky, I'll know four or five other people, I thought. I ended up recognizing three.

An even more uncomfortable feeling hit as I entered the church’s foyer. I barely knew the deceased, and had never met his family.

The service was already underway as I settled quietly into a rear pew. Looking around, I was astounded by the number of people there. I had expected a dozen, but there were several dozen, including a grieving fiancée.

As the man’s acquaintances shared their thoughts, I had difficulty concentrating. My mind kept wandering back to earlier times.

A few years ago, some churches started a program for homeless single men. Tagged as “GIFTS” ("God Is Faithful Temporary Shelter"), it first opened its doors on Christmas Eve 2007. Manned by volunteers at various church sites throughout the winter, the service provides more than just a warm place to sleep. Guests receive home-cooked meals, drug and alcohol counseling, and help in finding employment.

Along with other members of the Milton SDB Church, I donate food and help serve it when First Presbyterian hosts the GIFTS group. That’s how I met Archie Williams.

Archie was one of the first to receive the program’s help. A native of Watertown, Wis., he was homeless and jobless in Chicago when he decided to return to his home state. The help available through GIFTS was the main reason he came to Janesville. He quickly gave up panhandling, an activity he described as “humiliating.”

Archie’s financial situation remained grim, but the shelter brightened his outlook. Archie kept striving to improve his circumstances.

Then, tragedy struck. In the early hours of January 19, 2010—resisting the life-saving efforts of local police—Archie jumped off Janesville’s Center Avenue Bridge. He was only 40.

As I listened to Archie’s friends from my back pew, several common threads wove through their words. Archie was a compassionate man, a lovable man. “Children were drawn to him like a magnet,” one woman shared. “He always had time for them.”

He was also “a man of peace” who loved the Lord.

“Archie wasn’t a ‘religious’ guy, but he loved God,” one friend shared. “I heard his soul cry out for God, and he made my relationship with Jesus better.”

A young woman stated that Archie was “a guy who fell through the cracks.” She added that Archie had goals. “He wanted to be a motivational speaker and establish a homeless shelter himself.”

One speaker especially spoke to my heart:

“If we spend a lot of time judging people, we don’t have time to love them.”

—1 Cor. 13:12

The GIFTS program helps give homeless men, young and old, a sense of value. I just wish Archie had known how many people considered him valuable.

As one person remarked, all of us are “homeless.” As Christians, we eagerly await the day when Jesus will welcome us into our Real Home with those wonderful words, “Well done, good and faithful servant.”
Now, why would two women who have plenty of other things to do (working, sewing and eating chocolate) plan a road trip in the middle of winter to Missouri?

Well, the annual Women’s Banquet is on Wednesday evening (July 28) at this year’s SDB General Conference, held at Evangel University in Springfield, Mo. If you can attend Conference this summer, please plan to come to the Women’s Banquet!

We two outspoken and out-of-control women traveled to Evangel to represent the Women’s Board Banquet Committee by sampling the food and touring the campus. Keep in mind that we undertook this great sacrifice for all of you who will be attending the banquet.

After arriving on campus, Amy Englert—the amazing Events Coordinator at the University—escorted us immediately to a private dining room. We were just in time for lunch! What followed was a scrumptious tasting of the Italian catered menu provided by Chef George, Extraordinaire.

We sampled the delicious fare while discussing the details of the Banquet. The portabella mushroom vegetarian lasagna was so delicious that we had to be told to stop eating to leave room for other entrées! (If you would prefer this vegetarian entrée, please check the appropriate box when registering.)

The chicken breast with creamy sun-dried tomato sauce was wonderfully tender with a velvety sauce. Following that was perfectly cooked pasta, with choice of a light Alfredo or red sauce with meat. In addition, we’ll be having tossed salad, French bread, coffee, tea and water.

As if our salivary glands weren’t already working overtime, we went on to discuss the desserts: Forest Fruit Pie (containing apple, cherry, blackberry and rhubarb), vanilla crème brûlée, and flourless chocolate cake.

Are you drooling yet??

The luscious evening in July will begin with some socializing and information. Want to know what the Women’s Board is doing and how you can work with the Board to strengthen ministries of the entire Conference? All of the Women’s Board committee chairs and officers will be available to answer questions regarding our new website, the Women’s Society SR page, and our newsletter “Simply Put.”

You’ll be able to hear about the Women in Ministry Tuition Fund, the Robe of Achievement, Summer Christian Service Corps, and take home mementos of our new logo! Be ready to donate toward the Love Gift for the many worthy causes supported each year, as voted by the Women’s Interest Committee.

Our special guests will be the “first ladies” of the Conference, Diane Andries and Jo Rogers, wives of the president and president-elect, outstanding women in their own right. The main speakers will be the multi-talented, multi-tasking, and multi-generational mother-and-daughter team of Althea Rood and Kristin Camenga. They’ll give us their perspective, plans and dreams for the Women’s Board of today and the future. There will also be special music and testimonies.

So ladies, this is an evening you don’t want to miss! Pack your pretty outfit, bring your appetite for delicious food and your questions for the new Women’s Board. Check the spot on the Conference registration form to reserve your ticket. We must have your reservation by Monday, July 26 in order to include you in the count for the caterer. We don’t want to make Chef George steam now do we?

Oh, and if you ever need us to suffer and sacrifice by going on a road trip to talk, laugh, taste delicious food, and be treated like royalty again, feel free to call on us! Sr

Marian and Cheri have been friends for over 25 years. They both live in Milton, Wis., and are members of the SDB church there.
During the last two months, I’ve challenged you to remember your own history in order to encourage you in your faith, increase your passion in worship, and help you plan for your future. This month, I will follow my own prescription and apply part of our shared history to challenge us all.

A proposal and its results

The December 7, 1871 Sabbath Recorder included a proposal from Milton College President W.C. Whitford. He said that the General Conference should celebrate the 200th anniversary of the founding of the Newport, R.I., church by establishing a memorial for “the furtherance of education.”

After some debate over Whitford’s proposal, the Conference rallied around a reply by Jonathan Allen two weeks later. In the response, Allen made three recommendations. The first was that the readership of the Recorder “unite as one man in raising $100,000 as a memorial fund, to be held in trust by the denomination.” Second, Allen suggested that the people of the Conference stop criticizing one another, saying, “Let all criticism, faultfinding about everyone and everything be laid aside. Let our energies be sacredly devoted to building up instead of tearing down.”

Finally, Allen suggested that the work begin in prayer and a recommitment.

To borrow from the cliché, the rest is history. In the next 18 months, the people of the SDB Conference raised nearly $100,000. To put that in perspective I went to an inflation calculator. In today’s funds, that $100,000 would total nearly $1.77 million. (Could we raise a million dollars in that amount of time?)

As part of the process, the Conference formed the Memorial Fund board to oversee the money that was raised. Fund trustees continue to exercise proper stewardship over those funds, along with others given since 1872, to benefit the work of the General Conference.

Lessons for us

There are two lessons I’d like to point out from this part of our history.

First, this proposal was accepted and acted upon by individual SDBs outside a Conference session. Note that the events happened in December—in the middle of a Conference year! By the following summer’s Conference session, they had already decided what needed to be done and did it. It didn’t take a vote of the Conference delegates in session because the Conference—the people of the member churches—made the decision.

The lesson here is plain: the General Conference is not a building in southern Wisconsin, or a week of meetings in the summer. It is the people of the member churches. It is you!

The Conference will be as strong as the weakest member of its weakest church. What is God asking of you today? Your reply is one answer to the question of what God wants the Conference to do.

The second lesson is that the Conference is more than any single individual or church. We must learn to cooperate.

Jonathan Allen’s second suggestion is telling. He asks people to stop bickering and faultfinding, and to come together to use their talents for the common good.

He is asking God’s people to stop pretending that they are the King, and start behaving like the servants. Servants sacrifice for their King. They obey His commands and seek His will, not their own. They cooperate with other servants to see the King’s work completed.

We must be mature enough to realize that the Kingdom is bigger than us getting our way. I encourage you to seek God for His guidance in your life, in the life of your church, and on behalf of the Conference—our shared work for His Kingdom. The health of the Conference depends on it.

Jonathan Allen closed his proposal in 1871 by entreat ing his readers: “Let prayer ascend. Let enthusiasm kindle. Let us work and sacrifice, and the object can be accomplished. Who will respond?”

His question stands, and the work of the Conference is still before us. Will you respond?
“Faithful.” Often this word is understood to mean “having confidence or trust in a person or a thing,” or “a trust not based on proof.” Another definition of faithful suggests “an obligation of loyalty or fidelity to a person or cause.”

Finally, we might find the word to be “a promise or an allegiance to a principle.” I want to focus our thoughts on these last two definitions of faithful.

One of the principal tenets of Seventh Day Baptists is that the seventh day of the week, Saturday, is the Sabbath—a day set apart by God for His worship. On this day we refrain from our usual daily activities.

We give the day to worship, study, devotion to family and participating in activities that enrich our lives as well as the lives of those around us. If we maintain our allegiance to the spirit of the day, we will be living our faithfulness and maturing in the fruit of the Spirit.

Just “remembering the Sabbath day to keep it holy” is not enough. To use an old expression, we also need to “put our money where our mouth is.” More than just saying that this is what we believe, we must be willing to give our church the financial support it needs to carry out our ministry.

Many SDBs practice tithing as a guide for financial faithfulness. I agree that this Biblical principle is the standard to use in our church giving. By tithing we provide the church with a steady source of income that allows the church to meet its financial obligations and carry out the programs and ministries of outreach.

In the February issue of The Sabbath Recorder, Donald Graffius stated, “In setting up your budget, remember to honor the Lord with a (His) tithe.” We can demonstrate our loyalty by faithfully fulfilling our financial obligation to our church and denomination.

Not only must we give faithfully to our local church today; with careful planning, we can also provide for tomorrow. We can put aside money for our own future and the future of our children and grandchildren.

Our faithfulness now can provide financial stability for those who come after us. It also allows us to see that our dreams will live on even though we will not see them come to fruition. We trust there will be others who come after us who will catch our vision and carry on the work in our absence.

This is where the second understanding of “faithful” is best represented. The SDB Memorial Fund was established for that very reason.

The Fund’s Board is charged with the responsibility of managing financial assets and property left to the denomination. The Board has the fiduciary responsibility to the donors, both past and present, to manage the fruits of their labors in accordance with their wishes.

Some donors have set conditions for the use of their bequests. Many of those individuals had a strong desire for their dreams to live on and made provisions to financially support certain ministries.

Other gifts have come in with “no strings attached.” The decision about disbursing these funds is left up to the discretion of the Memorial Board.

The Board takes very seriously its obligation to those forebears who have entrusted their legacy to all of us. We work diligently to maintain the history of high financial integrity established by previous Board members, and work to provide the maximum amount of support with the funds entrusted to us.

Anyone wishing to become a part of this rich heritage—this generous spirit of Seventh Day Baptists—may do so by sending donations and instructions to the SDB Center in Janesville. Call 608-752-5055 for more information.

Well, here I am toward the end of my senior year. Graduation is just around the corner and it’s time for me to get serious about my life. People are always asking me, “Dakota, what do you plan to do when you get out of school?” I’ve been accused of having a “deer-in-the-headlights” look when asked that. “Are you going to school? What job do you want?” I have no idea!!!

When my sister graduated from high school, she knew exactly what she wanted to do. Her gift is clear. She’s always loved children and they love her. When we work together at my mom’s center in the summer, Emily works her magic as the “autism whisperer” and everyone comments on what an amazing teacher she will be. People just comment to me about getting my hair cut. Sometimes I wish my call was as clear.

I have considered many things. Should I go into the military? The Marines look good; I took their test and met their qualifications, but I’m not sure.

I just did a senior project on being a physical therapist. That’s a good job. You get to help people who have been hurt or have physical ailments such as arthritis. But then I found out that you have to go to school for five or six years. I’m not such a fan of school, so probably not.

I would really like to be a professional wrestler. (Seriously.) There’s a school in Pennsylvania that teaches people how to be wrestlers. (Seriously.) I work out a lot and have come up with a signature hold that even Batista couldn’t get out of. But it’s a lot of money and they don’t give scholarships. I’m not sure. I really want to. Then I could get to wear stretchy pants to work.

My pastor, David Taylor, has been preaching a series on responding to God’s call. In the Bible, Samuel was only a small child when his mother gave him to God to live in the temple, never have his hair cut (sounds like a plan), and be dedicated to God while working for Eli the priest.

One night, God called to Samuel while he was in bed. Samuel thought it was Eli, so he went to him and asked what he wanted. Eli said he didn’t call Samuel. After two more times, these two temple workers finally figured out that it was the voice of God calling him. Eli told Samuel to say, “Speak, Lord. I am your servant and I am listening.”

As the youth and the energy of the church (even though we don’t seem like it half the time), we have to be open to hear God’s call. We need to rely on Him for what He wants us to do now and in the future.

We should always be in prayer and reading our Bibles so when God calls to us, it won’t take us three times to figure out that it’s His voice.

God has a plan and a call on all of our lives. I pray that we will be in His Word and listening to His voice, so that whether He calls us to serve Him directly as a pastor, or as a servant of man as a health professional or teacher, or a professional wrestler, we will answer His call.

“Speak, Lord. I am your servant and I am listening.”

Have you made arrangements to be at Evangel University in Springfield, Missouri? Believe it or not, Conference will be here in a matter of weeks. If you were waiting to know the choices of seminars and workshops before making that final decision, well, wait no longer.

Conference doesn’t happen without a large number of individuals volunteering their time, ability, resources, and love. I am grateful that a group of very qualified people have partnered under the theme “Servants Together in God’s Ministry” to help make this year’s Conference a memorable one.

Our workshops and seminars should be a good time of learning. When you leave Conference on the night after Sabbath or Sunday morning, I pray that you will have received much information—enough to enrich your life and also to provoke you to take home what you have received, helping those who weren’t able to attend.

As we consider being “Servants Together in God’s Ministry,” I believe it’s important to have teachings on health, nutrition and exercise; identify and encourage those who are gifted for ministry; be witnesses for the Lord where you work; and gain skills to better your marriage. Below is a list of the workshops and leaders, along with a brief description.

“Healthy Choices for Abundant Living” —Barbara Green
Are you aware that being created in God’s image means that you can live the abundant life promised by Jesus in John 10:10? God intends for each of us to be healthy and whole in body, mind and spirit. In this seminar, we will talk about making healthy choices including information on nutrition, weight control, exercise and sleep.

“Finding Waldo” —Gordon P. Lawton
Just like in the children’s books about “Where’s Waldo?” the church is looking for servant-leaders that are there but not always visible. We will talk about the Church, God’s call on individuals, and how a church can identify, encourage and train new leaders.

“Finding the Sandbox [Career] God Designed You to Play In” —Jane Mackintosh
The essence of this seminar is to understand that true revival brings about a transformation of cities, states and countries. God has called us to “make disciples,” not just notch up salvation numbers. God is calling us to recognize that He has designed us for careers that will make an impact on generations, not just to hide out until He returns.

“Discovering the Marriage of Your Dreams” —Perry Cain
Most married couples have had more training to obtain their driver’s license than in learning how to have a successful marriage. This workshop will bring you up to speed on what it takes to have a marriage you can be thrilled about. Topics include “Breaking Your Fear Dance,” “Establishing Emotional Safety and Intimacy,” “How to Have a ‘Good Fight’,” and “Becoming Soul Mates: the Ultimate Journey.”

Rod will discuss his experience as a Christian therapist and identify the important factors in any marriage. Healthy developmental cycles of a marriage will be presented along with the barriers that interfere. Participants will be encouraged to discuss their experiences in healthy and happy marriages.

It is my prayer that you will attend at least one of these seminars. Please be thinking ahead of time which one you would like to go to. Encourage your family, friends and church members to make their choice before getting to Conference, avoiding the indecision that happens the day of the seminar.

Be abundantly blessed!
We had been planning this trip to Jamaica since December. Easy enough: just plan the departure, set our air schedule, decide who is picking us up, and then lead some seminars. Piece of cake! Yeah, maybe “upside-down” cake!

Pastor George Calhoun, senior pastor of the Milton, Wis., SDB Church and I got up early on Thursday morning, March 25, to catch the 4:30 bus from Janesville to Chicago’s O’Hare field. I picked George up at his home in plenty of time, drove to the bus station and parked the car. All was going well until we were informed that there was no longer a 4:30 a.m. bus!

Adjustment #1—Go to Rockford and catch the 5:00 a.m. bus that gets to O’Hare at 6:40. Only problem, our flight is at 7:50.

Adjustment #2—As we neared Rockford, I said to Pastor George, “I feel more comfortable driving all the way down to Chicago. I’m concerned with getting through security, and if we miss our flight to Miami, we’ll miss our connection to Kingston.” So, on we drove to O’Hare.

It was a good call. It took us almost an hour to get through security, with the line twisting throughout the maze. When we finally got through I looked at my watch, looked at George and stated, “We would’ve never made it if we took the bus.”

The plane was on time departing. We landed in Miami and waited one hour for the next departure to Jamaica. Everything was looking good. That is, until we boarded the plane. Handed the immigration forms to fill out, I thought, Easy enough—until we got to the part asking where we were staying in Jamaica, a small point that Pastor Andy Samuels hadn’t shared in the letter to us and we didn’t think to ask.

Adjustment #3—Pastor George pulled out his phone and “Googled” the Kingston SDB Church. Ah, an address! Perfect. Great idea, George! That is, until we stood in front of the immigration officers who did not agree with our ingenuity.

They wanted the address of where we were actually staying. So, off we went to the “Help Desk” (that was anything but helpful).

“Paging Pastor Andrew Samuels... Please pick up a white courtesy phone.” Only problem, Pastor Andy was outside where he couldn’t hear the page.

Adjustment #4—Earlier, Pastor Andy had told us where we would be staying. However, how do you remember a name given over a phone call? You do when the name is Naval Harley. Since I’m from Wisconsin—the home of Harley Davidson motorcycles—it was a unique name I could remember! Let’s hope there aren’t a lot of Naval Harleys in the phone book. Great—only one! We put Pastor Harley’s address on our forms and were feeling pretty good.

Pastor Harley lives in Portmore, Jamaica, just west of Kingston by about three miles. We had his address so what could go wrong, right? The immigration officers wanted to know where in Portmore this address was. Here we were, two guys on our first trip to Jamaica—how were we to know where this was in Portmore??

So, off we go back to the so-called “Help Desk” again. We asked the agent where in Portmore the address was, and of course, they don’t know. We suggest looking it up on a map. They don’t have one. We suggest looking it up on the internet. They aren’t connected. We suggest...

Wait, Rob; don’t go there...

Finally a voice from the back says that he thinks the address is in the Caribbean Estates housing area. Off we go once again to Immigration, and finally—FINALLY—we are let through. Pastor George ended up being the last person from our flight to be cleared by customs.

We met up with Pastor Andy outside the terminal, and as Paul Harvey would say, “The rest of the story” is on page 23.

We plan... God laughs! SR
It takes a lot of work to organize and develop an SDB Conference overseas. It takes even more time, energy and finances to maintain it and continue in its development.

The work that is needed depends upon the country’s location and who holds the political and religious influence. The work entails the ability to speak straightforward, and at the same time, not to offend. Someone with these talents and skills is difficult to find and place in a responsible capacity, such as the General Secretary of an SDB Conference.

However, there are times when one such person can come to the forefront and accept this challenge. In Liberia, this man is Rev. Dr. Josiah K. Pah Sr.

Dr. Pah came to the Seventh Day Baptist denomination when he was on the parliament of Liberia. He was able to do much of the church work through his office influence. Because he was in this position, he easily organized the SDB Conference in Liberia and got it registered.

Shortly after that, the civil war ended and another group came into power. This resulted in Dr. Pah losing his office and left him without an income adequate to support the Conference work. This situation continues today even though he has regained some of his former status with the government.

Within two years of the new government forming, they decided that all churches needed to re-register their organization, at a cost of about $2,000. You might not remember this, but our Conference came to the rescue and we were able to collect the needed funds.

Soon after that event, the government decided that the property given to Dr. Pah for his use needed to be bought to prove his ownership. It appeared that the government had only “lent” it to him. So again the United States came to his aid and sent the $3,000 to purchase the land on which the church was built. We thought that this would be the end of it, but we were mistaken.

Back in 1998 another attack on the government proved to be debilitating to the SDB churches in Liberia. Rebels attacked the government and moved toward Monrovia, the capital.

In the wake of that movement our churches were ravaged. Metal roofs were removed, and benches, books, pulpits—everything not bolted down—were taken from the churches and used as firewood or sold to support the rebels. Along with the loss of property many of the church leaders were murdered and their families abused.

When this rebellion settled down, it took a long time to get everything back to a place where the churches could function. All that is left are the memories of that horrible time. We praise God that Dr. Pah survived.

Within the past few months, Dr. Pah was selected to serve on a board that will look over the national Constitution and revise it to fit the way they are working (or should be working) in today’s world. He accepted and has been working on that board, along with doing the work of the church.

Recently we have helped the churches with funds to cover roofs, medical emergencies, and even some musical instruments. At one of their General Conference meetings several pastors got seriously ill and one died. Funds were sent to help transport the body and for the burial.

We praise God for the self-sacrificing people in our Conference. It is with a real sense of pleasure to serve with those who help in times of need.

Now we have come to a time when we are needed again. During my last visit to Liberia, Dr. Pah requested that I raise funds to build an office block for their Conference. It would cost over $40,000 for the land and building, including labor.

I was stunned. I explained that there was very little chance that we could raise that much money, even though it was for a good cause.

The President of Liberia recently visited Dr. Pah and promised to construct the building if SDBs would pay one year’s rent in advance. Dr. Pah quickly got in touch with me and explained that he needed $2,000 for the rent of the property, and through that payment the Conference would gain a building. I believe that this is a good trade when you consider the overall cost.

I know that some of you are interested in seeing our sister Conferences and churches get ahead. I would ask you to pray about this project and send in your donations to be credited to the “Liberian Conference Building.”

The Jamaican Leadership Retreat—Part 1

by Rob Appel

Pastors Andrew Samuels and George Calhoun, and I traveled to Jamaica to facilitate a retreat for leaders in the Jamaica SDB Conference. Pastor Andy developed the theme of “Leadership Styles and Techniques.”

Having a genuine love for the people of his homeland, my good friend Andy had dreamed of such an event for many years. He stated, “Having been given so much by way of experiences the Lord has taken me through, and seeing the great potential for spiritual leadership within our churches in Jamaica, I wanted to give back to that Conference and share some essential leadership principles which I know would benefit our brethren there.”

It was well worth the wait! The Holy Spirit showed up even before we got started.

The first time George got alone to pray he felt the Spirit stirring and ready to do great things among the attendees. As we traveled up to Maiden Hall (the location for the March 26-28 retreat), the three of us discussed issues, desires, and hopes of how this gathering would impact the leaders.

We prayed for the retreat, we prayed for the people, we prayed that God would use us for His glory. We were not to be disappointed!

We had an opportunity to introduce many concepts that were new to these leaders. Pastor Andy led the first session on Friday entitled, “Why the Church Needs Effective Leadership.” He shared, “The Church is the hope of the world, and its renewal and effectiveness rests in the hands of its leaders.”

Pastor George preached Sabbath morning, and the service concluded with an altar call. All of the people came forward. Yes, ALL! There was prayer, there were laments of sorrow, and there was genuine healing.

Now, not only did the teachers know that the Holy Spirit showed up, all the attendees did, too! In a word: WOW!

The retreat just blossomed from there. George led sessions on a Christian Leader’s Character, Goal, Influence, and Decision-Making. Pastor Andy led two more classes on “Leading from the Middle of the Pack” and “Leading Effectively Despite Difficult Personalities.” And I led two sessions on “Earning Respect as a Leader” and “Why (and How) Leaders Must Embrace Efficiency and Good Stewardship.”

Many of the Jamaican Conference pastors and church leaders served as facilitators of the sessions. The singing was fantastic. The focus and attention was keen. And the food was outstanding! (I know because I came back heavier than I went.)

The teaching seemed timely, applicable, and the response was outstanding. The Holy Spirit encouraged people to make some changes in their leadership approach.

They expressed true gratefulness for our presentations, thanking us over and over again.

Next month: “The Next Step”
Catered comedy in Berlin

by Phillip Zema

Charles Marshall, a renowned Christian comedian, performed at the Berlin, N.Y., Seventh Day Baptist Church on February 12. The community event was attended by 63 area couples. It featured valet parking, coat service, a delicious catered buffet, an enthusiastic wait staff, an assortment of desserts, and jokes about love and marriage.

While Marshall’s insights generated laughs, he further engaged the crowd by poking fun at audience members. His routine focused on the joy of relationships and marriage, and it was evident that the crowd thoroughly enjoyed the show.

The dinner and comedy program was held in the church’s community room. The dark lighting, black tablecloths and small tables created a comedy-show atmosphere.

After having their cars parked, the guests were seated and promptly served beverages from members of the church’s youth group. Then they took turns going to the buffet which included roast beef and turkey carving stations, rosemary potatoes, green beans, caramelized carrots, and salad. Once the dishes were cleared, Charles Marshall was set to take the stage.

Marshall—a published author who has performed for Wells Fargo, the U.S. Postal Service and many other groups—did not fail to entertain the audience in Berlin. After several amusing life stories, he “went after” the crowd. His jabs were entirely benign, but they drew laughter nonetheless.

For example, he invited two singles in attendance to join him on stage. He then attempted to make them “a date” for the event. Marshall also walked throughout the crowd, poking fun of young and old couples alike. His jabs were well received and his “victims” were good sports.

While the event was free to the public (dinner and parking included) nearly $500 was given in tips. That money was donated to the Berlin Community Food Closet.

The comedy show marked the second year that the Berlin SDB Church hosted a pre-Valentine’s Day community event. We hope to continue the fun next year.

Ad Hoc work continues

On three separate, quiet weekends, the five members of the ad hoc committee for denominational restructuring have met at the SDB Center in Janesville—in October, December and March.

The committee is moving forward, with many thanks to all who participated in the survey at the end of 2009. We collected input from churches, Board and Agency officers, and General Council members. The candid feedback has been useful.

The committee’s goal is to create a denominational structure that can efficiently and transparently serve the churches in their local ministry, as well as accomplish those things beyond the local church’s capacity.

At no point has the committee contemplated a proposal that would in any way affect the independence of local SDB congregations.

The ad hoc committee has defined the following Guiding Principles for its evaluation and recommendations:

• We believe the purpose of the denominational boards, agencies and executives is to provide value and assistance to local churches.
• Meeting the needs of the local church should drive the actions of the denomination—not the other way around.
• Involvement of local church members should be encouraged and increased.
• We should be good stewards of God-given resources.
• Effective, responsible leadership serving churches and pastors should be promoted.

• A new structure should emphasize accountability / transparency.
• Changes will be invited and encouraged, but not forced.

Members of the committee (appointed by General Council in August): Susie Fox (Pataskala, Ohio), Don Graffius (Salemville, Pa.), Neil Murphy (New York City, N.Y.), Ron Oehs (Milton, Wis.), and Jim Skaggs (Madison, Wis.).

We solicit your input and prayers as we continue working together to evaluate the current structure and report back at General Conference sessions in Springfield, Mo., in July.

You may contact the committee at adhocsdb@gmail.com or SDB Ad Hoc Committee, 1722 Taylor Station Road, Blacklick OH 43004.

Death Notices

Karl E. Kenyon, 60, of Charlestown, R.I., died on March 28, 2010.
So, how are YOU getting to Conference this year? After taking the grand tour of Evangel University, to our delight we found that the campus is quite compact, beautiful and well kept. Although the school has a 50-plus year history, the buildings are new. There is convenient parking, easy accessibility and short walks to and from dorms, cafeteria and the buildings where we’ll meet.

Our worship services and business sessions will be quickly accessible from the front of the Performing Arts Building. It’s just that easy!! It is absolutely amazing how close everything is! It’s only a short walk across the sidewalk to lunch at the cafeteria or your dorm.

ALL DORMS are air-conditioned! Each dorm room is part of a two-room suite. Each room has its own sink and a full bathroom connects the two rooms.

The campus is definitely high-tech with certain areas having WiFi. Check out the campus map and layout at www.seventhdaybaptist.org or take a virtual tour at www.evangel.edu.

Golf carts will be in operation for the entire week to transport those who need it between buildings and from the parking lots. You can call Marian at 608-436-9160 to arrange your transportation needs. (This includes arrival and departure by air.) E-mail your itinerary to mariananderson@charter.net.

The Host Committee will provide transportation to the campus if you fly into Springfield. That airport is a 10-minute drive away. You are responsible for your own transportation from the St. Louis or Kansas City airports (both about 3-1/2 hours away).

Hotels are close and there are many choices. Drury Inn and DoubleTree are within a mile from campus.

Springfield has many restaurants and plenty of shopping nearby. Besides several hospitals nearby, there is an Urgent Care facility across the street from the campus. “Route 66 KOA Campground” is in Springfield. There are a limited number of RV spots (electrical only) in the college parking lot.

Questions? Contact the Host Committee. (List is on the back cover. More info in the March and April SRs.)
I am not that person

I admit that I was having “one of those days.” The spring weather had been chilly and damp, deadline was approaching, and I had gone to bed too late the night before.

My drive to work was at the usual time, taking the usual, quickest route. As I neared the usual last stoplight by the usual post office, a song came on the “folk music” channel on my satellite radio. I didn’t catch the title but it was about being stuck in a routine, seeing the same people doing the same things every day.

It could have served as the theme song for the movie “Groundhog Day.” That 1993 film had the lead character—an arrogant weatherman—reliving the same day (Groundhog Day) over and over again, until he could learn to become a better person.

Getting to the office I pushed the usual power buttons on my computer and coffeemaker, and started checking my usual e-mail addresses while listening to the radio (the usual station and announcer).

I perked up a bit when one of my favorite programs came on: the “Writer’s Almanac.” The five-minute show highlights the birthdates or events of people in the literary world—past and present—then ends with a poem. It’s hosted by the creative and droll Garrison Keillor.

I couldn’t believe the poem selection. Of all days... It was by Philip Schultz from his collection The God of Loneliness, published this year by Houghton Mifflin:

This morning I’m tired of the same newspapers and arguments.
I’m tired of sticking the same legs into the same pants,
the same hands poking out of the same sleeves, going west
and then east, heating up the same tea, watching the same sun rise over the same horizon, the same trees shedding the same leaves.
Tired of climbing the same stairs to look out the same window at the same street, tired of shaking the same hands, opening and closing the same doors, dreaming the same dreams, saying hello
good morning happy birthday I’m so sorry please forgive me.

On this dreary and wet workday, I was the person in that poem. (Except that I generally drive west then north, and west again, then north. And instead of tea, I choose from a variety of flavored coffees.)

Thankfully, I progressed to another morning ritual and linked to Ron Hutchcraft’s “A Word with You” (which, in hindsight, I should have done first). His “word” is always from “The Word.”

Ron once again captured the essence of a common life scenario, then challenged me to put it—and my life—in God’s perspective. This served to snap me out of the funk and get on with my day.

I determined that I would not be the person in that song; I would not be the person in that movie; I would not be the person in that poem.

And the next day, I drove a different way to work—a good change of scenery. I was also refreshed by working on Steve Osborn’s great feature, “Top Ten Reasons Why I Keep the Sabbath” (page 4).

God’s gift of the Sabbath serves to snap us out of the “usuals,” and reminds us that different is good. Ceasing from the norm and resting from the tedious can revive a weary soul.

No matter how the previous six days have gone in your life (or how you’ve handled or approached them), the Sabbath should be different. Way different. The only thing “routine” about Sabbath is the good habit of meeting together, something the Scriptures encourage us to do in Hebrews 10:25.

Watch your habits. And make the Sabbath one of your best.
