THE SABBATH RECORDER, MAY 27, 1869.

THE GENERAL Assembled.

The sessions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, at Richmond, Va., adjourned.

THE WALL OF DEATH.

The following extract from the Richmond Dispatch: "The Wall of Death has been erected in the city of Richmond, and on Wednesday last it was the scene of some rather startling exhibitions. The first man to pass the wall was a young man of about thirty years of age, who mounted the horse with no little difficulty, but was able to keep his balance until he reached the summit. The second performer was a man of about forty, who mounted the horse with more ease than the first, and also kept his balance until he reached the summit. The third performer was a man of about fifty, who mounted the horse with much difficulty, but was able to keep his balance until he reached the summit. The fourth performer was a man of about sixty, who mounted the horse with much difficulty, but was able to keep his balance until he reached the summit. The fifth performer was a man of about seventy, who mounted the horse with much difficulty, but was able to keep his balance until he reached the summit.

THE NEW ENGLANDER.

The name of the New Englander is being changed to The New England Journal of Agriculture, and the new editor will be announced in the next number.

THE GREAT SUFFRAGE CAMPFIRE.

The Great Suffrage Campfire was held in New York City on Thursday last, and was attended by a large number of the leading women of the city. The speakers were Mrs. Sarah J. Hale, the well-known author of "Little Women," and Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The speeches were of great interest, and the audience was highly gratified.
