A headless and armless body of a man was seen along the track of the Illinois Central Railroad at Champaign Tuesday morning. A pocket bore the name of J. J. Donohue, editor of the Insurance Office and a messenger was dispatched to inform his family. The messenger had not gone far before he met Mr. Donohue and he was well. The Cinnamon was expelled by the fact that Mr. Donohue's house was burned a few days ago, and that the paper found upon the body was stolen.
