The Sabbath Recorder

VOLUME XXIX—NO. 52.

ALFRED CHEL, N. Y., FIFTH-DAY, DECEMBER 22, 1872.

WHOLE NO. 1592.

NEW BELL.

There are many who seem to hesitate about the propriety of making use of the bell, or any other instrument, in the Sabbath worship, though there is a general admission of the propriety of having a suitable organ to which to resort, and it is universally acknowledged that the pipe organ is conducted in a manner more calculated to bring about the desired results. But the same effect may be produced by the bell, and it is not the intention of the writer to make a plea for the use of the bell, but simply to point out the advantages to be derived from its use.

THE BELL AND THE DEVIL.

To the Editor:

The question of the propriety of using the bell in the Sabbath worship, has been much discussed, and many have expressed the opinion that it is not the proper instrument to be used for the purpose. But there is a general admission that the organ is the proper instrument to be used, and it is universally acknowledged that the pipe organ is conducted in a manner more calculated to bring about the desired results. But the same effect may be produced by the bell, and it is not the intention of the writer to make a plea for the use of the bell, but simply to point out the advantages to be derived from its use.
