The Sabbath Recorder

VOLUME XXXI—NO. 13.

ALFRED, N. Y. FIFTH DAY, MARCH 25, 1876.

WHOLE NO. 1575.

Some four or five years ago, a clergyman of the Church of England, an officer of the liberal school and probably without a change undertook an inquiry into all the chapels and rare places of worship in London, among the rest St. Mary's, Pita, and took notes of what he saw and heard. He then published the result of this inquiry in the form of a letter from London, which was afterwards incorporated in a letter entitled "Unorthodox Observations on the State of Religion in London." The letter was written in the form of a book, and was widely read and highly commended by the public. From this book, the following extract is taken:

"In the summer of last year, I went to London and spent a few weeks among the chapels and rare places of worship. I went there not as a visitor, but as a journalist, to collect materials for a book on the subject. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected, as they form a part of the religious life of the city. They are not only places of worship, but also places of social gathering, where people come together to discuss and debate the questions of the day. In the chapels and rare places of worship, there is a great deal of activity, and the people who attend them are not only devout, but also intellectual and cultivated. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected.

In the summer of last year, I went to London and spent a few weeks among the chapels and rare places of worship. I went there not as a visitor, but as a journalist, to collect materials for a book on the subject. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected, as they form a part of the religious life of the city. They are not only places of worship, but also places of social gathering, where people come together to discuss and debate the questions of the day. In the chapels and rare places of worship, there is a great deal of activity, and the people who attend them are not only devout, but also intellectual and cultivated. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected.

In the summer of last year, I went to London and spent a few weeks among the chapels and rare places of worship. I went there not as a visitor, but as a journalist, to collect materials for a book on the subject. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected, as they form a part of the religious life of the city. They are not only places of worship, but also places of social gathering, where people come together to discuss and debate the questions of the day. In the chapels and rare places of worship, there is a great deal of activity, and the people who attend them are not only devout, but also intellectual and cultivated. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected.

In the summer of last year, I went to London and spent a few weeks among the chapels and rare places of worship. I went there not as a visitor, but as a journalist, to collect materials for a book on the subject. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected, as they form a part of the religious life of the city. They are not only places of worship, but also places of social gathering, where people come together to discuss and debate the questions of the day. In the chapels and rare places of worship, there is a great deal of activity, and the people who attend them are not only devout, but also intellectual and cultivated. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected.

In the summer of last year, I went to London and spent a few weeks among the chapels and rare places of worship. I went there not as a visitor, but as a journalist, to collect materials for a book on the subject. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected, as they form a part of the religious life of the city. They are not only places of worship, but also places of social gathering, where people come together to discuss and debate the questions of the day. In the chapels and rare places of worship, there is a great deal of activity, and the people who attend them are not only devout, but also intellectual and cultivated. The chapels and rare places of worship in London are not to be neglected.
SECOND QUALITY

Foot Sabbath

ApTt!

C'NTR LTHO... The meT...

o. God are ahe irround of our ob

IIpUO ••

to Him GOLDEN TEXT And the pliO-

pIe .. unlo. To.hua,
The Lord. Dr God wUI... w. obeT Joahu&”

IITLUE Th-e exhortation of To.b:aa.

TO BAKJ> Hur

Most people bo 11 am It 8 better baken

baked f

bnked nght. for an hour

fill clean water and we...