Explanatory

It is necessary to explain the connection of the quotation, as the context may not be clear. The quotation refers to the parable of the tares and the wheat, which Jesus told His disciples in the field. In this parable, the enemy sowed tares among the wheat, and the wheat was to grow with the tares until the harvest. Then the wheat would be gathered into the barn, but the tares would be burned with fire.

The context of the quotation suggests that the parable is a metaphor for the spiritual state of the Church. The wheat represent the true members of the Church, who grow and thrive, while the tares represent the false members, who grow and thrive along with the true members. This parable was given to the disciples to warn them of the danger of the false members, who would work to destroy the true members.

The context of the quotation also suggests that the parable was given to the disciples to warn them of the danger of false teaching. The false teaching would work to destroy the true teaching, just as the tares would work to destroy the wheat.

The context of the quotation suggests that the parable was given to the disciples to warn them of the danger of the false members. The false members would work to destroy the true members, just as the tares would work to destroy the wheat.

The context of the quotation suggests that the parable was given to the disciples to warn them of the danger of the false teachings. The false teachings would work to destroy the true teachings, just as the tares would work to destroy the wheat.

The context of the quotation suggests that the parable was given to the disciples to warn them of the danger of the false members and teachings. The false members and teachings would work to destroy the true members and teachings, just as the tares would work to destroy the wheat.
THE SABBATH RECORDER, APRIL 15, 1875.

[Article content]

THE WEST IS MIGHTY.

[Article content]

NEW YORK.

[Article content]

LESSER TROUBLES.

[Article content]

TWO QUARTERLY TROUBLES.

[Article content]

[Article content]

[Article content]

[Article content]

[Article content]