AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

The question of canal and railroad competition for the transportation of goods has been finally decided by the courts. Of last week it was decided by the Supreme Court of the State of New York that the Erie Railroad was the better route. The case was one of great importance, and the decision is expected to have a decided effect on the question of canal and railroad competition.

The Erie Railroad has been in operation for a number of years, and has been successful in its operations. The company has a large amount of capital stock, and has been able to meet the competition of the canals. The Erie has been able to maintain its rates of freight, and has been able to keep its operating expenses down. The success of the Erie has been due in a great measure to the fact that it has been able to maintain a good system of management.

In contrast, the canals have been unable to keep up with the competition of the railroads. The canals have been unable to maintain their rates of freight, and have been unable to keep their operating expenses down. The canals have been unable to maintain a good system of management. The canals have been unable to keep up with the advances in technology, and have been unable to keep up with the advances in economy.

As a result, the canals have been unable to compete with the railroads. The canals have been unable to maintain their rates of freight, and have been unable to keep their operating expenses down. The canals have been unable to keep up with the advances in technology, and have been unable to keep up with the advances in economy.

The decision of the Supreme Court of the State of New York will have a decided effect on the question of canal and railroad competition. The decision will be a great blow to the canals, and will be a great benefit to the railroads. The decision will be a great blow to the canals, and will be a great benefit to the railroads.
