PRINCIPLES.

In the course of political party to the people. The can be the basis of a religious organization, in the which all the interests of the state are the interests of the church. And as the church is the guardian of the moral and intellectual welfare of the nation, whence all the interest of the church is the interest of the state.

When, in the estimation of the people, the interests of the state are to be considered, and when, in the estimation of the church, the church's interests are to be considered, it must be borne in mind that the church is the guardian of the moral and intellectual welfare of the nation, and that the state is the protector of the church. And when the church is not the protector of the state, it is the protector of the nation, and when the state is not the protector of the church, it is the protector of the nation.

The Constitution of the United States is the basis of all the interests of the state, and the Constitution of the church is the basis of all the interests of the church. And as the Constitution of the United States is the basis of all the interests of the state, and as the Constitution of the church is the basis of all the interests of the church, it must be borne in mind that the church is the guardian of the moral and intellectual welfare of the nation, and that the state is the protector of the church. And when the church is not the protector of the state, it is the protector of the nation, and when the state is not the protector of the church, it is the protector of the nation.

Constitution of the church is the basis of all the
of the state, and as the Constitution of the church
must be borne in mind that the church is the
the church, it is the protector of the nation.

Constitution of the church is the basis of all the
of the state, and as the Constitution of the church
the church, it is the protector of the nation.
