A SABBATH LETTER IN SCOTLAND.

By J. A. Dent, M.D.

To the Editor, Sabbath Record:

Sir,-In your last number you publish the reply to your letter of the Rev. Dr. Taylor, Bishop of Edinburgh, to a letter which I wrote complaining of the neglect of the Sabbath in Scotland. I append the copy of the letter, with my reply to it. I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

J. A. Dent, M.D.

[Letter appended]

The Bishop of Edinburgh (Professor Taylor) to the Editor of the Sabbath Record. Edinburgh, Oct. 28, 1876.

S. C.,

I am, Sir, yours truly,

R. J. Taylor, D.D.

To the Editor of the Sabbath Record. Edinburgh, Oct. 28, 1876.

S. C.,

I have, at the request of the Bishops, made an inquiry concerning the neglect of the Sabbath in Scotland, and I have come to the conclusion that there is no evidence of any such neglect. Your correspondent, Mr. A. F. D., has made a statement that there is no Sabbath observance in Scotland. This is not the case, and I am able to state that in the large cities of Scotland there is a great deal of Sabbath observance. In the country districts, where the population is more scattered, there is less Sabbath observance, but this is not due to any neglect of the Sabbath by the people.

Your correspondent, Mr. A. F. D., has also stated that there is a great deal of Sabbath observance in the large cities of Scotland. This is not the case, and I am able to state that in the large cities of Scotland there is a great deal of Sabbath observance. In the country districts, where the population is more scattered, there is less Sabbath observance, but this is not due to any neglect of the Sabbath by the people.

I am, Sir, yours truly,

J. A. Dent, M.D.
