THE SABBATH RECORDER, FEBRUARY 14, 1878.

WASHINGTON.

The Senate bill, devoted the week to a study of God's Word upon some neutral ground. We believe the study of the Bible upon such neutral ground will tend to the overthrow of the false Sabbath laws of the land. We have been assured by some of the leaders of the Sabbath movement that the study of the Bible is the only means by which the Sabbath can be preserved. We believe this to be true, and we are confident that if the Bible is studied upon neutral ground, the Sabbath will be preserved. We have been assured by some of the leaders of the Sabbath movement that the study of the Bible is the only means by which the Sabbath can be preserved. We believe this to be true, and we are confident that if the Bible is studied upon neutral ground, the Sabbath will be preserved. We have been assured by some of the leaders of the Sabbath movement that the study of the Bible is the only means by which the Sabbath can be preserved. We believe this to be true, and we are confident that if the Bible is studied upon neutral ground, the Sabbath will be preserved. We have been assure
SABBE GOOD BIG

SABBATH RECORDER, FEBRUARY 1ST, 1800.

THB EASTERN WAR.

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS.

The following, from the Senate's report of the Indian trade over the country, is inserted in the minutes of the house of representatives:

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

SPECIAL MEETING.

The Government of the United States has been informed by the Senate of the Indian trade over the country, that the Senate have been aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

The Senate are aware of the importance and necessity of the Indian trade, and of the great advantage that would accrue from the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians. The Senate are also aware of the great difficulty and expense of the Indian trade, and of the necessity of the establishment of a regular and adequate system of trade with the Indians.

THE SABBATH RECORDER, FEBRUARY 1ST, 1800.
The best men

kn<lw

at they are

very far from what they

ght

Lo

e

and

the very

worst

th nk tl

at

f

oy

were a

I

tt

be

8

good as

need

be

Wo

t

be a

good

aea

to

call

upon

ProvlleDce to ra

se

up

an

apo. Ie to

go round and p event

Inches

om get ng into d bt?

Dr ng tbe first year of mamed

I

fe tbe w fe fill. her

I

husband

"I
eart

after that she must fill h

B

tom or there

will

be trouble