THE SABBATH RECORDER.

Dear Brother,—I have been out of paper for some weeks, and I am glad to have my supply renewed. I have been out of work for some time, and I am glad to have my paper renewed. I have been out of work for some time, and I am glad to have my paper renewed. I have been out of work for some time, and I am glad to have my paper renewed.

The Sabbath is the day of the week set apart by God for rest and worship. It is the day of the week set apart by God for rest and worship. It is the day of the week set apart by God for rest and worship.

The Sabbath is the day of the week set apart by God for rest and worship. It is the day of the week set apart by God for rest and worship. It is the day of the week set apart by God for rest and worship.

THE SABBATH RECORDER, JANUARY 16, 1879.

It may be of other interest to the readers of the RECORDER to know that they are some Sabbath keepers of the higher order among us. In Br. Beulah Davis and others of his traveling companions, there are a few religious workers of the Sabbath sabbatarian type, who, while they do not enter into the common Sabbath controversy, yet are endeavoring to lead the people of God to a higher standard of piety, with which to go forth into the world and labor for the glory of His name.

W. H. Robertson became aware of this group of Sabbath keepers by an article in an English periodical, which was read to him by his wife. It was in the course of a visit to London, he does not remember the name of the periodical, that he first became acquainted with the Sabbath question. It is true that the Sabbath question is likely to come up in a family circle, and it is well to be prepared to answer the objections that may be made to it. It is easy to see that the Sabbath question is a vitally important one, and that it is not a matter of opinion, but of fact. The Sabbath is a day set apart by God for worship, and it is not to be taken lightly. It is a day of rest, and it is to be observed with all the solemnity and respect that it deserves.

The Sabbath is a day of rest, and it is to be observed with all the solemnity and respect that it deserves. It is a day of worship, and it is to be observed with all the reverence and devotion that it deserves.
