"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.

"MY LIFE FOR JESUS."

My life for Jesus; so is my existence.

My life for Jesus, I try to obey;
My life for Jesus, oh, take me and save me.

My life is Christ's, so is my existence.

I trust He has bought me, so do I love my merciful Saviour.

A REMEDY NECESSARY AT WASHINGTON, D.C.

A missionary meeting was held last Thursday evening at the Park Hill Church in the city of Washington, the object being, the following morning, China being the subject, and the following morning, the object being, to awaken the citizens of the city to the importance of the cause.

INDEPENDENT CHURCH RESISTS RACIAL SUPPRESSION IN CHINA.

The Independents in China have taken a firm stand against any further measures to suppress their mission work in that country. They have sent a strong message to their friends in America, expressing their determination to continue their work under any circumstances.

Temperance.

"Look not upon the thing when it is red, for the deceit is great; for it is an experiment; and the woman will say, This is good for thee; that it may be in thee for many days."

"Prohibition.

It is sometimes said by those who do not favor the prohibition movement, that it is not practical, and that a man can run to what he pleases at night. If this be true, it is evident that the object of the prohibition movement is impracticable. All of us know that the prohibition movement is the movement of a great people, and that it is not only to be carried out in the United States, but in the world at large.

"Prevention.

We have seen the results of the prohibition movement in the United States, and we are now witnessing the results elsewhere. The temperance movement has spread rapidly throughout the world, and is gaining ground every day.

The temperance movement is now a world-wide movement, and is gaining ground everywhere. It is not confined to the United States, but is spreading throughout the world. The temperance movement is now a world-wide movement, and is gaining ground everywhere.

Sabbath Reform.

A sister sends a subscription for the Sabbath News to be sent to a Baptist in Boston. The subscription is for a year, amounting to $2.00. The sister adds that many people are prevented from giving, because some Seventh-day people whom they know do not keep the day as they ought. The subscription is for a more consistent and careful work on the Sabbath, and it is one of the best means of helping the Sabbath-day holy unto the Lord. It ought to be true that every Seventh-day person is a true member of Christ's church, and practices as such. Therefore, in the name of the Lord, may all who are on earth be true members of Christ's church, as they go on to perfect them. If the brothers in Christ unite, the good work can be accomplished.

Perpetual and Ephemeral.

The author of this article describes the two types of objects, perpetual and ephemeral, and their relationship to the human experience. He says that ephemeral objects are those that last only a short time, such as flowers or leaves, while perpetual objects are those that last indefinitely, such as the sun or the moon. He suggests that the ephemeral is a reminder of the impermanence of life, and the perpetual is a reminder of the permanence of God. He ends by saying that the two types of objects are not mutually exclusive, and that a person can have both in their life.

REFORMED CHURCH, ALLEGHENY.

ELECTIONS.

At Alfred, N. Y., July 23, 1881.

[The election is described in detail, including the voting process and the candidates for various positions.]

For several years, there has seemed to be a decided trend towards the establishment of a Tract Society of a magazine, which would include a wide variety of tracts, booklets, and pamphlets on various subjects, as well as valuable and critical reviews, and religious opposition to new movements. The influence of such a society could be quite powerful, to a great extent, for the promotion of religious knowledge and understanding. Every year, these productions from the press of the Tract, and at the present rate of growth, will have to be undertaken.

dual office of editor and publisher has been commenced, in addition to the regular work of this establishment. They have decided to do this work,

I have enjoyed this grace of the Holy Spirit in the Church here. The new journal was extensively circulated in the neighborhood, and the new college, which was established, was more than a hundred and fifty years ago.

The officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad state that the cars in passenger trains by this line will be fitted with in-room toilets, and will have little or no effect on through-train services. The Pennsylvania Railroad, which runs through central New York and New England, is reported to have made new accommodations for passengers, including rest rooms, washrooms, and toilet facilities. These changes are expected to make travel more comfortable and convenient for passengers, and to enhance the railroad's reputation for service.

Regarding the spread of Sabbath observance among Jews, the New York Times reports that the movement is gaining momentum. The newspaper notes that many Jews have begun to observe the Sabbath, or the seventh day of the week, as a religious observance. The newspaper also mentions that the trend is not limited to Jewish communities, as there is a growing interest in Sabbath observance among non-Jewish Americans as well.

The Times reports on the opening of the new City Hall in New York City, which is a significant event for the city's development. The newspaper describes the building as a symbol of the city's growth and progress, and notes that it will serve as a center for civic and cultural activities.

The Washington Post reports on the election results in various states, including the victory of Abraham Lincoln in the presidential election. The newspaper highlights the significance of Lincoln's victory as a turning point in American history, marking the beginning of the Civil War and the end of the era of sectionalism.

The New York Times reports on the progress of the transcontinental railroad project. The newspaper notes that the construction is advancing at a steady pace, with significant progress made in the past year. The railroad is expected to be completed within the next few years, and will have a profound impact on western expansion and transportation.
