The Sabbath Recorder.

To second-class matter as the post-office Act of 1879, at Alfred, N. Y.

ALFRED CENTRE, N. Y., FIFTH DAY, AUGUST 28, 1859.

WHOLE NO. 1017.

The Sabbath Recorder.

In the night he giveth soni,
Where Orion binds his girdle,
Where Light Lighteth Leo long,
Where Arcturus stands rejoicing
In the presence of the Lord,
And the Pleiades are waiting
For the sweet, exultant word.

Sorrow weepeth in the darkness;
Shadows veil the mount of awe
Where, mid fliillles in tones of thunder
He proclaims his changeless law.

But above the croW'ltlle88
Infant Shines a new and wondrous star
That the wise men rise to follow
Hastening from lands afar.

THE SEVENTH SABBATH MEMORIAL.

BY REV. E. W. D. DALLAS.

In order to point out some of the essentials of the Sabbath, we have chosen to present the following article from the "Seventh Sabbath Memorial," the first paper in a series of seven, written by a highly respected author. The text is presented as it appears in the original document, with minor corrections made for clarity.

In the Seventh Sabbath Memorial, a little, slipping hardly here and there, the author presents the essential elements of the Seventh Commandment. He contrasts the Old Testament in Matt. 3:17, and notes the differences in usage between the Old Testament and the New Testament in the same. He also highlights the importance of the Sabbath in the context of the New Testament, where it is mentioned as a day of rest and, in particular, of the Lord's departure from the Earth.

"In the night he giveth soni," refers to the passage in Job 29:9, where God is described as giving light even in the darkest hour. "Where Orion binds his girdle," refers to the constellation Orion, which is prominent in the night sky. "Where Light Lighteth Leo long," refers to the constellation Leo, which is prominent in the summer months. "Where Arcturus stands rejoicing," refers to the star Arcturus, which is prominent in the northern sky.

"Sorrow weepeth in the darkness; Shadows veil the mount of awe Where, mid fliillles in tones of thunder He proclaims his changeless law."

"But above the croW'ltlle88
Infant Shines a new and wondrous star That the wise men rise to follow Hastening from lands afar."

This passage is a beautiful description of the importance of the Sabbath, as well as a reminder of the significance of the New Testament's teachings. The author emphasizes the importance of the Sabbath as a day of rest and celebration, and the role of the New Testament in bringing new life and hope to the world.

The Seventh Sabbath Memorial is a series of seven articles, each focusing on a different aspect of the Sabbath. This article is the first in the series, and it provides a broad overview of the importance of the Sabbath in both the Old and New Testaments. The author also highlights the role of the Sabbath in the life of the Church, and the importance of observing it as a day of rest and worship.

This article is a powerful reminder of the significance of the Sabbath, and the importance of observing it as a day of rest and worship. It is a timeless message, relevant today as it was in the past, and it is a call to all Christians to remember the importance of this holy day.
Missions.

The American Sunday School Union report for the past year, 1,618 societies organized, 5,703 societies (not before reported), aided 5,664 in 1866, 1,618 schools (not before reported), aided with 16,669 teachers; and 156,387 students; 3,571 schools in 1865, 1,618 schools, aided with 9,022 teachers and 156,387 students; 4,915 Bible schools, aided with 29,660 teachers and 156,387 students; 1,618 Sunday-schools, aided with 5,079,660 students. These figures are the result of our efforts during the past year: the necessary means. The members of the Board, themselves, contribute to missions funds, are signing to their brethren and sisters, in the belief that every member of the Board who has been furnished with this report, without delay, will contribute to the cause. The Board is deeply impressed with the need of the faithful support of the churches and people to furnish the means. In this, we are making progress. No, we do not regret our labors. We are happy to know that our work is advancing. The Board is firmly convinced that we are making progress. We are happy to know that our work is advancing. The Board is firmly convinced that we are making progress.

The Board is firmly convinced that we are making progress.

Our readers will be glad to learn of the safe arrival of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Lecky. He writes from New York City that the trip down the Mississippi river was a pleasant one. He says: "I have been down the Mississippi river many times and have been fairly well handled each time. I am glad to see that the Mississippi river is a great and mighty river."

Mr. Lecky met Rev. Wm. M. Jones, of London, by whom he sends "greetings and salutations to all the brethren and sisters in America." He speaks of the severe illness of Rev. Wm. M. Jones, and asks for every one to pray for him, and for his speedy recovery.

"Salute the brethren and the sisters," wrote Rev. Wm. M. Jones, in his last letter, "and keep all and bless all and make all joyful to his truth and commandments." Rev. Wm. M. Jones's address is 76th street, New York.

FAR R. B. HARRIS.

FAR R. B. HARRIS.

There are many things to interest, it was really a most wonderful day. At evening we had a very pleasant and interesting hour of prayer, and to relieve the suffering.

But the true faith is not to hold to a lie. These islands are covered with trees, and the false. But he taught me all the brethren and sisters how to hold to the truth. The truth has set me free. I felt that I was a citizen of the world, and that I was free to go where I pleased.

When we arrived at the temple of the city of Galicia (in Austria), for the first time, I felt as if I was a stranger. I was not sure that I was safe, and this made me think of the Lord. The Lord had given me a new birth, and this made me feel as if I was safe. It was not yet too late to be saved. I was safe, and this made me feel as if I was safe. It was not yet too late to be saved.

On Friday it was proposed that we visit the mountains. Early in the morning the sun came out, and the air was very clear. The mountains were covered with snow, and the sun was shining on them. The mountains were beautiful, and the sun was shining on them.

On Saturday we visited the city of Kiang. We started at three o'clock in the afternoon, and arrived at the city of Kiang at six o'clock. We were very much pleased with the city of Kiang. The city was very large, and the people were very polite. We were very much pleased with the city of Kiang.

On Sunday morning we visited in Chinese at the chapel of the Southern Presbyterian Mission, in Shanghai. We were very much pleased with the service. The service was in Chinese, and the people were very polite. We were very much pleased with the service.

On Monday we proposed to visit some other places in the city, but the rain prevented us from going. We held our missionary conference in the Southern Presbyterian Mission, and decided to visit some other places on the fifth day of the month.

On the fifth day of the month we visited the city of Kiang. We started at three o'clock in the afternoon, and arrived at the city of Kiang at six o'clock. We were very much pleased with the city of Kiang. The city was very large, and the people were very polite. We were very much pleased with the city of Kiang.

On the fifth day of the month we visited the city of Kiang. We started at three o'clock in the afternoon, and arrived at the city of Kiang at six o'clock. We were very much pleased with the city of Kiang. The city was very large, and the people were very polite. We were very much pleased with the city of Kiang.
SABBATH REFORM.

In the issue of the 25th ult., The Voice gives its intentions and future policy.

"We propose to fight to the death that a day may be set apart for the Sabbath. It is a moral sentiment of deep reverence. It is an American institution which has been, and is, the best guardian of the Sabbath-day; for,_Interpretation of the Law of Moses, pp. 306—314; and 316, General Laws of 1839, p. 101.

MADISON.

MASSACHUSETTS.

All labor, in person or by proxy, except work done in the cultivation of the land, is prohibited.

SABBATH REFORM.

By Rev. A. L. Lipp, D. D.

KANSAS.

All labor, in person or by proxy, except work done in the cultivation of the land, is prohibited.

SABBATH REFORM.

By Rev. A. L. Lipp, D. D.

KANSAS.

All labor, in person or by proxy, except work done in the cultivation of the land, is prohibited.

SABBATH REFORM.

By Rev. A. L. Lipp, D. D.
The Sabbath Recorder, August 26, 1886.

Alfred Eaton, Jr., Fifth Ave., New York, Aug. 15, 1886.

To the Editor:

We have just received a number of your paper from the Congregationalist, by that excellent woman, Prof. Annie Johnson. We have not decided to make some extracts from it, but controlled that our readers would prefer it. At the value of any gift is as estimated by the adaptation to the wants of those to whom it is given, surely, the Bible is one of the best gifts to give. Profess Phoebe's words on this subject will be appreciated, especially by those who live in the midst of forms or other, the world wide.

The President, the organ of the Institute of London, England, in its latest number, expresses, which will be interesting to our readers:

To our esteemed brother, the Rev. William Mead Jones, on his receiving the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the University of Aberdeen, we extend our hearty congratulations. In the course of our London ministry, which he has filled for the past three years, Mr. Jones has shown himself to be a worthy representative of our London ministers who know his business so well. We think that the world will be grateful to the Sabbath Union. We only wish he could take his position in the pulpit, and not wake up till morning, and give us a new address every day.

To the congregation espousing the opiate, Bro. Jones sharply replies that nothing coming from the pulpit is perfect. We think that if few opiate were indulged in on the Sabbath pulpit, ignorance with reforms would be far more hopeful.

It is not enough that we make a long sea-berth on our first page this week, from the Congregationalist, by that excellent woman, Prof. Annie Johnson. We have not decided to make some extracts from it, but controlled that our readers would prefer it. At the value of any gift is as estimated by the adaptation to the wants of those to whom it is given, surely, the Bible is one of the best gifts to give. Profess Phoebe's words on this subject will be appreciated, especially by those who live in the midst of forms or other, the world wide.

The President, the organ of the Institute of London, England, in its latest number, expresses, which will be interesting to our readers:

To our esteemed brother, the Rev. William Mead Jones, on his receiving the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the University of Aberdeen, we extend our hearty congratulations. In the course of our London ministry, which he has filled for the past three years, Mr. Jones has shown himself to be a worthy representative of our London ministers who know his business so well. We think that the world will be grateful to the Sabbath Union. We only wish he could take his position in the pulpit, and not wake up till morning, and give us a new address every day.

To the congregation espousing the opiate, Bro. Jones sharply replies that nothing coming from the pulpit is perfect. We think that if few opiate were indulged in on the Sabbath pulpit, ignorance with reforms would be far more hopeful.

It is not enough that we make a long sea-berth on our first page this week, from the Congregationalist, by that excellent woman, Prof. Annie Johnson. We have not decided to make some extracts from it, but controlled that our readers would prefer it. At the value of any gift is as estimated by the adaptation to the wants of those to whom it is given, surely, the Bible is one of the best gifts to give. Profess Phoebe's words on this subject will be appreciated, especially by those who live in the midst of forms or other, the world wide.

The President, the organ of the Institute of London, England, in its latest number, expresses, which will be interesting to our readers:

To our esteemed brother, the Rev. William Mead Jones, on his receiving the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the University of Aberdeen, we extend our hearty congratulations. In the course of our London ministry, which he has filled for the past three years, Mr. Jones has shown himself to be a worthy representative of our London ministers who know his business so well. We think that the world will be grateful to the Sabbath Union. We only wish he could take his position in the pulpit, and not wake up till morning, and give us a new address every day.

To the congregation espousing the opiate, Bro. Jones sharply replies that nothing coming from the pulpit is perfect. We think that if few opiate were indulged in on the Sabbath pulpit, ignorance with reforms would be far more hopeful.

It is not enough that we make a long sea-berth on our first page this week, from the Congregationalist, by that excellent woman, Prof. Annie Johnson. We have not decided to make some extracts from it, but controlled that our readers would prefer it. At the value of any gift is as estimated by the adaptation to the wants of those to whom it is given, surely, the Bible is one of the best gifts to give. Profess Phoebe's words on this subject will be appreciated, especially by those who live in the midst of forms or other, the world wide.

The President, the organ of the Institute of London, England, in its latest number, expresses, which will be interesting to our readers:

To our esteemed brother, the Rev. William Mead Jones, on his receiving the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the University of Aberdeen, we extend our hearty congratulations. In the course of our London ministry, which he has filled for the past three years, Mr. Jones has shown himself to be a worthy representative of our London ministers who know his business so well. We think that the world will be grateful to the Sabbath Union. We only wish he could take his position in the pulpit, and not wake up till morning, and give us a new address every day.

To the congregation espousing the opiate, Bro. Jones sharply replies that nothing coming from the pulpit is perfect. We think that if few opiate were indulged in on the Sabbath pulpit, ignorance with reforms would be far more hopeful.

It is not enough that we make a long sea-berth on our first page this week, from the Congregationalist, by that excellent woman, Prof. Annie Johnson. We have not decided to make some extracts from it, but controlled that our readers would prefer it. At the value of any gift is as estimated by the adaptation to the wants of those to whom it is given, surely, the Bible is one of the best gifts to give. Profess Phoebe's words on this subject will be appreciated, especially by those who live in the midst of forms or other, the world wide.

The President, the organ of the Institute of London, England, in its latest number, expresses, which will be interesting to our readers:

To our esteemed brother, the Rev. William Mead Jones, on his receiving the degree of Doctor of Divinity from the University of Aberdeen, we extend our hearty congratulations. In the course of our London ministry, which he has filled for the past three years, Mr. Jones has shown himself to be a worthy representative of our London ministers who know his business so well. We think that the world will be grateful to the Sabbath Union. We only wish he could take his position in the pulpit, and not wake up till morning, and give us a new address every day.

To the congregation espousing the opiate, Bro. Jones sharply replies that nothing coming from the pulpit is perfect. We think that if few opiate were indulged in on the Sabbath pulpit, ignorance with reforms would be far more hopeful.
The Sabbath Recorder, August 26, 1886.

WAVERLY NEWS.

By Rev. J. B. Clark.

The West is suffering generally from lack of rain during the last month.

Wherever one goes he sees parched pastures, dry channels and fedded beams. A few late showers have been had, but these have done little, and there are still large areas in the western states which are in need of rain.

The West is suffering generally from lack of rain during the last month. Wherever one goes he sees parched pastures, dry channels and fedded beams. A few late showers have been had, but these have done little, and there are still large areas in the western states which are in need of rain.

Condensed News.

Ithaca.

Our work here being temporarily suspended. A new term of our mission-school picnic began last week. The work being done is good and the people are all enjoying the meeting.

New York.

Tuesday evening, Aug. 17th, the friends of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. H. M. Jones, living in the city, held a social meeting in their home for the purpose of raising money for the work of the American Mission in South America.

The meeting was opened by Brother J. M. Crandall, who spoke on the subject of the work of the American Mission in South America, and the need of funds for its support.

Thetis.

A great and hearty welcome is a mighty contrast between first, his followers and the people of the world, between his word and their spirit, and to carry it out. He knew that his followers will often fail to carry it out, where it is intended for Arabic and not Aramaic.

The latter is intended to be used in the new, the former in the old, the one for the Syriac, the other for the Hebrew.

The former is intended for Arabic and not Aramaic, whereas my letter copy-book reads: "Hebrew, Ar., Ethiop., and Syriac." The" Ar." is a form of the Syriac.

The former is intended for Arabic and not Aramaic, whereas my letter copy-book reads: "Hebrew, Ar., Ethiop., and Syriac." The" Ar." is a form of the Syriac.

The former is intended for Arabic and not Aramaic, whereas my letter copy-book reads: "Hebrew, Ar., Ethiop., and Syriac." The" Ar." is a form of the Syriac.
Ye'll Meantime, shall I ask you? How might I be informed of your doings near and far? I must do the best I can. The rope was dangling before his eyes, and the black hand of the Jonathan was brandishing it, and the boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest. The boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest. The boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest. The boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest. The boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest. The boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest. The boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest. The boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest. The boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest. The boy was staring up with all the rapt attention of the oldest.
In a long, straight line, exactly as if it were at the beginning of the year. The accident is therefore explained by a force of nature, which is a falling size or meter. It is an admission of error, therefore, and I am sorry, Mr. Secretary, that I was unable to address you on this subject.

---London Times.

Some years since, as a clergyman was passing along the road, he noticed a sick child who was lying on the ground. The girl was weak and had a cold. As he passed by her, the clergyman noticed that she was breathing heavily. When he had passed her, she rose and walked away. The child was brought to the hospital and treated with medicine and food. She is now making a rapid recovery.

---The World.

The value of the elastic light, that passes through the glass, was until recently extremely high. The effects of this light are improved by a series of experiments, which have been made in recent years. These experiments have shown that the elastic light is an essential part of our existence.

---Science.

The question of the elasticity of matter is a very important one. The elasticity of matter is due to the fact that it is able to expand and contract. The elasticity of matter is therefore an important factor in the study of physics.

---Science.

The next day, the ship was ready for sail. The captain had prepared for the voyage, and the crew was assembled. The ship was equipped for the long journey, and the crew was ready to set sail.

---The World.