The Sabbath Recorder.
The wisdom and ingenuity manifested in the plans of the gates of the different cities in the ancient world, and this evening, in passing the north-west and south gates, the last two of which are to be opened, I increased my desire to study this subject the more, as it is one which comes crowning and coming, cannot fail to recall to our minds many sayings, especially the parable of the wise and foolish builders, and to the right of the tree of life, and may cause us to approach the Heavenly state with more confidence.

In the evening the heat was very great, with apparently no sheltering air, so that I took my seat at the back of the boat under the hatch, where it was cooler. When seated, I thought I could see something in the distance, but passing on the left in a volume around the curve of the river, and the sun was setting, I found several fast-sailing boats going down that shore around this curve like an arrow, had hardly time to see them, for they dashed into the river, and I never have been in a more exciting moment in my life, so I did not see them.

When we come across little bands of water in this far-away place among the mountains, it is difficult to believe that there has not been seen in vain, and feel, too, that the Lord is with us every step of the way.

From the Lord's point of view, the approach of the mission to this point, and the determination of the people to take it up, was a great pleasure to think of a Christian world being bright and pleasant in its ways, and the cause of God being furthered by the work of his people.

OUTSIDE CORRESPONDENCE.

March 18, 1885.

Mr. Editor—In answer to the question of the subscriber, I have a number of legal and moral engagements that prevent me from holding a Sabbath-day church, but I may be able to take the discharge of some of them as in the future. If you have any suggestions to make, I would be glad to hear from you about it.

SABBATH REFORM.

The following, clipped from the American Baptist Review, shows how the defense of Sabbath day, the fast from any of our Scriptural principles, and the keeping of Sabbath day in the various public and private meetings held in behalf of the Sabbath day, was published in the local newspapers through the Christian Advocate, were brought out and out of the hands of the Sabbath keepers. In some places, the Sabbath day was kept with great regularity; in others, with much irregularity. The result was that the Sabbath day was kept with much greater regularity than in any other place. The Conference, in session at Lost Creek, W. Va., organized a Board, to be known as the Woman’s Executive Board of the Seventh-day Baptist General Conference, of which Mrs. Ada C. Lusk was elected the president. The purpose of this Board is “to be the duty of the Board to raise funds for our various denominational enterprises, and to develop and promote the same.” The Board has been organized in several states, and many individuals have contributed to it. The Board is under the direction of Mrs. Lusk, and she is the secretary. The Board is working hard to secure funds for various purposes, and she is doing an excellent work. She is a true missionary, and she has the ability to do a great deal for the cause of missions. She is a true woman, and she has the ability to do a great deal for the cause of missions.
New Home.

Miss. G. A. Verrill.

Being much indebted to the "House News" department of the Recorder, I suppose it would not out of place to drop the following lines to you.

On Sabbath day, Nov. 30th, Ed. Charles Gilmour had the satisfaction to announce that his sister, Mrs. Sarah Gilmour, had been slightly injured in her leg by a horse. He is doing well under the care of Dr. Clark.

On Wednesday, Nov. 29th, J. T. Dorsey of Wilson, who had been attending the American Annual Meeting of Nativity, came and called on Mrs. Gilmour. She is a sick person, but is doing well.

Bad weather prevented the meetings of the various schools of the town, but the general rain has resulted from them. By encouragement and solicitation of Ed. Gilmour, gives very well for the preparation of a committee of ministers to meet for prayer and prayer-meeting on Sixth day evening.

The weather is quite cold, and we fear a long winter is before us. The weather isPersistent in our town, there being three churches and three schools in the town.

WHERE PETE GAT HIS CURTAIN.

We were riding down the mountain, when a sudden gust of wind blew the curtains of the horse-drawn vehicle open, revealing to our surprise a scenery of the countryside that we had not seen before. The wind seemed to be in a hurry, as it was blowing so hard that the curtains were flapping wildly, and the horses were sweating under the weight of the force. The driver, who was trying to control the reins, looked very worried, and the passengers were trying to hold onto their hats and caps. We asked the driver what was happening, and he explained that the wind was very strong, and that the curtains were being blown away by it. We said that we didn't know why the curtains had been let down, and the driver told us that it was a common practice in horse-drawn vehicles to lower the curtains when the weather was bad, to protect the passengers from the rain and wind. He also said that it was a good thing we had not been caught in a storm, as the curtains could have been blown away and the passengers would have been exposed to the elements.

We were all very impressed by the power of the wind, and we thought it was a good lesson in preparedness, as we never knew what the weather was going to be like. We decided to take some umbrellas and raincoats with us on our next trip, and to always keep a good hold on our hats and caps. We also had a good laugh at the driver's expense, and said that he would have to be more careful in the future, or else the curtains might be blown away and the passengers would be exposed to the elements.

We were all very surprised when we saw the scenery of the countryside, and we asked the driver if we could stop and take some pictures. He said that we could, but that we had to be careful, as the horses were very sensitive to the wind, and might be startled. We agreed, and asked the driver to slow down, so that we could take some pictures of the scenery.

We were all very pleased with the results of our pictures, and we decided to take some more, so that we could have a good collection of the scenery of the countryside. We also decided to take some pictures of the horses, as they were very beautiful, and we wanted to remember their beauty for ever.

INSIGHTS ON SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY.

Dr. George Bauer, Assistant Professor at the Prebendary Museum, Yale College, was a recent visitor to our city, and his lecture on the science of organ building was of great interest to the audience.

He discussed the various components of an organ, from the pipes to the keys, and how they work together to produce sound. Dr. Bauer also explained the different types of organs and their uses in different musical contexts.

His lecture was well-received, and the audience was left impressed by the complexity and precision of organ building. Dr. Bauer's insights into the science of music and technology provided a unique perspective on the field.

DANISH BANK.

A number of eggs were shipped to Yale College, presumably for experimental purposes. It has been suggested that these eggs may have been used in a study on the hatching process of poultry.

It is interesting to note that the Danish Bank has been involved in such experiments in the past, and their expertise in these matters is well-known. This latest shipment could be part of an ongoing research project in the field of poultry science.
