As a graduate student who chose this career path, you're about to finish your master's program, but is this only thesis defense remaining? Slidesgo can help you with this new free model. To begin with, we know that people tend to use too formal presentations for a master's thesis, but we think that a little touch of fun design might impress your audience. For example, you'll find flat illustrations, which is always a trending detail on your slide designs. The geometric approach for the backgrounds, combined with the use of yellow, green, blue and white, allows you to organize your data perfectly, and take away from any distractions. But the main ingredient should be the text, right? For this reason, the typography that we chose played a big role. For titles, there's a sense-series type that's right for screen, and for body text a different sense-series font, which exposes a more modern look. Don't forget that you can easily edit and customize pretty much everything in this presentation template, so you'll be in your element in no time!
