Preface

Now for those of you who have never heard of or seen a renaissance festival, go into Google Images and look up the Colorado Renaissance Festival. That should give you an idea of what it's like. Now if I describe clothing, there is a possibility of me mixing up eras, and I hope to be able to fix that at a later date of publication, but if I get that mixed up you will have to accept it because I'm not perfect. Also, I may mix up some of the renaissance terms because while the renaissance era is a big part of my life I can't go around constantly living in it. There will be references to a lot of things that you may or may not quite understand such as different Shakespeare plays, things that traditionally happen at the renaissance festivals (Rene faires), and I'll probably be including some of my favourite every day references from different fandoms if I want to. Now some of these may be based off of my actual experiences with the faires and some may not be but all the same I hope you enjoy my random little collection of renaissance based stories. Enjoy.
