About

Organizations today face competitive challenges unlike anything their Industrial Age processes and methods were designed to handle. In a time when customers expect near-instantaneous delivery of new and enhanced software products, the cumbersome methods of a bygone era are not up to the task. Companies are sinking under the weight of their own outdated methods.

Not to worry! Numerous consultants, software vendors, trainers, and coaches stand ready to come to the rescue, invoices in hand. All you have to do is figure out whether what they're selling has anything to do with what you need.

How hard could that be?
