Esperanto spelling is completely regular — every letter has exactly one sound, and every sound is written with exactly one letter.

Stress

Stress always falls on the second-to-last syllable. No exceptions.

- a-mi-ko, es-pe-ro, ba-le-no
- In words ending with a consonant, the final -o may be dropped in poetry: balen' (still stressed on the le).

Typing Esperanto

If the accented letters aren't available, the x-system is widely used: type cx, gx, hx, jx, sx, ux for ĉ, ĝ, ĥ, ĵ, ŝ, ŭ. This book uses proper Unicode accents.

Basic Grammar

Word Order

Default order is Subject-Verb-Object (like English), but word order is flexible because the -n ending marks the direct object. The sentence La viro vidas la hundon (The man sees the dog) can also be written:

- La hundon vidas la viro.
- Vidas la viro la hundon.

All three mean the same thing because hundon has the -n marker.

Articles

Only one article: la (the). There is no indefinite article (a/an is simply omitted).

- la baleno = the whale
- baleno = a whale

Nouns

All nouns end in -o. Plurals add -j. The object marker -n goes after any plural.

	Singular	Plural
Subject	balen o (whale)	balen oj (whales)
Object	balen on	balen ojn

There is no grammatical gender. A female suffix -in- exists for living things: patro (father) → patrino (mother), bovo (ox) → bovino (cow).

Adjectives

All adjectives end in -a. They agree in number and case with the noun they modify.

	Singular	Plural
Subject	granda baleno	grandaj balenoj
Object	grandan balenon	grandajn balenojn

Adjectives can appear before or after the noun.

Adverbs

Adverbs end in -e. They don't change form.

- rapida (quick) → rapide (quickly)
- bona (good) → bone (well)

Verbs

Verbs are completely regular — zero irregular verbs in the entire language.

Tense	Ending	Example	Meaning
Infinitive	-i	vidi	to see
Present	-as	vidas	see, sees, is seeing
Past	-is	vidis	saw, has seen, was seeing
Future	-os	vidos	will see
Conditional	-us	vidus	would see
Imperative	-u	vidu!	see! (command)

There is no distinction between he sees and he is seeing — both are li vidas.

Participles (for compound tenses):

	Active	Passive
Present	vid anta (seeing)	vid ata (being seen)
Past	vid inta (having seen)	vid ita (seen)
Future	vid onta (about to see)	vid ota (about to be seen)

Compound tenses use esti + participle: mi estas vidinta = I have seen, ŝi estos vidata = she will be seen.

The Accusative (-n) Beyond Objects

The -n ending has three uses:

1. Direct object: Mi vidas la ŝipon. (I see the ship.)
2. Motion towards: Mi iras al la domo. (I go to the house — already there.) vs Mi iras al la domon. (I go into the house — entering it.)
3. Time expressions: lunde (on Monday) vs lunden (next Monday)

Negation

Use ne before the word being negated.

- Mi ne scias. = I don't know.
- Ne la baleno, sed la ŝipo. = Not the whale, but the ship.

Questions

Use ĉu at the start of yes/no questions.

- Ĉu vi vidas la balenon? = Do you see the whale?
- The answer: Jes (yes) or Ne (no).

For wh-questions, use the correlatives table (see Function Words below).

-u	-o	-a	-e	-	-el	-al	-	-
(one/thing)	(kind)	(place)	(time)	(man)	(real-son)	(amount)	(nose)
ĉi-	ĉiu	ĉio	ĉia	ĉie	ĉiam	ĉiel	ĉial	ĉiom	ĉies
(ev- ery)
neni-	neniu	nenio	nenia	nenie	neniam	neniel	nenial	neniom	nenies
(no)

Examples: kiu = who/which, tie = there, ĉiam = always, nenio = nothing

Language Notes

Esperanto is Agglutinative

Words are built from roots + affixes. A small set of regular prefixes and suffixes dramatically expands vocabulary:

Affix	Meaning	Example
mal-	opposite	malbona = bad (opposite of good)
-et-	small, diminutive	dom eto = cottage (small house)
-eg-	large, augmentative	vent ego = gale (big wind)
-ej-	place	lern ejo = school (place of learning)
-il-	tool	tond ilo = scissors (cutting tool)
-ist-	profession	mar isto = sailor (sea professional)
-ul-	person	jun ulo = young person
re-	again	revidi = to see again
ek-	sudden/begin	ekvidi = to catch sight of

This means you will encounter compound words in the translation that have no direct English cognate. The superscript numbers link the root meaning; the affixes add nuance.

No Irregularities

Esperanto has zero irregular verbs, zero irregular plurals, and zero silent letters. If you can pronounce a word, you can spell it. If you know the root, you know every form it can take. This makes it an ideal bridge language — once you internalize the patterns, you can read with a dictionary.

Word Building in This Translation

You will see words like balenĉasado (whaling — literally “whale-hunting”) and ŝipopereo (shipwreck). These are transparent compounds: baleno + ĉasi + -ado = whaling, and ŝipo + perei + -o = shipwreck. The superscript numbers mark the meaningful roots within these compounds.

False Friends

A few Esperanto words look like English words but mean something different:

- akiri = to acquire (not “a choir”)
- demandi = to ask (not “to demand” — that’s postuli)
- flava = yellow (not “flavor”)
- lasi = to leave, let (not “lasso”)

Poetic Contraction

The final -o of a noun can be dropped in poetry and for rhythm, replaced with an apostrophe: balen' instead of baleno. The stress stays on the same syllable. You’ll see this throughout the book, especially in dialogue and sea shanties.
