For Amber & Isla

This little story was written and illustrated by Russ & Mali Miles for the birth of our lovely little niece and cousin, Amber.

Amber Lily Cook's first smile recorded on camera; first of many we're sure!

Also this book is for Mali's little cousin Isla, Amber's older sister.

Mali's cousin and co-conspirator, Isla May Cook

We love you both and I know Mali is looking forward to many magical, and mischievous, adventures together.

Russ Miles ('Daddy' to Mali)

Russ Miles is an author of a number of books, mostly technical, but had much more fun making up stories at bed time rather than reading the regular children's stories that are out there.

Mali Miles ('Munchkin' to Daddy)

Mali is Russ' daughter and her favourite bedtime story was "Princess No-Knots and the Lost Unicorn" (originally "Princess No-Knickers..." which always made Mali giggle but would have likely led to all sorts of problems!) and so this is the first time that Russ and Mali have written it down and, using Mali's drawings, made it available.

Princess No-Knots & the Lost Unicorn

Princess No-Knots loved and hated her hair in equal measure.

On the one hand she loved her golden, curly locks. On the other, she hated trying to untangle them when, as they so often did, they decided to take on a life of their own and get in her eyes.

It was just such a hair-induced entanglement moment that she was concentrating on when she first met Professor Mumbel-Popper on that beautiful May Day morning.

“Oof!”, she said as she bounced off of his rather rotund stomach.

“Sorry dear”, he said, “I was busy looking up and you were skipping around in what can only be called a down direction”.

Picking herself up off the ground, Princess No-Knots regarded the jolly looking Professor.

“Why were you looking up?”, she asked?

“Because I was looking for a Unicorn”, Professor Mumbel-Popper said, “I’m going to catch the lost Unicorn and put it in my special Zoo to keep it safe.”

“Oh, I can help with that!”, Princess No-Knots said quick as a flash,
“So it’s tall?”

“Why yes, I think so”, said Professor Mumbel-Popper.

“You think so? Have you actually seen a Unicorn?”, asked Princess
No-Knots.

“Well, not exactly, no”, replied the Professor.

“Hmm”, said Princess No-Knots thoughtfully, “Well if it’s tall then
I know exactly where it is!”. And with that she skipped off into the woods with Professor Mumbel-Popper in hot pursuit.
