

To be loved or not to be loved, does nationality matter when you think you truly love another human being? Love has no boundaries. Hilary, a smart young girl, finally gets to the place where we all want to be—college. At the same time, Hilary realizes that she is madly in love with a young man named Dennis Jirah. Dennis loves Hilary, but is he color blind? Like Hilary is? Or is Hilary in her own fantasy world, thinking that color should not matter? Hilary's best friend, Elkiss, is so worried about her because she is not doing her best in college. In this musical college love story, there is loyalty, honesty, and true love between two very different people. One feels that sex is only for two people that truly love each other, married people, and the other does not care.

"You are the most beautiful woman I have ever seen," said Dennis.

"I know all you want is sex," said Hilary.

How are you? My name is Silver Ann Lee. I graduated from high school in year 2005 and in year 2008; yes, I have two high school diplomas. I was born on January 11, 1981. I started to attend college at the age of eighteen; however, I am still in college. I have many certificates. I am certified as a United Nations Peacekeeper, and I also have a diploma in business management and creative writing that qualifies me to be an official writer. I used to be a teacher's aide when I was eighteen, and I also am a Certified nurse. Through the years I have always been a writer, a mother, and a college student. I have experienced being in love and what it really feels like especially if he/she rejects your love. Honestly, I loved only one person my whole life. I stopped what I loved to do to love him, and that is what made me late in graduating from school. My story will help you understand that when it comes down to it, who is more important? You or him? Or your family, if you have children? Even though I was born in Los Angeles, California, I was raised in San Bernardino, California, where I had started my family.
