One Eighty Consulting Welcomes Victoria Vangalis Zepp as Principal Consultant

Tallahassee, FL – One Eighty Consulting Inc has named Victoria Vangalis Zepp as a Principal Consultant to the firm. She will help lead the firm’s Executive and Legislative Strategy for clients in Florida. Her executive-level expertise over the past 30 years in telecommunications, Information Technology and systems integrations bring unique leadership and experience to the One Eighty Consulting team.

“Victoria’s experience in Information Technology, Child Welfare and Health and Human Services is unmatched,” said Don Yaeger, President of One Eighty Consulting Inc. “We know that her addition to the team will bolster and enrich our clients’ presence in Florida.”

Victoria’s roots in Florida technology run deep. Back in the 1990’s she joined Tampa-based Intermedia Communications that grew from an entrepreneurial start-up local telephone company to the publicly traded, third-largest data carrier in the country. In addition to doing business in 27 states, her company enabled Florida State government to migrate from analog technology to high speed digital technology. In 1996 with Governor Lawton Chiles and Education Commissioner Frank Brogan she chaired the Florida NetDay project that retrofitted every public school in Florida for technology. Victoria was a founding member of what today is the Florida High Tech Corridor Council to boost technology-based economic development. As a pioneer she was named inaugural Chief Marketing and Sales Officer for the Florida Virtual School (FLVS), the world’s largest accredited on-line high school operating in multiple countries.

Her impact hasn’t just been in her professional work but also in her personal passion for people with differing abilities and former homeless or foster youth. “Her mission to provide a better start in life for these children is truly inspiring and I have been a long-time fan of Victoria’s work,” said Jeanette Yaeger, Vice President of One Eighty Consulting Inc. “We are a culture-based firm and Victoria’s heart fit perfectly!”
