What is TPRS?

- Teaching Proficiency through Reading and Storytelling
- “Story is a power way to communicate ideas so that they stick long term” by DIANE NEUBAUER

TPR V.S. TPRS

TPR

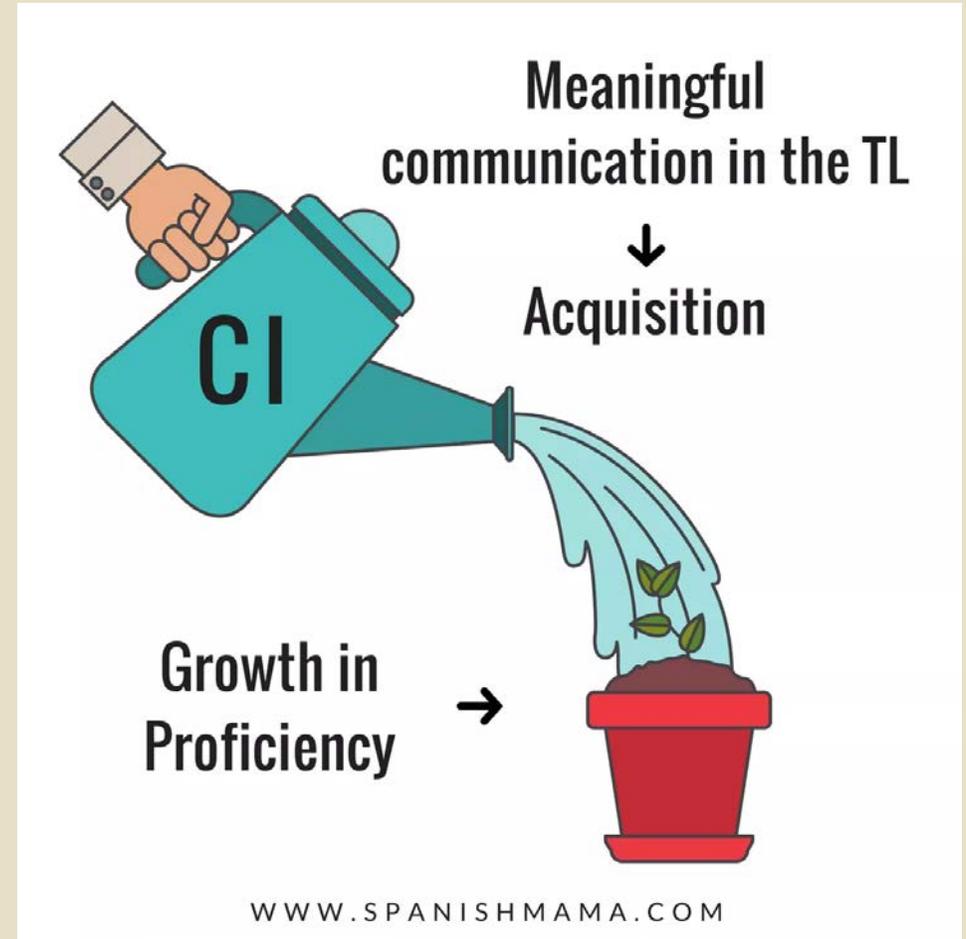

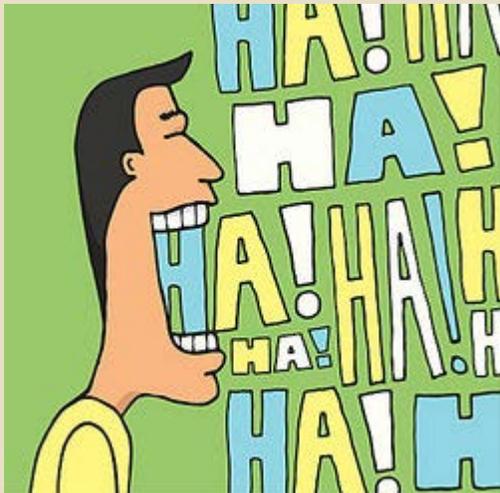

- 1970
- James Asher
- Commands and actions
- Comprehensible input-based (Dr. Stephen Krashen.)

TPRS

- Late 1980s and early 1990s
- Blaine Ray and Joe Neilson
- Developed based on created stories
- Comprehensible input-based (Dr. Stephen Krashen.)

Concepts

- Comprehension input (CI)
- Personalization (P)

Basic information

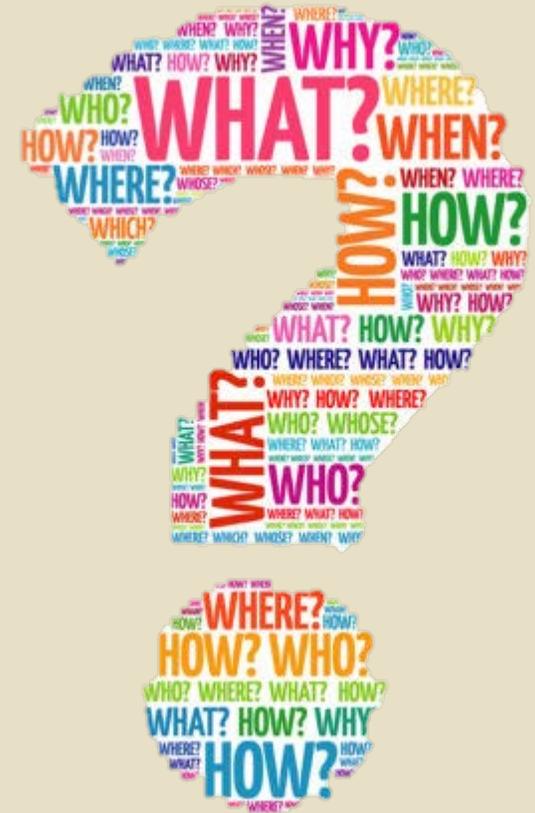

Key 1: Comprehensible

1. Use words students know, pause and point to the words on the board
2. Pick high frequency words
3. Shelter vocabulary
4. Don't shelter grammar

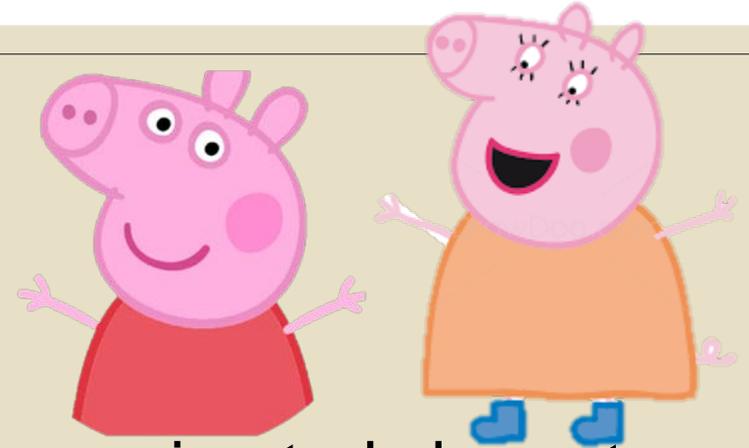

Key 2: Repetition

- Frequently ask cycling questions to check comprehension
- Multiple locations
- Multiple characters
- Verify details with actors and with the class

Key 3: Interest

- Surprise details: prediction, personalization, animated characters, celebrity
- Play reading games:
 1. Reading Bingo
 2. Out one out
 3. Identify errors while the teacher reads a passage out

Key 4: Interaction

- Teach to the Eyes: get closer to the students when they don't know understand
- Co-response: interaction between the teacher and the students.
