

Administering Medicine to Students

JHCD

School personnel will not administer any form of drugs or medication to pupils without a written request from the student's parents and written instructions from the student's physician.

Alternative medications/natural remedies:

The Food and Drug administration (FDA) does not approve oils or natural treatments. Since these do not have FDA approval, and due to a possible health risk to others, no alternative medication/natural supplements will be given by any school personnel. This includes but is not limited to essential oils, rubs or diffusers.

CCSD#1 does not allow student(s) to carry alternative medication and/or natural supplements or apply such products to themselves. Parent(s) are allowed to come into the school to apply these products to their child. However, if health problems arise to other students or staff members because of these products (i.e. asthma attacks, migraines, etc.), CCSD#1 reserves the right to modify the situation, as needed, to ensure a safe environment for all individuals.

High school students can apply oils or rubs at lunch time outside of the school building, at home, or in their own vehicles; however, they cannot share alternative medication or natural supplements with other students or apply oils or rubs to anyone else. If this privilege is abused or causes health problems to others, CCSD#1 reserves the right to prohibit the student's use of oils or rubs in the school.
