Passage: Summer Job

Narrative 4.4

Martin and Jamal walked home from school, talking about summer vacation.

"What are you doing this summer?" asked Martin.

"I have summer school," answered Jamal, "How about you?"

Martin said, "I'll just hang out, go to the pool, play basketball; all the usual summer things. I want a summer job, but I'm too young."

"The spending cash would be great," responded Jamal. "I could work afternoons."

"Let's start a business," suggested Martin. "Think about what people need and match that with what we can do."

"I'm not good at making things, but I'm great with animals– how about pet-sitting?" Jamal suggested. "People need pet-sitters during the summer, and most of our neighbors have pets."

"They know that we're responsible. Mom can help us make a business plan and write a contract," offered Martin.

"First, we'll need to advertise and figure out how much to charge," Jamal stated.

"Come on," urged Martin, "Let's get to work!"
