We Earned Some Recognition

The TGCA News ran a full-page article about last year's Play4Kay fundraiser that was hosted by the KMS Lionettes basketball teams. The event was a national cancer awareness program and fundraiser that was hosted by girls' athletic squads from grades 6 through college programs within the united states. Our middle school Lionettes did such a fantastic job of promoting and raising funds for cancer research, that our story was picked up by the Texas Girls Coaching Association. Their story was printed in the TGCA cancer awareness edition magazine this past October. Coach Mattox, the KMS Lionettes head coach, has committed to another Play4Kay event this basketball season and has promised that this will be one exciting program. We look forward to seeing the community turn out for the event on January 26th and we may make it back into the TGCA News if we are lucky. This is just one more example of the positive agendas our middle school students engage in each school year. See you at the game!

Is That a Pi or a Podium?

Technically, it's both a podium and a computer. The students in our Raspberry Pi technology class took an old wooden podium and transformed it into a portable presentation media station. It's one thing to think outside the box, it's another to turn the box into a full functioning computer. Tune in to see what students' imaginations were creating realities in our technology classes.
