

Superintendent Report
May 22, 2017

School is out. That is the typical cry from students and staff every year at this time. Always exciting for everyone. It is also a good time for us all to reflect on our jobs and what we can do better. One area we will focus on next year will be the KESA model for accreditation. This could be a very exciting year ahead.

The House of Representatives Education committee has passed a bill out to the full house to look at funding schools in Kansas. It still has many hurdles to cross before we can count on anything. They also have not passed a tax bill yet either which is how they would fund this increase. They have much work ahead in a short amount of time.

Plans for next school year are moving right along. Administrators will be planning next week for several changes this coming school year. In-service topics have been discussed and they will be put in place very soon. Always exciting to end a year, but just as much excitement to start a new year at the same time.

Elections for Board members will be in November. We have four different seats open at this time. Two in the south, one in the city and one in the north. All interested parties must sign up by June 1 at noon. If primary elections need to be held that will happen in August.
