TSA Team Invited to National Competition

Scout Neugebauer and Rebekah Whitman received the news this past week that they were eligible to compete in the national TSA competition. The two teamed up to create a biotechnology project on Genetically Modified Organisms. Their project shows positive aspects of genetically modified crops, and debated that they were not dangerous.

The students placed below the top three in the state competition, but when a higher-placing team could not attend nationals, Scout and Rebekah received the opportunity. Unfortunately, the two did not have time to raise the money needed to travel to, and stay in Atlanta for the three-day competition.

Mrs. Boss' U.S. History class created plantations out of food and cardboard. Each plantation had to include a plantation house, slave quarters and a cotton field. After the projects were done, students got to enjoy the fruits of their labor by eating their plantations.
