

Dr. Brent Hawkins
LISD Superintendent

Hawk's Talk

Friday, October 11, 2019

LHS National Honor Society inducts 44 candidates

Lion Country CALENDAR

Monday, October 14, 2019

LISD Staff Development
2nd Monday Jeans Day for LISD
Green & White Employee Donors

Tuesday, October 15, 2019

LJH- Tie Dye Spirit Day
LJH- Fundraiser Packets Due
4:30 pm- LHS Volleyball @
Liberty

5:00 pm- LJH- 7th Grade Football vs Lumberton

5:00 pm- LJH- 8th Grade Football @ Lumberton

Wednesday, October 16, 2019

Report Cards

Thursday, October 17, 2019

LHS- Cross Country @ District
21 CC Meet

LHS- Balfour Cap & Gown
Orders

5:00 pm- LHS - Powder Buff
Volleyball

5:00 pm - 7:00 pm- CSE Tailgate
Party

Friday, October 18, 2019

Gain/Lose UIL Eligibility from October 11

LJH- Band Night at Varsity Game
PRP- Fall Pictures

LHS- Balfour Cap & Gown
Orders

4:30 pm- LHS Volleyball vs
Tarkington

7:00 pm- Lions Football vs Lum-
berton (Pink Out)

Saturday, October 19, 2019

LJH- Livingston Tournament

On Monday, October 7, forty-four candidates were inducted into the Lillian Sewell Chapter of the LHS National Honor Society. The candidates, a mixture of juniors and seniors were selected on the basis of the chapter's four tenets: scholarship, character, leadership, and service. Advisers Dean Boyd, Brittney Trevino, and Principal Dr. Paul Drake presided over the ceremonies as chapter officers, President Segá Ndita, Vice President Autum Loman, Secretary Brook Loman, Treasurer James Severance and Senior member Rhonya Long led the candidates in the candlelight, swearing-in ceremony. When she was asked why the importance of the ceremony, Segá stated, "The NHS induction ceremony is public because we are celebrating and congratulating the students who show great excellence. These inductees go above and beyond in their day to day life. Many of them are leaders in extra curricular activities, such as band, choir, athletics, student council, BPA, FFA, and FCCLA. We are proud of these students for balancing everything they do."

Forty-four candidates of Livingston High School juniors and seniors were inducted into the Lillian Sewell Chapter of LHS National Honor Society.

Newest members include Belen Arredondo, Blake Baggett, Charley Battise, Allie Botello, Kodee Butcher, Blake Davidson, Lillie Dubreuil, Avery Evans, Caleb Gann, Ryan Gibson, Elizabeth Gray, Nigel Henderson, Brianna Henry, Justin Holliman, Brandon Houston, Colin Hurtt, Chandria Ivory, Krista Jones, Gavin Kelley, Caleb Kesler, Alexandria Lara, Jacey Lewis, Alessandra Martinez, Mara Mayland, Damian McCarty, Kyndall Moffett, Alexis Murphy, Halle Ohm, Johnathon Oliver, Tanner Orn, Vaidehi Patel, Krislyn Patterson, Sonia Penado, Joshua Pridgen, Allyson Prosperie, Lyndsay Singleton, Madison Stork, Gillian Thys, Lucas VanWagner, Elizabeth Varnell, Sydney Walters, Trace White, Deandra Zheng, Frances Zuniga.

SHECO helps students Restore Their Belief in Superheroes

Sam Houston Electric Co-Op Inc., more commonly known as SHECO, made a generous donation of safety glasses to the Livingston ISD Junior High Robotics Team. This is the first year robotics has been offered at the Junior High level. Being safe and providing a safe learning environment is paramount and providing eyewear for each student was a crucial step in achieving that goal. Each student must pass the safety test in order to move forward with constructing, wiring and coding to produce an operational robot.

The donation achieved the first goal where students have their own pair of eyewear to use throughout the year without having to share with others. On September 27th SHECO representative Rachel Frey arrived with 84 impact-resistant lens safety glasses, and the second package arrived a week later contained 24 vented over glasses for students who wear prescription lenses. SHECO's timing on the announcement and delivery was impeccable. It was homecoming week and every day had a different theme to build school spirit and Lion pride. Ironically, the robotics instructor, Mrs. Davis received the news of the donation on Superhero Day. She was participating in the theme day and was dressed like her superhero father, Glenn Cryer, a former SHECO employee of 37 years, by donning his SHECO uniform patches, ID, instructor's badge, gloves, hard hat, and safety glasses. She displayed information about her real-life superhero, her dad, to help her students realize that superheroes are everywhere, not just make-believe in comic books and movies. Cryer trained electric line technicians for over 20 years as an Underground Working Foreman which included 12 years as a guest instructor at the Texas Engineering Extension Service teaching underground and troubleshooting. His knowledge and experiences live on within a small training field dedicated in his memory. His lifelong lessons and principles have passed along to his daughter, Celia Davis, whose passion for troubleshooting, safety, and teaching is clearly visible when you see her working with her students.

SHECO became the students real-life superhero that day.

SUPERHERO Livingston Junior High robotics instructor Mrs. Davis dressed as her dad for Superhero day. Glenn Cryer was a former SHECO employee for 37 years as a forman and a guest instructor at the Texas Engineering Extension Service teaching underground and troubleshooting.

Once the students were informed of the donation from SHECO you could almost see the visions of dancing robots in their eyes. Suddenly the goal of building and programming robots came to life and at that moment you couldn't help notice the connection that was made and to them, SHECO became their real-life superhero that day. Making that correlation with her students made Mrs. Davis feel that her dad was still indeed her superhero, watching over her, and helping come to her aid when needed.

Livingston Junior High robotics students show their appreciation for the donation of safety glasses.