Ferruccio Furlanetto Returns in Concert

Famed bass to celebrate 31 years with the Company in American concert debut

Saturday, March 5, 2016 at 7 PM at The Jacobs Music Center at Copley Symphony Hall with the San Diego Symphony

San Diego, CA – San Diego Opera is delighted to welcome back bass Ferruccio Furlanetto for his American concert debut with a full symphony orchestra on Saturday, March 5, 2016 at 7 PM at The Jacobs Music Center at Copley Symphony Hall. Ferruccio has a special relationship with San Diego Opera that began with his debut in 1985 in the title role of Oberto. Since then he has appeared with the Company thirteen times in roles as varied as Don Giovanni, Don Quixote, Boris Godunov, Méphistophélès, King Philip and Thomas Becket. This concert will be selection of “greatest hits” from his history at San Diego Opera, pulled from such operas as from Don Giovanni, Don Quixote, Boris Godunov, Faust, The Barber of Seville and Simon Boccanegra, among others. He will be joined by maestro Emanuele Andrizzi making his Company debut leading the San Diego Symphony on stage.

“It will be a joy to be surrounded by my colleagues again and it will be a wonderful way to celebrate my 31 years with San Diego Opera,” shares Mr. Furlanetto. “I have shared so many unforgettable moments in San Diego. It is, by far, my favorite in the world. I am delighted to come back for this concert and to have, once more, the pleasure of singing in San Diego.”

Ferruccio Furlanetto is one of the most sought-after singers in the world. The critics praise him for his vast range, thundering vocal power, and excellent acting ability. His international career began with the role of King Philip II in Verdi’s Don Carlo at the Salzburg Easter Festival under the baton of Herbert von Karajan in 1986. In the same year he debuted at the Salzburg Summer Festival with the role of Figaro in Mozart’s opera. His debuts on the leading opera stages happened earlier: Teatro alla Scala in 1979, the Metropolitan Opera in 1980, and Vienna State Opera in 1985. He has collaborated with some leading orchestras and conductors such as Herbert von Karajan, Carlo Maria Giulini, Sir Georg Solti, Leonard Bernstein, Valery Gergiev, Lorin Maazel, Claudio Abbado, Bernard Haitink, Daniel Barenboim, Georges Prêtre, James Levine, Semyon Bychkov, Daniele Gatti, Riccardo Muti, Mariss Jansons, and Vladimir Jurowski. He performs in concerts and recitals at the leading world's concert halls, in the repertory ranging from Verdi's Requiem to Russian songs and Schubert's Winterreise. He has made numerous recordings of opera on CD and DVD, and his performances were broadcasted internationally over the radio and television. He feels equally at home at many opera houses such as La Scala Milan, the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, the Vienna State Opera, the Opera National de Paris, and the Metropolitan Opera as well in Rome, Turin, Florence, Bologna, Palermo, Buenos Aires, Los Angeles, San Diego, and Moscow. At the Mariinsky Theatre in St. Petersburg, he became the first Italian bass to appear in the title role of Mussorgsky's Boris Godunov. He also performed the role on the stage of Bolshoi Theater with great critical and public acclaim last season, becoming the only Western artist who sang Boris Godunov on both historical main stages of Russia.

Italian conductor Emanuele Andrizzi makes his Company debut with this concert. He has collaborated with various symphonic and operatic companies including the Lyric Opera of Chicago, Chicago Opera Theater, Orchestra della Città di Ravenna, New Philharmonic Orchestra, Chicago Opera Vanguard, and the Cervantes Orchestra, Los Angeles Opera, The Dallas Opera, and the Rome's Opera Theater. He has also collaborated with important music festivals, including the Millennium Park Festival and the Ravinia Festival. An active teacher and performer, he has worked since August 2013 as the Conductor and Head of the Orchestra Program at the prestigious Chicago College of Performing Arts at Roosevelt University. In addition, he often collaborates with young artist programs. Lately, he conducted The Barber of Seville at the Ryan Opera Center, The Marriage of Figaro and Lucia di Lammermoor at the International Festival La Musica Lirica and Così fan tutte at Northwestern University. In addition, Mr. Andrizzi has taught and collaborated with important European musical institutions, including Rome's Conservatory, the Piaget University, and the Escola Profesional de Música of Mirandela. Mr. Andrizzi will lead the All-State Orchestra in January 2016. He is a recipient of the Honorable Mention award at the International Competition for Conductors of Contemporary Music "4X4 Prize" and a winner of the "P. Barrasso" International Competition for Chamber Music.
