MESSAGE FROM THE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

So far, it has been a banner year for Lycoming athletics. The men’s basketball and men’s soccer teams won their respective MAC Commonwealth championships and eight teams have reached postseason play this year. Just as impressive, a record 63 Warriors were named to the MAC Academic Honor Roll during the fall semester. Perhaps one of the most exciting announcements came in January, though, when Coach Frank Girardi was included in the 2016 College Football Hall of Fame class. Since he first came to the campus as an assistant coach in 1969 until he retired as the head football coach and director of athletics in 2007-08, Coach G had a momentous impact on myself and every other person that had the privilege of being a Warrior.

In addition, we are having a record year in the Warrior Club with 453 members who have invested more than $120,000 in support of Lycoming’s athletic programs. Your membership in the Warrior Club provides budget-enhancing support that we use in a variety of ways to provide a great experience for our student-athletes. Thank you for being a part of the team that is investing in their opportunity for success. The excellent education offered at Lycoming combined with the athletic experience that we provide is something that will impact our students for a lifetime.

INVESTING IN DIVISION III STUDENT ATHLETES

2 National Finals Appearances | 9 National Champions
22 Academic All-Americans | 39 Conference Titles
204 All-Americans
SPOTLIGHT

The men’s basketball team won three straight road games in the conference tournament to claim the MAC Commonwealth title for the first time since joining the league in 2008. The women’s basketball team was led by all-conference sophomore Shelby Mueller and junior Nicole Calella, as the team clinched a spot in the MAC Commonwealth Championship for the third time in the past four years.

Head swimming coach, Jerry Hammaker won his 200th career dual-meet with the swim team in his 15th year as coach. Sophomore Andrew Canavan broke Lycoming’s 200-yard backstroke record at the MAC Championships while senior Jilly Flynn ended her 2016 season with seven all-conference honors.

The wrestling team had another successful season recording 14 dual meet wins and finishing 13th at the NCAA Division III Championships. Juniors Nolan Barger (165-pounder) and Seth Lansberry (149-pounder) finished third and fourth to earn All-American honors at the event.

A FOCUS ON THE STUDENT-ATHLETE

Q&A with senior Meghenn Jackson (Arnold, Md.), History Major

Q. Why did you choose Lycoming College?
Lyco and I sort of chose each other. I received a call from Coach Lewis (soccer) to see if I might be interested in meeting with him and the lacrosse coach to see what Lyco had to offer.

Q. How do you balance being a two-sport collegiate athlete?
Balancing two sports is a challenge, but it keeps me accountable as well. With limited time, I know I need to use it wisely. I’ve had great help from understanding professors, who have been a big part of keeping me successful.

Q. What is your favorite place on campus?
While I do spend a lot of time at the library, my favorite place is the Shangraw Athletic Complex. I live at that field and love every minute of it. It’s the place where I am most comfortable and where I do what I love most in the world.

Q. Who receives the first call after a game?
I call my parents after every game. They are and always have been my biggest supporters and I am blessed to have them. They keep me grounded and remind me when I need to “step it up.”

Q. What is your dream job?
I plan to work with kids with emotional/learning disorders, teaching them confidence and reassurance through things like sports to help them with everyday social skills. However, my dream job would be to split time between the US Women’s Lacrosse and Soccer Teams.

Jackson, an all-conference lacrosse player, became Lycoming’s first women’s soccer player to earn first team all-conference honors since 2005 this past season.
