MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

October 2013

Dear Friends of Brown Athletics,

Thank you for your continued support of Brown Athletics. The 2013 Annual Report includes highlights from the 2012-13 academic year. These achievements include academic, athletic, and fundraising successes, in addition to facility enhancements and increased community initiatives.

We are extremely grateful to our graduating student-athletes, the Class of 2013, who have done an outstanding job representing the athletics program and the University over the course of their careers. They have excelled in the classroom, on the fields of play, and throughout the campus community. This group includes All-Americans, Academic All-Americans, NCAA qualifiers, national award recipients, and many First-Team All-by selections.

This past year marked the first full year that the Nelson Fitness Center, the Katherine Moran Coleman Aquatics Center, and the Zuconi Strength & Conditioning Center have been in operation. The construction of the Goldberger Family Field and the resurfacing of Stevenson Field also were completed during this past year. These facilities have had a tremendous impact on the campus and local community. Students, faculty, staff, alumni, and local neighbors have all benefited from the state-of-the-art facilities, and our teams have been able to train in the best possible environment.

We are particularly grateful to President Christina Paxson and Vice President for Campus Life and Student Services Margaret Elawunn for their leadership and enthusiastic support of our student-athletes. Brown University continues to be transformed by efforts to bolster research, education, and community initiatives. Our student-athletes appreciate the opportunity to pursue their academic and athletic goals in an atmosphere where excellence, integrity, and a commitment to teamwork are valued so highly.

We are proud of all that was accomplished this past year and we are excited about the challenges that lie ahead for our athletics program in 2013-14. On behalf of all of our student-athletes, thank you for being part of the team.

Sincerely,

Jack Hayes
Director of Athletics

STUDENT-ATHLETE SPOTLIGHT

Stephanie Thompson ’13

Stephanie Thompson, a senior captain on the softball team, was recognized as one of the country’s top hitters and left Brown University with her name etched in the record books. Thompson led the team with a .412 batting average as a senior and struck out just five times during her final two seasons. She ranks first all-time in career batting average (.436), hits (191) and doubles (42), and second in home runs (28). Thompson’s career batting average and on-base percentage are both Ivy League records, while her .728 slugging percentage ranks second all-time. She was named the co-recipient of the Marjorie Brown Smith Award, presented to the department’s outstanding female varsity athlete-of-the-year.

As a three-time All-Ivy selection, Thompson led the nation with a .504 batting average in 2011 and ranked 12th in the country with a .558 on-base percentage. She paced the Ivy League with 13 home runs and led the Bears in nearly every offensive category en route to 2011 Louisville Slugger/NFCA Division I All-Region honors. She was the 2012 Ivy League Player of the Year, compiling a .477 batting average, which ranked second in Division I softball. Academically, Thompson is a former First Team CoSIDA/Capital One Academic All-District selection and also earned Academic All-Ivy accolades.

Dylan Remick ’13

The epitome of the student-athlete, Dylan Remick ’13 was an All-American, Brown’s Outstanding Male Athlete, an Academic All-American, was nominated for the NCAA Top 10 Award, and is currently a professional soccer player with the MLS.

As a senior defender on the men’s soccer team, Remick led the Bears to four straight NCAA Tournament appearances. He put together another standout campaign in 2012, as he earned first team All-Ivy honors for the third straight season and was a unanimous selection in each of the past two years. Remick started all 18 games in 2012 and was a key part of the defense that tied the school record for shutouts, notching 11 for the third year in a row.

Remick’s lengthy list of accolades includes Academic All-Ivy selection, NSCAA first team All-Region, CoSIDA third team Academic All-American, NSCAA second team All-American and College Soccer News first team All-American. Most recently, Remick was drafted and signed by the Seattle Supersonics of the MLS.

King named to WBCA Good Works team

Caroline King ’13 was named to the WBCA Good Works Team that was presented at the 2013 NCAA Women’s Final Four in New Orleans, by the Women’s Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) and Allstate Insurance Company.

King was one of five Division I women’s basketball players selected to the inaugural team, which recognizes a unique group of men’s and women’s college basketball student-athletes who have made outstanding contributions in the areas of volunteerism and civic involvement. King and the other members of the Good Works Team were recognized on the court during halftime of NCAA Women’s Final Four National Semifinals, at NCAA Tournament and the WBCA Awards Show, and made a visit to Children’s Hospital of New Orleans.

As a student-athlete at Brown, King compiled an impressive list of academic and athletic accolades, and made a myriad of contributions to the community.

Royce Fellowship for Sport and Society

The Royce Fellowship for Sport and Society recognizes Brown University undergraduates who have a record of excellence in academics and sport. The Fellowship supports these student-athletes while they embark on innovative research or applied projects, and explore the intersection of sport and human rights within a particular context. Fellows’ areas of research may include health, education, conflict resolution, public policy, disability rights, race, gender or ethnicity. The Fellowship supports reflection and inquiry by inspiring fellows to connect their scholarly work with that of their peers and designated faculty, staff and community leaders. This initiative was established in 2007 through the generosity of Charles Royce, a 1961 graduate of Brown University and parent of two Brown graduates. Mr. Royce, president of Royce Funds, has served as a University trustee since 1989 and is an active member of several University committees.

The Fellowship is open to all student-athletes (varsity, club, intramural). Applicants must be rising sophomores, juniors, and seniors who will be on campus for at least one full academic year following the fellowship. Recipients will receive financial support to undertake a research, curricular or public service project of their choosing to be carried out over the summer or during the academic year. Recipients of the Royce Fellowship for Sport and Society are also awarded lifetime membership in the Society of Royce Fellows, which supports reflection and inquiry by encouraging members to connect their scholarly work with that of their peers, faculty sponsors and scholars in the field of sport and development.

Ryan McDuff ’13 Wins Senior CLASS Award

Brown senior defender Ryan McDuff was named the 2012 Senior CLASS award winner in NCAA Division I men’s soccer, awarded for excellence in four areas—classroom, community, character and competition. The Plano, Texas, native is Brown’s first-ever winner since the award was created in 2002.

The award, chosen by a nationwide vote of Division I men’s soccer coaches, national soccer media and fans, is given annually to the most outstanding senior student-athlete in Division I men’s soccer.

McDuff helped the Bears to four consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances (2009-2012) and an Ivy League title in 2011. A dual concentrator in business, entrepreneurship and organizations, as well as political science, McDuff was a two-year team captain who led Brown’s back line to 11 shutouts for a shutout percentage that ranked among the top in the country.
Men’s soccer was honored for earning its fourth consecutive NCAA Tournament bid.

LEADERSHIP

Roger Ferguson ’13: USILA Scholar All-American; Honorable Mention All-Ivy.
The Brown University Department of Athletics hosted a pair of events on Wednesday, October 10th, commemorating the 40th Anniversary of Title IX’s enactment. Athletic and academic administrators, coaches and students gathered to remember the past, to celebrate the present, and to discuss the continued support and evolution for all involved in women’s sports.

The first event, an afternoon panel discussion, featured five experts in careers ranging from coaching to business to sports journalism and broadcasting. Panelists included current Brown women’s soccer coach Phil Pincince, Brown alumnae Carolyn Thornton ’90 and Nancy Fuld Neff ’76, Doris Burke and Melissa Hem. Thornton played softball at Brown and is currently a writer for the Providence Journal. Neff is a Brown Corporation member and former tennis and basketball player for the Bears. Burke is a commentator and analyst for ESPN and ABC, while Melissa Hem is a marketing and development professional. Topics of discussion included the skills intrinsic to student-athletes and how they prepared the panelists for successful careers, and the evolution of coaching and recruiting during the Title IX era.

In the evening session, three individuals shared their perspectives on Title IX. Brown Director of Athletics Jack Hayes opened the evening, remarking about the importance of Title IX as it pertains to the strength of intercollegiate programs. Lindsay Nickel ’13, co-president of SAAC and a women’s basketball player at Brown, addressed the audience sharing her personal appreciation for those who had paved the way for her increased opportunities. Finally, Brown welcomed Ivy League Executive Director Robin Harris, who shared her vision and broader perspective about Title IX, how it currently relates to the Ivy League, and where she hopes the League will be well into the future.
Bears’ defensive back AJ Cruz ’13 (right) celebrating with defensive back Emory Polley ’14. Cruz was a First Team All-American and finalist for the Asa Bushnell Cup as the Ivy League’s top defensive player. Polley was an All-Ivy selection for the Bears.

MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

October 2013

Dear Friends of Brown Athletics,

Thank you for your continued support of Brown Athletics. The 2013 Annual Report includes highlights from the 2012-13 academic year. These achievements include academic, athletic, and fundraising successes, in addition to facility enhancements and increased community initiatives.

We are extremely grateful to our graduating student-athletes, the Class of 2013, who have done an outstanding job representing the athletics program and the University over the course of their careers. They have excelled in the classroom, on the fields of play, and throughout the campus community. This group includes All-Americans, Academic All-Americans, NCAA qualifiers, national award recipients, and many First-Team All-by selections.

This past year marked the first full year that the Nelson Fitness Center, the Katherine Moran Coleman Aquatics Center, and the Zuconi Strength & Conditioning Center have been in operation. The construction of the Goldberger Family Field and the resurfacing of Stevenson Field also were completed during this past year. These facilities have had a tremendous impact on the campus and local community. Students, faculty, staff, alumni, and local neighbors have all benefited from the state-of-the-art facilities, and our teams have been able to train in the best possible environment.

We are particularly grateful to President Christina Paxson and Vice President for Campus Life and Student Services Margaret Klawunn for their leadership and enthusiastic support of our student-athletes. Brown University continues to be transformed by efforts to bolster research, education, and community initiatives. Our student-athletes appreciate the opportunity to pursue their academic and athletic goals in an atmosphere where excellence, integrity, and a commitment to teamwork are valued so highly.

We are proud of all that was accomplished this past year and we are excited about the challenges that lie ahead for our athletics program in 2013-14. On behalf of all of our student-athletes, thank you for being part of the team.

Sincerely,

Jack Hayes
Director of Athletics
