THE FENWAY GRIDIRON SERIES

In January, Brown football announced that it would meet Dartmouth at Fenway Park on November 10, 2017 as part of the 2017 Fenway Gridiron Series with the two teams competing in Fenway for the first time since back-to-back meetings in 1922 and 1923.
Thank you for your support of Brown Athletics!

In this publication, we have highlighted the many achievements and accolades earned by our student-athletes throughout the past year. Their commitment to Brown University – in the classroom, in competition and in the community – provides inspiration to us all.

Over the past year, we completed more than $14 million worth of capital projects. This included a baseball/softball complex, the Olney-Margolies Athletic Center training room and football locker room renovation, the locker room renovations in the Pizzitola Sports Center, and the new press box at Stevenson-Pincince Field. We are grateful to all the alumni, parents and friends who made these enhancements possible.

President Christina Paxson continues to provide outstanding leadership to the Brown community. Our student-athletes have the opportunity to meet with her and engage in important discussions surrounding the role of athletics on a college campus. We greatly appreciate the support she provides to our athletics program.

We will continue to work diligently and emphasize the important balance between academics and athletics so that alumni, corporate partners and friends, as well as our administration, faculty, staff and students can take tremendous pride in all that is accomplished by those who wear the Brown uniform.

Sincerely,

Jack Hayes
Director of Athletics

BROWN’S 18TH ALL-TIME LEADING SCORER
Dayna Lord '17 finished her career as Brown women's tennis' all-time career leader in combined wins (182) and doubles wins (90), while ranking second in career singles wins (92). The Ivy League's NCAA Woman of the Year Nominee, she became just the second student-athlete in the history of Brown women's tennis to earn First Team All-Ivy honors in singles in each of her four collegiate seasons, joining Brown Hall of Fame member Saranga Sangakkara '99.
You rank first all-time at Brown in career combined wins and doubles wins and second in singles wins. What does it mean to you to have achieved those rankings considering the history of Brown women’s tennis?

There have been so many great women who have come through the Brown women’s tennis program. I am just happy I got to represent my school, my team and my family playing the sport that I love. It definitely was not an easy journey, but I am glad I was healthy and able to stick it out all four years with my coaches and teammates by my side at Brown supporting me not only athletically, but personally and academically. I hope that my achievements motivate other women, especially women of color, in the coming years to use Brown to meet and connect with amazing people and to achieve their academic, career and athletic goals.

How did your relationships with teammates and coaches shape your Brown experience, and how do you hope others remember your time at Brown?

My relationships with my teammates and coaches are special. I hate to sound cliché, but they really are my family and I could not have done a lot of the things I’ve accomplished without them. I’ve spent most of my time with them on and off the court and we’ve really gotten to know and care about each other. They have been with me through my personal, academic and athletic accomplishments and failures, good times and bad, and have continued to support me and give me advice in all my endeavors. I am very grateful to have them, as well as my talented friends outside athletics, in my corner. The people and culture at Brown was the reason I chose Brown as my school of choice, and why I am now a proud graduate; they have made my Brown experience one to remember. I hope others not only remember my athletic contributions to Brown, but also remember my identity outside of athletics as a leader, supporter and/or participant for other clubs/extracurriculars, like the arts. I hope that I embodied what it truly means to be a student and also an athlete, and that I mirrored some of the confident, well-rounded and multidimensional students I was exposed to on my recruiting visit and during my time at Brown.

You finished your career as Brown’s second-ever four-time First Team All-Ivy student-athlete in singles. When you think about the competitiveness of the Ivy League, what does it mean to you to have reached such select company?

I think over the past four years the Ivy League has definitely gotten more athletically competitive across all sports but especially in women’s tennis, which is great to see. I am glad that my other top performing Ivy League peers and I have contributed to that growth in competition. It is nice to represent Brown and the Ivy League on a national stage, and it is also a great way for families to know that their child’s education and athletics can excel and be taken seriously (if it was not already). While I am proud to have reached such select company and blessed that this experience has been athletically and academically enriching for me, I also hope that it paves the way for other women, particularly women of color, to also join this elite group. I hope that my Ivy League success inspires the next generation to reach for and possibly exceed these goals and benchmarks.

Alexander Jette ‘17 (pictured below left) finished his career with four First Team All-Ivy honors, earning First Team All-Ivy wide receiver and return specialist accolades in 2016, while ranking ninth in Brown history in career receiving yards (1,860) and receptions (150).

Under first-year head coach Kia McNeill (pictured below center), women’s soccer placed second in the final Ivy League standings, marking the team’s highest finish in the league since 1994, while ranking in the top five in the nation in goals against average and save percentage as a team.

Behind a pair of All-Americans, including Yahel Murvitz-Lahav ‘17 (pictured bottom right), men’s water polo won its third straight regular season conference championship, claiming the inaugural Northeast Water Polo Conference regular season title.

Serving as a cross country and track & field captain in the fall, winter and spring, Taylor Worthy ‘17 (pictured top right) finished in fourth place overall at the 2017 Ivy League Women’s Heptagonal Cross Country Championship, gaining First Team All-Ivy honors in the process.

THE CLASS OF 2017: A NATIONAL RUN, A LIFETIME OF MEMORIES

Larken Kemp ’17

Dylan Molloy ’17

Alec Tulett ’17
The Brown men’s lacrosse Class of 2017 concluded its time on College Hill with three Ivy League Tournament appearances, two Ivy League titles, two NCAA Championship berths, an appearance in the NCAA National Semifinals, and the second-most wins for a class (46) in program history. Along the way, Dylan Molloy ’17 won the 2016 Tewaaraton Award and became Brown’s all-time leading scorer, while all three earned All-America honors in 2016 and 2017.

Q&A WITH LARKEN KEMP ’17, DYLAN MOLLOY ’17 AND ALEC TULETT ’17

Q All three of you earned All-America honors on the field while also earning accolades for your academic accomplishments. How does your combined success on the field and in the classroom represent the program’s culture?

A Dylan Molloy: Great academics and athletics is the culture of Brown University. I was thrilled at the opportunity to play a sport that I love while getting an Ivy League education. Looking back now, I realize that my experience at Brown gave me all that I could have hoped for. Being a student-athlete at Brown helped me develop all the tools that I need to be successful in my career and in life. The academic culture at Brown allows for individual growth and encourages self-expression and experimentation in different areas of study. The balance of rigorous academics along with a full-time dedication to the sport is invaluable when preparing for life after college. My preparedness to handle new challenges in the future is a testament to the positive influence from Brown’s culture.

Q How did your relationships with teammates and coaches shape your Brown experience, and how do you hope others remember your time at Brown?

A Larken Kemp: Human happiness is derived from social interaction. The benefits of having 40 best friends and brothers during my time on College Hill are immeasurable. What makes team sports so unique is that through the ups and downs of a grueling Division I season, the student-athlete is faced with many challenges and decisions, each of which has real-world value that often correlates to the classroom, the workplace and in his/her personal life. I would not be who I am today without lacrosse, specifically my coaches and teammates, for the role they played in my personal development. I hope I am remembered as a kind person who wore my heart on my sleeve and always gave my all to my friends, this program and, ultimately, Brown University.

Q During your time at Brown, you won multiple Ivy League titles and earned multiple selections into the NCAA Championship. When you reflect on your careers, what is your most memorable team accomplishment?

A Alec Tulett: While I consider back-to-back Ivy League Championships to be a very proud moment in my experience as a Brown lacrosse player, the 2016 end-of-season and playoff run that ended in the Final Four was, in my opinion, our greatest team accomplishment, and one that reflected the successful history of the Brown lacrosse program.

Tori Kinamon, a member of the gymnastics team from Peachtree City, Georgia, personified what it means to overcome adversity. During her time at Brown, she overcame multiple major surgeries and an extended hospitalization due to a staph infection. Through it all, she remained the consummate teammate.

Inspired by her experience, she took on a role as a student researcher, conducting clinical and laboratory research on staph infections. Through her research, Kinamon won the George W. Hagy Prize in human biology, given to a senior health and human biology student in recognition of embodying the spirit of the human biology program along with a record of remarkable academic achievement.

She volunteered with the Community Health Advocacy Program, was a women’s peer counselor, and taught elementary school students about nutrition and wellness as a FIT Club Fellow. Her involvement at Brown and the wider community earned her a Royce Fellowship for Sport and Society, the Derek Canfield Barker Prize, the Mari-Rae Sopper Spirit Award, and the Frederick W. “Doc” Marvel 1894 Award.

Over her career, she garnered Scholastic All-America honors three times, won First Team All-Ivy Classic honors on bars and gained the ECAC Coaches Choice Award after returning from injury. Kinamon graduated with a degree in health and human biology and plans to take a gap year to conduct research in the health care industry, specializing in infectious disease research and outreach, before applying to medical school.

“Tori Kinamon is one of the strongest, most mature and hardest working student-athletes I have coached. She is an extremely successful student, but what makes her so special is her tremendous attitude and incredible work ethic, despite what life throws at her.”

Richard Muniz, a member of the wrestling team, inspired his teammates and coaches through his work ethic and determination. Muniz walked onto the Brown wrestling team as a freshman and emerged as a two-time team captain who never missed a practice over his four years. A devoted leader and role model, he put Brown University and the Providence community before himself in all that he did.

He acted as a critical component of the success of Beat the Streets Providence, an organization that supports at-risk youth through wrestling programs. Muniz engaged with more than 300 students annually in Providence middle and elementary schools and held numerous leadership roles with the group, including assistant executive director, summer program coordinator, and secretary of the board of directors.

Muniz worked to break down social inequalities on campus and in the community, while supporting programs to reduce stress and anxiety on campus and creating an inclusive and supportive environment. He served as a peer academic coach and as a member of the Campus Life Subcommittee on Athletics and Physical Education.

On the mat, he represented the Bears at the EIWA Championships, placed at multiple tournaments and earned the program’s Most Improved Wrestler Award and Marvin Wilenzik Award.

A native of Corona, California, Muniz graduated with a degree in biochemistry and molecular biology and plans to attend medical school next year.

“Richard Muniz always demonstrated a work ethic which few student-athletes I have ever coached have matched. As a first-generation college graduate, Richard possesses a unique mix of character, drive, and devotion to the quality of life at Brown and the surrounding community.”

– Todd Beckerman, Brown Head Coach
THE NATION’S LEADER IN NCAA APR

For the second straight year, Brown University ranked first among all NCAA Division I schools in academic achievement, earning 19 NCAA APR Public Recognition Awards – the most of any program in the nation. Brown’s 19 teams, based on their most recent multiyear Academic Progress Rate, earned the awards for posting scores in the top 10 percent of their sport. The APR is an annual scorecard of academic achievement calculated for all Division I sports teams nationally.

FACILITY ENHANCEMENTS

Brown baseball and softball took to new fields in 2017, made possible through the generous support of donors, alumni and fans. Both programs hold rich and storied traditions, and to commemorate these historic seasons, the Bears celebrated the legacies of these teams through a series of ceremonial first pitches.

Stevenson-Pincince Field received a significant upgrade prior to the 2017 spring season with a new press box that includes space for media and broadcasting capabilities, while offering Brown an enhanced venue for coverage of men’s and women’s soccer and men’s and women’s lacrosse.

Renovations to the Olney-Margolies Athletic Center as part of the Berylson Football and Training Complex provided Brown with an updated football locker room as well as improved areas for athletic training and equipment services in a project completed in the summer of 2017.
RECREATION AT BROWN

With a qualified staff committed to excellence and the developmental needs of the entire Brown community, Brown recreation prides itself in providing something for everyone. The department works to promote and advance healthy lifestyle choices through participation opportunities, educational experiences and supportive services. All programs are designed to maximize participation and accommodate a wide range of interests and abilities.

The department offers over 85 group fitness classes per week in the areas of aerobics, fitness and mind/body. The group fitness program averages over 1,500 participants per year while the 33 club sports teams service hundreds of student-athletes. The intramural sports program consists of 25 offerings in a variety of team, dual, individual and special event programs to over 4,100 registered participants within the Brown community.

After taking a training trip to Barbados over spring recess, men’s club rugby defeated Princeton to win the Ivy title and earn an automatic bid to the Division 1AA National Rugby Championships.

At the national championships, Brown’s sailing program closed the year with a 12th-place overall finish in the Fowle Trophy, a 10th-place finish for the women’s team, and a 17th-place finish for the coed team.

The women’s and men’s club volleyball teams competed at the NCVF National Championships, earning six and four wins respectively in Division 1AAA.

The club swimming & diving team captured its second consecutive Ivy championship.
In its fourth year of operation, Brown’s channel on the Ivy League Network continued to innovate and expand its content. The channel produced 180 live broadcasts, introduced the sports of baseball and softball to the platform, and simulcast 14 events on ESPN3. The Bears’ content appeared on numerous national outlets, including ESPN, USA Today, Sports Illustrated, Fox Sports, CBS Sports and NBC Sports.

The channel produced 60 features and highlight packages, introduced the use of SnappyTV to seamlessly share video content across social media, and streamed the Phil Estes and Mike Martin ’04 coaches’ shows. Community involvement features from the channel included the men’s lacrosse team’s relationship with Team IMPACT, the athletic department’s partnership with the Brown University Oncology Research Group, and football’s Bench Press for Cancer event.

LEARFIELD:
BROWN BEARS SPORTS PROPERTIES

Brown University athletics’ exclusive multimedia rights holder is Learfield, a nationally known industry leader for over 40 years. Locally, Brown Bears Sports Properties is Learfield’s team solely dedicated to representing Brown and working closely with local, regional and national businesses looking to align with the Bears’ passionate fan base.

In complete collaboration with the University, this team is committed to extending the affinity of the Brown Athletics brand to businesses of all sizes looking to align with the undeniably loyal and passionate collegiate sports fan base. As exclusive multimedia rights holder for Brown Athletics, Brown Bears Sports Properties manages all aspects of the rights relationship, providing corporate partners both traditional and new media opportunities with the Bears in which to bolster their own brand and garner maximum exposure through inventory such as venue signage, event sponsorships, corporate hospitality, digital engagement and visibility via the official athletics website, and television and radio game broadcasts and coaches’ shows.

LEADERS IN THE COMMUNITY

Serving the community stands as an integral part of the student-athlete experience at Brown, and each year hundreds of student-athletes and dozens of coaches spend time working towards this central part of the mission of the University. From involvement with Team IMPACT to visits to Hasbro Children’s Hospital to decades of connections with the Vartan Gregorian Elementary School, Brown student-athletes are working to make the Providence community – and beyond – a better one.
1. For the second straight year, Brown athletics and the Brown Student-Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) partnered to host a “Tug for a Cure” event as Bear teams - including event winners football (pictured) and women’s ice hockey - competed in a tug-of-war competition to raise money for the Brown University Oncology Research Group.

2. Bruno, Brown’s mascot, and student-athletes from the Bears’ gymnastics team (pictured) pause for a group picture at Brown’s 26th annual kickoff event at the Vartan Gregorian Elementary School.

3. For the fourth straight year, women’s basketball hosted an Education Day game with the over 1,500 local elementary students in attendance hearing from a variety of presenters, including the Bears themselves (pictured).

4. Members of the Brown baseball team (pictured) volunteered on multiple occasions over the spring semester at the Ronald McDonald House of Providence, assisting with maintenance, landscaping, repairs and general cleanup throughout the facility.

In conjunction with the Brown University Oncology Research Group (BrUOG) and the BrownCures program, the Bears’ volleyball team (pictured) visited Hasbro Children’s Hospital in Providence, offering young patients support, mentorship and positive social interaction during their hospital stay.

Dear Alumni and Friends,

More than 6,000 of you have made wonderful investments in the lives of our student-athletes and coaches by giving generously to Brown Athletics through the Sports Foundation. With gratitude, I send you this “donor impact” portion of the Athletics Annual Report.

Every gift, large and small, makes a difference. You are helping Brown Athletics sustain a legacy and a commitment to excellence. Your gift allows us to attract and retain the most qualified coaches. It ensures that we have the equipment, technology, and supplies on the water, field, court, track, ice and in the pool. By giving, you have provided us the freedom to accept individuals who are both hard-working and talented, creating exceptional programs with the nation’s most dedicated Division I student-athletes.

As you’ll see in the following pages, 6,123 alumni, parents and friends of Brown Athletics made an impact and helped the Sports Foundation reach a record-breaking fundraising year: Together your gifts surpassed $20,583,000 for our programs in fiscal year 2016-17. Of those gifts, $4,022,365 were designated to current-use needs — such as out-of-region travel, recruiting and other team initiatives — exceeding our goal and surpassing last year’s total by $599,333. Not only that, 17 programs had their highest annual fundraising year ever!

Thanks to your generous support, Brown Athletics continues to compete at the highest level.

Go Bruno!

Kim Insalaco ’03
Executive Director, Brown University Sports Foundation

“I am grateful every day for my Brown experience as a two-sport student-athlete. The opportunities Brown has afforded me, including representing Team USA at the 2006 Winter Olympic Games, are invaluable. It is now time to give back in my current role leading the Sports Foundation. I enjoy helping to enhance the experience of current Brown Bears; I am proud to return to College Hill and to help make an impact for the institution that has given me so much.”

NEW ENDOWMENTS IN 2016-17

To ensure long-term sustainability, the Sports Foundation has select coaching chair and programmatic endowments. Those established in the last academic year include: the Loyalty Head Coaching Chair for Women’s Crew, Baseball Assistant Coaching Chair and 1976 Hall of Fame Hockey Team Director of Operations.

The Loyalty Head Coaching Chair for Women’s Crew was established by lead donor Kathryn Quadracci Flores, ’90 M.D. and several other alumni donors. John Murphy, who enters his 34th season as the head coach of the Brown women’s crew, is considered the premier coach in the nation with seven NCAA championships to his credit. Murphy is also a six-time winner of the EAWRC Coach of the Year award.

The Assistant Coaching Chair for Baseball was established to support baseball assistant coaching positions. This endowment helps to ensure coaching continuity, which is critical to recruiting elite-level student-athletes and offer competitive compensation amongst peer institutions.

The 1976 Hall of Fame Hockey Team Director of Operations endowment was established in 2016 by Brown University Chancellor Samuel M. Mencoff ’78, P’11, P’15 and Ann S. Mencoff P’11, P’15. This position supports both the men’s and women’s ice hockey programs by executing team logistics in order to maintain elite Division I program performance.

The Brown crew programs have established themselves as premier rowing organizations, both nationally and internationally. In its history, the women’s crew program has won seven national championships, and the men’s side has won three, with both groups producing Olympic and World Championship medalists.

Marston Boathouse has been home to both crew programs since 1973. The $12-million renovation will create a high-quality training center for student-athletes and cement Brown crew as a top collegiate program into the future.

THE MARSTON BOATHOUSE RENOVATION PROJECT INCLUDES:

• Fortifying and expanding the dock and pier (Phase I starting summer 2018)
• Land acquisition for boat storage (Phase I starting summer 2018)
• Expanded ergometer rooms, training space, and locker rooms (TBD)
• Endowment for maintenance
LEAVING A LEGACY

“We now have the opportunity to grow from a great national program to a global crew program. This opportunity is within our grasp, but it isn’t free. A renovated facility for our athletes to train is past due. As a proud member of this historic program, we’re calling out — we need you! Whether your gift is large or small — we need you.”

– Rich Caputo ’88, P’18, P’21

Rich Caputo was a member of Brown men’s crew from 1984 to 1988. Since graduating from Brown, he has served as a long-time steward for the crew program and helped to spearhead the renovation efforts for Marston Boathouse. Rich’s passion for rowing extends beyond Brown where he serves on the Board of Directors of the National Rowing Foundation, which supports the U.S. National Rowing teams. Rich’s wife, Laurel Reed Caputo ’88, P’18, P’21, was a member of the Brown women’s lacrosse team. The couple has three children, including sons on the Brown men’s crew and men’s lacrosse team.

“I have gotten far more from being a member of the Brown women’s crew team than I have given, whether as a rower or as a supporter. When I give, I get to be a part of something bigger than myself. When I give, I make it possible for the nation’s most exceptional student-athletes to row at the highest level. When I give, I ensure the survival of my sport at Brown. When I give, I leave a legacy for the women rowers who will follow in my footsteps.”

– Kathryn Quadracci Flores, ’90 M.D.

As a proud women’s crew alumna, Kathryn led the efforts to establish the Loyalty Head Coaching and Gratitude Assistant Coaching chairs. The establishment of these coaching chairs helps to ensure the continued excellence of the seven-time national champion Brown women’s crew program. Kathryn also serves as a member of the President’s Advisory Council on Athletics, which considers strategic initiatives and long-term policy and planning issues concerning the athletic and physical education program at the University.
LASTING LEADERSHIP

“As Brown alumni we are all part of a very special team. As a team, we strive for excellence, overcome adversity, play with our strength and our hearts and take care of our own. But first, we have to show up for the game.”

– John Berylson ’75

John Berylson is the most instrumental donor to the Berylson Family Football Complex (OMAC) project, which will maintain Brown football’s high level of competitiveness in the Ivy League. A long-standing stakeholder for the program, including his philanthropic support for Berylson Family Fields, John has been an integral part of the Brown Football family.

“When I give to Brown Athletics, I know that I am part of the extraordinary potential of a community—one with lofty goals, but with a shared work ethic and tradition. That is why it is so very important to me that I give back every year. It’s not the size of the gift, nor even its intended purpose, but being part of something bigger than myself.”

– Bernard Muir ’90

Bernard Muir’s experience as a men’s basketball student-athlete at Brown taught him intercollegiate athletics leadership skills that he uses today as Stanford’s Director of Athletics. Bernard has remained involved as a loyal supporter of Brown men’s basketball. He also serves on the Brown Sports Foundation Board of Directors and as a student-athlete mentor for career networking.
The Athletics Annual Fund supports Brown’s 38 varsity programs by raising current-use dollars, which provide teams with the needed resources to compete and amplify the power of a strong student-athlete experience.

2016-17 BY THE NUMBERS:

- $4.02 million raised
- 6,123 donors
- 17 varsity programs had their highest annual fundraising year ever

WHERE DOES MY ATHLETICS ANNUAL FUND GIFT GO?

This is a common question, given the different annual fund goal for each of our 38 varsity teams. The answer, of course, will vary according to the program, but a general breakdown of these funds is provided below.

FISCAL YEAR 2017 BROWN ATHLETICS BUDGET

- 34% Athletics Revenue
- 32% Individual Philanthropy
- 20% Endowment Revenue
- 14% University Support
- 10% Athletic Revenue
BROWN BEARS CLAWING ACROSS THE COUNTRY

Brown varsity teams traveled across the country to 29 states and the District of Columbia, as well as the United Kingdom, to compete in 2016-17 and Athletics Annual Fund support makes this travel possible for Brown’s 38 varsity teams.

Host our teams! When Brown travels to your region, the Sports Foundation is looking for event hosts. To help the Brown Bears in this way, contact the Sports Foundation at sports_foundation@brown.edu.

“I give back to women’s soccer each year because my experience at Brown would not have been the same without it. Being a student-athlete not only gave me a sense of community while at Brown, but also in the years following, and I hope that giving back will help provide a similar experience for others. Geev’um Bruno!”

- Gloria Chun ’12

Gloria Chun ’12 was a leader in the Brown women’s soccer backfield, where she started 41 games for the Bears and was a two-time All-Ivy honoree. Gloria has remained a Loyal Bear and has given back to the women’s soccer program for six consecutive years since graduation.
