BYLAW 17.9.2.3 FIVE-DAY ACCLIMATIZATION PERIOD (FBS/FCS)

The following Q&A is applicable when a student-athlete joins the team after classes have begun.

Question: If a student-athlete joins the team after the preseason is over, does he still have to go through the five-day acclimatization period specified in bylaw 17.9.2.3?

Answer: No, the student-athlete does not have to go through an acclimatization period. Bylaw 17.9.2.3 only applies to student-athletes that begin in the preseason.

CHANGES TO THE NCAA DRUG TESTING PROGRAM

Executive Committee approves drug testing changes

Aug 16, 2010 9:16:10 AM

By Gary Brown The NCAA News

The NCAA Executive Committee on Thursday approved changes to the Association's drug-testing procedures that allocate resources more efficiently to higher-risk sports and student-athletes without compromising the overall effectiveness and integrity of the program.

The changes result from the Executive Committee asking the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports (the governance group that oversees the drug-testing program) to recommend changes in the drug-testing plan that would increase deterrence without increasing costs.

The primary changes for the year-round testing program include the following:

- The number of repeat testing sites will increase for the year-round testing program. Repeat testing will not include a specific predetermined number of samples to be collected to allow for more repeat testing sites.
- Institutions and student-athletes in repeat testing situations for the year-round testing program may receive no notice before testing. The "no-notice" approach will also be used in the summer testing program.
- Repeat testing may target higher-risk sports and student-athletes (for example, highly ranked student-athletes, redshirts or injured student-athletes).
- Ephedrine will be eliminated from the year-round and summer testing panels.
- The championships testing program may target higher-risk championship events at which to test for anabolic steroids. Conversely, testing at lower-risk championship events may be reduced.
- In the summer testing program, selection focus will shift to include not only an institutional orientation (a number of student-athletes from a randomly selected institution) but also an individual orientation (for example, collegiate athletes playing in a summer baseball league).

The competitive-safeguards committee indicated that in the past, beyond year-round testing in football and baseball, the testing program has treated all sports relatively equally in that all were tested for the same substance and all student-athletes were selected randomly without consideration to relative risk.

Research related to the program over time, however, showed a wide variance of risk of drug use by sport.

Many elements of the current plan will not change. The National Center for Drug Free Sport will still administer the program, and World Anti-Doping Agency certified laboratories will continue to be used to process samples.

Other elements that remain intact:

- All Division I institutions will be tested.
- All Division II institutions that sponsor football will be tested.
- At least 50 percent of the Division II institutions that do not sponsor football will be tested.
- Football and baseball student-athletes will always be tested.
