TIGHT BATTLE EXPECTED FOR CAA TITLE: Hofstra is favored to win what should be a very competitive battle for the CAA women's soccer championship according to a vote of the league's head coaches. The Pride received three first-place votes and 74 total points to narrowly edge out defending regular-season champion James Madison, which got four first-place votes and 71 total points, and William & Mary, which picked up a pair of first-place tallies and 70 points. Northeastern, which won the 2013 CAA title, also got a first-place vote and was fourth with 57 points. UNCW was chosen fifth, followed by Delaware, Drexel, Elon, Towson and College of Charleston.

PRIDE'S GALTON HEADLINES PRESEASON ALL-CAA TEAM: Hofstra junior forward Leah Galton, who received CAA Player of the Year honors last season, was chosen as the 2014 CAA Preseason Player of the Year by the league's head coaches. Galton, who scored eight goals and contributed a league-high 11 assists last year, is on the preseason Watch List of the Hermann Trophy. Joining her at forward on the preseason All-CAA squad are W&M's Emory Camper, UNCW's Katrina Guillou, JMU's Ashley Herndon and Hofstra's Sam Sclarici.
