SEASON OUTLOOK

Looking to build off of last season's trip to the North Coast Athletic Conference Tournament, the Oberlin College men's basketball team is developing a culture of respect under third-year head coach Isaiah Cavaco.

Tasting postseason play for the first time in seven years has made the Yeomen hungry and with a perfect blend of veteran leadership and youth, Oberlin will factor into the NCAC race this season.

Senior Mike Loll leads the offensive attack as he paced the team in scoring (14.5 ppg), rebounding (7.0 rpg) and assists (2.46 apg) during the 2007-08 season. The second-team All-NCAC selection surpassed the 1,000-point plateau and raised his level play in conference action, averaging 17.7 ppg in league games.

Fellow senior Omari Hall is another premier scoring threat who came into his own towards the end of last season, scoring in double figures in five of the final nine games. The 6-foot-1 guard is one of the team's top perimeter threats as he connected on a team-best 40.7 percent (33-of-81) of his attempts as a junior. OC welcomes back the return of local product Jordan Beard who missed the final nine games of the 2007-08 season due to injury. Through his 17 games of work, Beard averaged 12.6 ppg and was atop the NCAC stat sheet with an 87.8 percent success rate at the free throw line. Beard's return helps solidify the guard spot and gives the Yeomen one of the better backcourts in the conference. Senior Colin Sallee will also provide sound leadership and depth to the club.

After taking last season off, Dylan Venable returns to the Yeomen. During the 2005-06 season he played in 24 games, making 10 starts and finished third on the team with 60 rebounds.

Forward Ryan Magiera headlines a sophomore class that gained valuable playing time as rookies. The 6-foot-5 Louisville, Colorado, native started 19 games and came on strong at the end of the season, averaging 14.3 ppg over the final three contests.

Philippines national player Gian Chiu is the man in the middle for the Yeomen. The 6-foot-9 center started 21 games a year ago and has been working hard to be a force inside the paint this season.

Pat Bernhard is another sharp shooter and defensive ace who will compete for minutes in the backcourt. After missing the final 10 games of the season with a hand injury, James Tompsett returns to the team and provides great athleticism and length on the frontline.

Oberlin added 11 new faces to the roster from 11 different states. The diverse group of first-years makes the Yeomen more athletic at all positions and provides depth to the club. High School league MVP and San Francisco, California, product Josh Merritt will have the opportunity to orchestrate the Oberlin offense, while Sedalia, Colorado, native and former all-county selection Dashan Gary will use his 6-foot-5 frame to be a physical presence down low for Oberlin. Late addition Jon Selzer also gives Oberlin added size in the middle as he checks in at 6-foot-8. Hal Sundt, Marcus Johnson, Jared Ramirez and Joe Dilworth are also expected to see minutes in backup rolls.

The Yeomen will be battle tested early as five of their first seven games are on the road with the season opener set for November 21 at Mt. Aloysius. Oberlin's first game in Philips Gym will be on November 24 against Westminster, before the team embarks on a west coast swing to take on Cal Tech, Claremont-McKenna and Pomona-Pitzer. Conference play gets underway on December 3 at Wooster.

ISAIAH CAVACO

Head Coach
3rd Season
Yale, 2001

Isaiah Cavaco enters his third year as the head coach for the Yeomen. Following an interim season in 2006-07, last year he guided Oberlin to its first NCAC Tournament appearance since the 2000-01 season.

During Cavaco's tenure, the Yeomen have shown steady improvement in the conference and have bettered themselves through a tough non-conference schedule. Under Cavaco's guidance last season, the Yeomen swept conference rival Earlham for the first time since the 1997-1998 season and also battled Division I member Yale. Oberlin's back-to-back road wins a year ago marked the first time the Yeomen have claimed consecutive wins away from Philips Gym since the 1990-91 campaign.

As one of the most energetic coaches in the country, Cavaco is working on installing an up-tempo style of play that will help the Yeomen be one of the most exciting teams in the conference.

After spending the 2004-05 and 2005-06 seasons as an assistant coach, Cavaco was named interim head coach the following season. This year's incoming class marks his second group of recruits to join the Yeomen.

A native of Honolulu, Hawaii, Cavaco began his coaching career at Ohio University as a graduate assistant before returning to his alma mater, Yale University, as an assistant coach. After a brief stint as a financial analyst, Cavaco returned to coaching at John Carroll University.

In his first season playing Ivy League basketball for the Bulldogs, Cavaco won the John C. Cobb Award as Yale's top newcomer. From 1998 to 2001 he earned four letters as a point guard for the Bulldogs. Cavaco graduated from Yale with a bachelor's degree in economics, and he earned his master's degree in recreation and sports sciences from Ohio in 2002.

"I am excited to be a part of the of the Oberlin athletics family," Cavaco said. "With the excellent administration we have in place, the culture of athletics is changing as we continue to make strides towards athletics excellence."

Cavaco and his wife, Stephanie, and their dogs, Tucker and Barkley, reside in North Ridgeville.

COACHING STAFF

Brett Nichols is entering his third season on the Oberlin coaching staff and first as associate head coach. He joined the Yeomen staff in 2006 after spending the previous two seasons as a graduate intern and graduate manager with the men's basketball program at Kent State University. While a part of the KSU program, the Golden Flashes went 46-22 and made appearances in the postseason NIT and NCAA tournaments.

At Oberlin, Nichols is responsible for recruiting players in the Midwest and South region of the country. He is also responsible for developing post players and is transitioning into the role of installing the Oberlin defense. Nichols also plays a large part in the day-to-day duties in the basketball office, which include scouting, tape exchange and scheduling.

Before arriving at Oberlin, Nichols worked as a graduate assistant in the physical education department at Kent State and finished his master's degree in sport studies and athletic coaching in May of 2006.

Prior to his experience at Kent State, he spent the 2002-03 season on the coaching staff at Spaulding High School in Barre, Vermont, where he helped develop young players who would propel Spaulding to the Division I state finals in 2005 and 2006.

Nichols received his bachelor's degree from Hamline University in St. Paul, Minnesota, in May 2001. At Hamline, he played basketball for two years before focusing entirely on track & field, where he was a key member of the school's 2001 MIAC Conference Champion and school record 4x800 meter squad.

Nichols also works as an assistant in the sports information office. He and his wife, Christina, reside in Oberlin.

Mitch Gillam joined the men's basketball coaching staff in the summer of 2008 after spending the previous season as an assistant coach for the women's squad. A accomplished high school coach, Gillam grew up in Lorain, Ohio, and attended Admiral King High School. As the starting point guard for the Admirals, he led his team to a combined 47-5 record while earning All-Ohio honors.

Gillam went on to become the starting point guard at the United States Merchant Marine Academy, where his squad compiled a 26-2 record and earned the school's first-ever NCAA bid. Once again, team success brought individual honors, as he earned All-League, All-ECAC, and honorable mention All-America recognition. Gillam graduated in 1990 with the most wins of any basketball player in Academy history.

As the head varsity coach at Fairview High School, and most recently at Amherst Steele, Gillam's teams have compiled some of the best records in school history and have won several tournament championships. Gillam received his master's degree in education administration from Ashland University in 2000. He currently teaches high school science in Amherst, where he also helps coach the golf team.

THE OBERLIN EXPERIENCE

Marvin Krislov became the 14th President of Oberlin College in the summer of 2007. He came to Oberlin from the University of Michigan, where he had been vice president and general counsel since 1998. At Michigan, Mr. Krislov led the University of Michigan's legal defense of its admission policies, resulting in the 2003 Supreme Court decision recognizing the importance of student body diversity.

Mr. Krislov received a bachelor's degree, summa cum laude, from Yale University in 1982. He received master's degrees from Oxford University and Yale, and a doctor of laws degree from Yale Law School in 1988.

Prior to entering academic life, Mr. Krislov served as acting solicitor from 1997-98 in the U.S. Department of Labor, and as deputy solicitor of national operations from 1996 to 1998. He had previously served as associate counsel in the Office of Counsel to the President.

Mr. Krislov is married to Amy Ruth Sheon, a biomedical researcher. They have three school-age children, sons Zachary and Jesse, and a daughter, Evie.

THE HEISMAN CLUB

John William Heisman (1869-1936) was the first professional coach at Oberlin College. In 1892, he led the football team to a perfect 7-0 record. In those days of high-powered football, the 1892 Oberlin grid squad defeated both Ohio State and Michigan and was ranked with Minnesota and Purdue as one of the three best teams west of the Allegheny Mountains.

Nearly a century later, Oberlin alumni, parents, and other friends honored Heisman's memory by forming the John W. Heisman Club. Created in 1978, its objective is to strengthen the entire intercollegiate athletics program. Almost one-quarter of a million dollars was raised over three years, with the initial emphasis directed at stabilizing the football program. In addition, funding necessary to support two coaching positions was provided, one for women's and one for men's intercollegiate sports. These positions have continued since 1981 with general college funding.

For their efforts, the club members receive first-hand information from the College's athletics community. Members also enjoy use of college athletics facilities during regular hours and free access to all Oberlin-sponsored athletics contests held on campus. Most importantly, they have the satisfaction of knowing they are the key supporters of Oberlin College athletics.

In 1985, Heisman Club members voted to transfer responsibility for the club and its activities from the Development Office to the Athletics and Physical Education Department, shifting its focus from pure fundraising to a wider range of services. The Heisman Club is a permanent organization of alumni and friends interested in supporting athletics in the Oberlin tradition. The current structure includes a managing board of eight members elected (for rotating terms) by the membership.

The club operates with four standing committees including Admissions Support, Development and Special Projects, Honors and History, and Communications. Each committee serves a specific purpose within the club's desire to support the entire intercollegiate athletics program. The chairperson of each committee recruits members-at-large to assist the club in its various efforts.

JOE KARLGAARD

Delta Lodge
Director of Athletics and Physical Education
4th Year
Stanford, 1996

As one of the nation's most exciting young athletic directors, Joe Karlgaard leads the resurgence of athletics and wellness at Oberlin College. Karlgaard, in his fourth year as the Delta Lodge Director of Athletics and Physical Education, has spearheaded Oberlin's transformation of varsity athletics, ushered in a campus-wide campaign for wellness, and helped restructure support for club sports.

Since becoming the interim director of athletics in August 2005, Karlgaard has led an unparalleled rise in varsity sports. Oberlin has improved its North Coast Athletic Conference All-Sports Trophy point total each of the last three years, including record totals in 2007 and 2008. Three Oberlin coaches have been named NCAC Coach of the Year under Karlgaard's direction (Deb Ranieri – field hockey; Blake New – men's soccer; Ray Appenheimer – women's cross country), while 8 of 22 varsity programs have achieved their highest conference placement in NCAC history. Five Oberlin athletes have won conference player of the year honors, and more than 200 have been named to all-conference teams.

In addition to guiding Oberlin's competitive improvements, Karlgaard has led the enhancement of athletics facilities and improved the department's financial status since 2005. Oberlin has invested $5 million in athletic facilities improvements over the last three years, with most of the funding provided through private gifts. Kahn Track and Shults Field, a $3 million stadium for track and field, soccer, and lacrosse, is the crown jewel of the college's outdoor facilities. The Don Hunsinger Tennis Courts, constructed in 2007, will play host to the 2010 NCAA Division III Men's Tennis Championships. Karlgaard has effectively reached out to Oberlin's alumni base as athletic director by raising nearly $500,000 through the Heisman Club and ushering in several major gifts for facility improvements.

Karlgaard turned his attention to campus-wide health issues in 2008. Partnering with the Division of Student Life and under sponsorship from the Office of the President, Oberlin hosted a two-week initiative to engage faculty, staff, and students in the pursuit of health and wellness. The high turnout on campus will ensure continued focus on fostering a culture of wellness at Oberlin in years to come.

Club sports have thrived through the partnership of athletics and student life. Karlgaard helped lead a 2008 task force charged with restructuring support for club sports. With a focus on safety, Karlgaard and Dean Linda Gates promoted access to qualified medical personnel and safe modes of transportation for these student-run teams. Oberlin now boasts one of the most robust and supported club sports programs among American liberal arts institutions.

Prior to becoming Oberlin's director of athletics and physical education, Karlgaard served as the assistant athletic director for external affairs during the 2004-05 academic year. In just one year, he tripled the number of active donors to the Heisman Club and redesigned the athletic department's publications.

A 1996 graduate of Stanford University with a bachelor's degree in history, Karlgaard was a four-year letter winner in track and field for the Cardinal. He returned to Stanford in 1998 as an assistant to Vin Lananna, his former coach. While on staff, Karlgaard helped guide the men's track and field squad to the NCAA Division I outdoor title, its first since 1934.

Karlgaard left Stanford in 2000 to pursue a doctoral degree at the University of Minnesota, where he also served as an assistant coach of men's cross country and track and field. In 2003, his final year in coaching, Minnesota won the Big Ten outdoor championship with the highest team score in conference history – 168.5 points. Karlgaard received his Ph.D. in educational policy and administration in 2005.

Karlgaard lives in Oberlin with his wife Jill, son Charlie (1), and dog Mickey.

ABOUT OBERLIN COLLEGE

Ranked consistently among the nation's top liberal arts schools, Oberlin College is committed to rigorous academics, artistic and musical excellence, and social justice. Founded in 1833, Oberlin was the first institution of higher education in America to adopt a policy to admit students of color (1835) and the first college to award bachelor's degrees to women (1841) in a coeducational program. Oberlin's distinct history of challenging intellectual and social conventions shapes the student experience today, which fosters strong bonds among a diverse community of bright and talented students from around the world.

OBERLIN'S DISTINGUISHED 175-YEAR HISTORY

The roots of Oberlin College reach back to 1833 when two young Yankee missionaries arrived at a stump-dotted clearing in the forests of northeast Ohio.

The Rev. John J. Shipherd and Philo P. Stewart, inspired by Alsatian pastor John Frederick Oberlin, resolved to found a college and colony on the western frontier "where they would train teachers and other Christian leaders for the boundless most desolate fields in the West." They shortly gained the support of Charles Grandison Finney, one of the 19th century's great revivalists. Finney's reputation attracted students to the college and colony, "bound together by a solemn covenant which pledged them to the plainest living and highest thinking," as well as financial support for the College and the town of Oberlin.

In the spring of 1833, the first settler, Peter Pindar Pease, built his log house at the center of Oberlin. That December, 29 men and 15 women students began classes in the Oberlin Collegiate Institute. Two years later circulars describing Oberlin noted, "Youths are received as members, irrespective of color." As a result, by the turn of the century one-third of all African American graduates of predominantly white institutions in the United States had graduated from Oberlin.

In 1837 four young women matriculated for the regular college course. Three of the four graduated in 1841 and became the first women in America to receive A.B. degrees. In 1850, by an act of the Ohio legislature, the Oberlin Collegiate Institute became Oberlin College. The change was in name only since collegiate instruction had been offered from 1834 when the original charter was granted.

The music division became part of the College in 1867, two years after its founding as a private school. The Graduate School of Theology, organized in 1835 as the theological division, was merged with the Divinity School of Vanderbilt University in 1966. Present-day Oberlin College reflects its early dedication to high intellectual standards, liberal education, excellence in teaching, and social and moral commitment.

The town of Oberlin, Ohio (population 8,600), is 35 miles southwest of Cleveland and is easily accessible by car, plane, bus, or train.
