2013 PATRIOT LEAGUE WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

The 2013 Patriot League Women's Golf Championship will be contested at the par-70 Bucknell Golf Course in Lewisburg, Pa. on Saturday and Sunday. The format is a two-day, 54-hole tournament, with 36 holes of play on Saturday and 18 holes scheduled for Sunday. Each team will field six players, with the top four scores in each round counted for the team score. The individual medalist earns the Patriot League Most Outstanding Player award, while the highest-finishing freshman is named the Rookie of the Year. A five-member All-Patriot League Team is also determined by championship finish.

LEHIGH, BUCKNELL EACH PICKED FIRST

Lehigh and Bucknell shared first place in the Patriot League Women's Golf Championship poll, each garnering 16 points and four first-place votes. Holy Cross (10) and Navy (6) fill out the field vying for the first women's golf title in the Patriot League.

REMEMBER SEPTEMBER

A mini-preview of the Patriot League Championship came in September when Lehigh joined Bucknell in an invitational at the Bucknell Golf Course. The Mountain Hawks finished sixth in the 15-team field, one spot ahead of the Bison. Bucknell's Bridget Wilcox placed ninth in the field, while Lehigh's Crystal Lee was tied for 10th.

A LOOK AT BUCKNELL GOLF COURSE

The inaugural Patriot League Women's Golf Championship will be held at Bucknell Golf Course, a familiar site for Patriot League events in the past. The venue has hosted five Patriot League Men's Championships, including just last season when Navy took home the crown.

The front nine at the Bucknell Golf Club is a par-36 tough playing nine holes that requires precision driving and solid approach shots into well guarded greens. The first four holes are on the main side of the course, while holes five through nine are on the other side of the Smoketown road and become quite a bit lengthier than the rest of the course. Included on the front side is the most difficult hole on the course, the long par five third hole. The front side is a picturesque nine holes with the high point coming on a tough approach shot over a pond, complete with fountain, on the par five ninth hole. In order to reach the back nine, the golfer must cross the street back to the main course and an entirely different kind of nine holes, technically speaking.

The back nine at the Bucknell Golf Club has a slightly different feel from the front nine. The golfer returns from across the street and is immediately met with a long par three straight up a hill. The back nine is not nearly as long as the front, but it makes up for a lack of distance by demanding the golfer to make accurate tee shots to narrow landing areas. A true golfer will say that a golf course is truly challenging when the golfer needs to play as well on the last hole as they did on the first hole. The BGC is no exception. The 18th hole at Bucknell is not a long hole but has a very small green that is well protected. A good score at the Bucknell Golf Club is well deserved at the end of the day.
