WELCOME NOTE FROM RMAC COMMISSIONER

JOEL R. SMITH

Welcome to the 2009 Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference Centennial Celebration. Tonight marks an important milestone in the history of the RMAC. For the past 100 years, the RMAC has symbolized the pinnacle of excellence for the student-athletes participating at our member institutions. This excellence has promoted an environment in which student-athletes have earned 70 national team championships since 1956; 38 of these have been won since 1992.

In 1909, we originated as the Colorado Faculty Athletic Conference with the following four charter members: University of Colorado, Colorado A&M (Colorado State University), Colorado College and Colorado School of Mines. Since then we have grown to 14 members and have enjoyed the membership of 31 past and present member institutions.

Tonight we celebrate 19 all-time teams with more than 200 student-athletes and coaches who have helped make the RMAC an elite and competitive conference, both on the field of play and in the classroom. We would also like to thank all the student-athletes, coaches, administrations and support staff who have made the RMAC one of the premier Division II conferences in the nation.

Tonight we look forward to celebrating the first 100 years of the RMAC, and to continue our excellence and success for the next 100 years.

HISTORY OF THE RMAC

The Colorado Faculty Athletic Conference was formed March 6, 1909 by the following four charter members: University of Colorado, Colorado A&M (Colorado State University), Colorado College and Colorado School of Mines. In 1910, the league changed its name to the Rocky Mountain Faculty Athletic Conference (RMFAC). The University of Denver and University of Utah joined the conference but Colorado College had a fallout with Colorado School of Mines and dropped from the conference. In 1914, Colorado College rejoined and with the addition of Utah State University, the membership was at seven. Montana State University joined in 1917 and Brigham Young University joined in 1918 as the conference grew to nine members. Membership reached 12 when the University of Wyoming joined in 1921, and Western State College and the University of Northern Colorado joined in 1924.

A major defection occurred as seven schools dropped out of the RMFAC to form the Mountain States Conference (also known as the Skyline Conference). Leaving the RMFAC were Colorado, Colorado State, Brigham Young, Utah State, Wyoming and Denver. The RMFAC continued to operate under faculty administration with five schools - Colorado College, Colorado Mines, Montana State, Northern Colorado and Western State.

Much athletic activity was curtailed during the World War II years, but in 1948 Idaho State University joined the league to bring the membership to six.

Adams State College became the seventh member in 1956, but Idaho State left in 1958 and Montana State departed in 1959, reducing the membership back to five schools.

In 1967, the name changed to what it is currently known as - the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference (RMAC). In a meeting of the presidents of 15 schools, the presidents assumed control of the league from the faculty, changed the name, and the RMAC underwent the most radical change in its 58-year history. Ten institutions were added to the conference and two divisions were formed (Mountains and Plains). Joining the conference were Emporia State, Fort Hays State University, Fort Lewis College, University of Nebraska-Omaha, Pittsburg State (Kan.), University of Southern Colorado, Southern Utah State, Regis University, Washburn (Kan.), Western New Mexico and Westminster (Utah). Colorado College was not included in the new plan and New Mexico Highlands University joined in 1968 but left in 1969 due to financial aid restrictions of the RMAC.

1970-79

The two divisions of the RMAC were split into separate conferences for economic reasons in 1972. The Mountain Division kept the RMAC name, the Plains Division became known as the Great Plains Athletic Conference. The two allied conferences worked under the name of the Mountain and Plains Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MPIAA). RMAC membership stood at eight with Adams State, Colorado Mines, Fort Lewis, Regis, Southern Utah State, Western New Mexico, Western State and Westminster. New Mexico Highlands became the ninth member in 1974 and Mesa State College became the 10th in 1975. In 1976, the MPIAA was dissolved for economic reasons and the two conferences went their separate ways. In the shuffle, Northern Colorado became independent and Southern Colorado transferred to the RMAC. Paul Brechler became the commissioner of the RMAC and was assisted by his wife Wanda. The 1978-79 season marked the first year in which the conference would sponsor women's sports. In 1979, Westminster dropped its intercollegiate athletic program, leaving the RMAC with 10 institutions.

In 1983, Regis became an independent and in 1985 Southern Colorado dropped several sports, including football. In 1986, Southern Utah State departed the RMAC and membership dropped to eight. In 1988, New Mexico Highlands withdrew. The RMAC took another new look in 1989 when Chadron State College, Fort Hays State University, Kearney State (University of Nebraska at Kearney) and Wayne State announced intentions to join. Southern Colorado and Western New Mexico stated they were leaving the RMAC in 1990.

1990-1993

During the 1990 RMAC spring meetings, Kearney State and Wayne State withdrew their membership. Southern Colorado and Western New Mexico left on July 1, 1990 and Fort Lewis said it would leave in 1991. Brechler retired as RMAC commissioner and his wife, Wanda, was named commissioner for the 1990-91 RMAC year. During the 1990-91 season, Fort Lewis was retained as an associate member for the sports of football, wrestling and softball while New Mexico Highlands rejoined the conference. In August 1991, Kurt Patberg was named the RMAC commissioner. During the 1992-93 season, all RMAC institutions gave a three-year commitment to the league and the league moved into the NCAA Division II ranks. Anheuser-Busch, Rawlings and the Ramada Hotel-Denver West joined forces with the RMAC as corporate sponsors. A new logo was adopted and the RMAC Seal would be used for official league items only. The RMAC Week-In-Review television show on Prime Sports Network (now Fox Sports Rocky Mountain) was developed, post-season basketball tournaments were held and conference baseball teams participated in the Mile High Intercollegiate Baseball League. Adams State won the RMAC's initial two NCAA Division II titles with victories in men's and women's cross country in 1992 and 1993. Phillips 66 then became a major corporate sponsor.

1994-1999

Conference growth continued in 1994 with the addition of two new members and the hiring of a second full-time staff person. Fort Lewis resumed full membership and Nebraska-Kearney was voted in as a member, both effective in July. Also in July, a full-time Assistant to the Commissioner/Media Relations Director was hired.

In November 1995, Adams State won its fourth straight national title in women's cross country, while Western State won its first NCAA Division II national title in men's cross country. The crowning moment for the conference came in March of 1996, when Fort Hays State became only the third Division II team in the 40-year history of NCAA Division II men's basketball to finish the season undefeated. The Tigers finished the year 34-0 en-route to FHSU's first Division II national championship and the conference's first national champion in men's basketball.

Colorado Christian University, Metropolitan State College of Denver, Regis University and the University of Southern Colorado joined the league as full members on July 1, 1996. The University of Colorado at Colorado Springs joined as an associate member also on July 1, 1996. University of Denver was accepted as an affiliate member. The RMAC now consists of a two-division, 14 member conference for the sports of volleyball and men's and women's basketball. The league office also had a new look as the conference offices moved from Golden, Colo. to Colorado Springs, Colo.

Also in 1996, the RMAC's intern position of Operations Coordinator was expanded to a full-time position and the Assistant to the Commissioner/Media Relations Director position changed titles to Assistant Commissioner/Media Relations Director.

The RMAC came under new direction in 1997 as Tom Wistrill was named commissioner, replacing Kurt Patberg who resigned to pursue his doctorate degree. Wistrill began his appointment August 15, 1997 after serving a three-year term as Commissioner of the Northern Sun Conference. The University of Denver completed its one-year term as an outgoing affiliate member of the RMAC, and began competition as an NCAA Division I institution for the 1998-99 year. CU-Colorado Springs completed its first year as a full member of the RMAC after becoming the 14th such institution on July 1, 1997. San Francisco State competed as an associate member of the RMAC in the sport of wrestling for the first time in 1997-98. In 1998, the RMAC men's and women's post-season basketball tournament became the first conference event to be broadcast on live television as Fox Sports Rocky Mountain carried the two championship games to a regional cable television audience.

2000-2009

In 2000, Metro State joined Adams State and Western State as national champions - with Adams State claiming the women's cross country title, Western State claiming the men's cross country title and Metro State winning the men's basketball championship. Also, Fort Hays State advanced to the finals of the Division II Baseball World Series and the Mesa State softball team earned its first ever trip to the Softball World Series.

After a three year tenure with the RMAC, Tom Wistrill stepped down as commissioner in November 2000. The council of presidents selected Joel R. Smith as the new commissioner of the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference in February 2001.

Western State College earned NCAA national titles in men's and women's cross country in 2001 and 2002. Metro State posted their second NCAA men's basketball national championship team in three years (2002, 2000).

In July 2002, Smith implemented the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference Hall of Fame and the first induction class was Paul and Wanda Brechler. The Brechlers were the first full-time Commissioner's of the RMAC.

The following year in March 2003, the RMAC basketball tournament (RMAC Shootout) was moved to Colorado Springs for three years (2003-2005) at the World Arena. In 2006, the tournament was moved to Pueblo, Colo. at the State Fair Events Center and the tournament has been held there ever since.

The RMAC's national dominance in cross country continued as Adams State won six straight women's titles between 2003-2008. The Grizzly men's team took home the national title in 2003 before Western State reclaimed the title in 2004 and 2005.

The conference's monthly television show, The RMAC Showcase, debuted on Altitude Sports & Entertainment in September 2004.

For three straight years the RMAC won NCAA soccer championships. Metro State returned to the national spotlight, this time in women's soccer. Head coach Danny Sanchez led the Roadrunners to the 2004 and 2006 NCAA championship titles. Coached by Jeremy Gunn, the Fort Lewis College men's soccer team went 22-0-1 in 2005 to win their first ever national championship.

In the fall of 2006, Fort Hays State University left the RMAC to join the Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association (MIAA). The Tigers remained associate members of the RMAC in women's golf (until 2009) and wrestling. Due to Fort Hays State's departure, Western New Mexico University, located in Silver City, N.M., joined the RMAC.

Adams State won three of the RMAC's four national championships in 2008 as they swept the cross country titles and won the NCAA Women's Indoor Track & Field championship in Mankato, Minn. Nebraska-Kearney recorded their first ever national championship in wrestling, winning the title by .5 points over Minnesota State, Mankato.

In 2007, Montana State Billings was voted in as an associate member in the sports of women's golf and men's and women's tennis. The RMAC added swimming and diving along with three associate members for the sport (Grand Canyon, Incarnate Word and Texas-Permian Basin) in 2008-09.

Since joining the NCAA, the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference is home to 40 NCAA national champions and more than 30 NCAA runner-up teams.

METROPOLITAN STATE COLLEGE OF DENVER WINS 2008-09 RMAC/WELLS FARGO ALL-SPORTS COMPETITION CUP

For the second time in three years, the Metropolitan State College of Denver Roadrunners have won the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference All-Sports Competition Cup. MSCD earned 858.5 points this year, eighty-five more points than second place Adams State College (773.5).

The RMAC All-Sports Competition Cup is awarded to the institution which accumulates the most points over the year based on its teams' outcome in the RMAC's four core sports, along with six wild card sports. The four core sports are football or men's soccer, men's basketball, women's basketball and volleyball, while the six wild card sports consist of three men's sports and three women's sports, which are designated by that institutions' best finish in those 15 Olympic sports (20 total RMAC sports). Total RMAC All-Sports Competition Cup points are calculated based on how the teams finish in the RMAC regular season standings. In the scenario where teams do have regular season standings, RMAC championship results are used.

This year featured three new changes to the RMAC All-Sports Competition Cup calculations: 1) regular season standings were used instead of RMAC tournament standings; 2) the point system was revised; and 3) six wild card sports were used (three men's and three women's) instead of four wild card sports.

Metro State won RMAC regular season titles in men's basketball, women's soccer, softball and men's tennis. They also qualified for the NCAA post-season in cross country, volleyball, women's soccer, men's soccer, men's tennis, men's basketball and softball as well as several individuals who qualified for the indoor and outdoor track and field championships.

Two schools from the RMAC won two NCAA national titles this year. Adams State College won both men's and women's cross country titles in November.

COLORADO CHRISTIAN WINS 2008-09 SPORTSMANSHIP CUP

Colorado Christian won the third annual Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference Sportsmanship Cup. This is the second straight year the Cougars have won the award. University of Nebraska at Kearney won the inaugural Sportsmanship Cup in 2006-07.

The Sportsmanship Cup underwent several revisions this past year. The voting process went to an on-line system that ranked four game environment factors: players, fans, staff, and coaches. Each category received one ranking from poor to excellent. A head coach from each sport and a Student Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) member from each school voted per sport on all 21 RMAC sponsored sports.

The Cougars highest point average in the game environment voting came in the coaches category where they received an average of 4.51 points. The players category was the second highest with a 4.38 rating, followed by staff (4.33) and fans (4.28). In three of the four above-mentioned categories, the Cougars were ranked the highest among the 14 league members.

Colorado Christian received an average overall score of 4.378. Also ranking in the top five for the Sportsmanship Cup were Nebraska-Kearney (4.167), Regis (4.079), Western State (4.047) and Chadron State (3.999).

The Cougars will be recognized and receive their RMAC Sportsmanship Cup on Saturday, July 11 at the RMAC Centennial Celebration.

This is the second time Duggan has earned the award. He was also voted the sports information director of the year in 2003 when he worked at Regis University.

The other top two finalists for this year's award were Anthony Sandstrom from CSU-Pueblo and Peter Yazvac from Nebraska-Kearney. The winner of the award is not eligible for the award the following year.

Duggan, who previously served as the SID at Mines from 1997-00, has completed his fifth year as the Orediggers sports information director. At CSM, Duggan is responsible for the promotion of the 18-sport athletics program through the production of media guides, game programs, press releases, statistics, game notes, schedule cards, posters and the athletics website. Duggan serves as the primary contact for football, volleyball, men's basketball, wrestling, baseball and golf.

A 1996 graduate of Regis University (B.A. in Communication), Duggan served as the SID at his alma mater from 2000-05. During his undergraduate career at Regis, he served for more than three years as the student manager of the sports information office. Duggan, who competed for three seasons (1993-95) on the Rangers' junior varsity baseball team, went on to earn his master's degree in Business Administration from Regis University in 2005.

Duggan is currently a member of CSM's Web Redevelopment Committee and Communications Roundtable. He also serves on the National Collegiate Baseball Writers' Association (NCBWA) NCAA Division II Central Region and National rankings committees.

J. W. Campbell was a long-time sports information director at Western State College.
